(3) WORK AUTHORIZATION- The Attorney General may authorize an alien who has applied for adjustment of status under subsection (a) to engage in employment in the United States during the pendency of such application and may provide the alien with an 'employment authorized' endorsement or other appropriate document signifying authorization of employment, except that if such application is pending for a period exceeding 180 days, and has

Honorable William Jefferson Clinton
President of the United States of America
The White House, Washington, D.C.

Mister President

On August 5th, 1999, Congressmen Bob Menendez, Lincoln Diaz Balart, and others, introduced Bill H.R 2741 that calls for the adjustment of the immigration status of certain Peruvians and Colombians nationals who are now residing in the United States and arrived on or before December 1st, 1995

These immigrants did not come here looking for economic or social status. They fled their countries due to the atrocities committed there. We often hear of human rights violations in Peru, the kidnappings of young girls on up to high level politicians in Colombia, the murders, tortures, drug dealers and smugglers, sporadic fighting between rebel and government armies, the atrocities are almost endless.

The House of Representatives as well as the Senate have recently approved Resolutions condemning the Peruvian government for human rights violations. In order to prevent the kidnappings, deaths, tortures, disappearances or imprisonment of these people. Bill H.R 2741 must be sanctioned.

The presence of these aliens is not a burden on the United States; in fact, the economic contribution greatly exceeds the economic cost. A majority of the Peruvians and Colombians are professionals or proprietors of businesses, community oriented, pay taxes and own their homes. These immigrants are an asset to the American society; they are hardworking, decent in their manners, and have a deep sense of family and profound religious beliefs.

We have records and information readily available, at your request; from the U.S. Census Bureau, unemployment agencies, local chambers of commerce, local welfare agencies and local governments

Peruvian Civic Unity

Capital area

Unidad Cívica Peruana

According to an Immigration and Naturalization report given to Congressman Lamar Smith, Chairman of the Immigration and Claims Committee, there are currently 20,000 to 30,000 Peruvians and 55,000 to 65,000 Colombians in the United States that can benefit from this bill.

Unfortunately, many of them are now subject to deportation or exclusion proceedings and many more will be soon if this bill is not approved

This country was founded in large part by those who fled various kinds of persecutions. It has become of our historical responsibility to serve as an advocate for Human Rights. You are a firm believer of democracy, here and in the rest of the world.

We are quite sure, Mister President, because you are a firm believer in human rights, that as soon as this bill is passed by Congress, you will enact it in the tradition of democracy that rules your acts.

Please support this bill so that these decent people and their families may have a chance to enjoy a better future for their children and also enjoy the freedom and environment of the American life style.

Sincerely,

Juan Carlos Dulanto

DAVIS SUPPORTS BILL TO GIVE PERMANENT RESIDENCE STATUS TO COLOMBIANS & PERUVIANS

Washington, D.C.-- On August 5, 1999, U.S. Congressman Tom Davis (R-VA-11) along with Congressman Lincoln Diaz-Balart (R-FL) and seven other U.S. Representatives introduced important legislation that affects Colombians and Peruvians currently residing in the United States. The Andean Adjustment Act of 1999, H.R. 2741, is a bill that would allow Colombian and Peruvian nationals who arrived in the United States before December 1, 1995, the opportunity to adjust their status and become permanent U.S. residents.

The Andean Adjustment Act of 1999 is modeled after the 1997 Nicaraguan Adjustment and Central American Relief Act (NACARA) which allowed Nicaraguans and Cubans nationals living in America to adjust their status. This decision from Congress was a result of years of hardships and unnecessary delays caused by inadequate and improper Immigration and Nationality Service (INS) asylum hearings. This legislation seeks to provide Colombian and Peruvian nationals with the same opportunities to adjust their status. During their wait to become permanent U.S. residents, many of these refugees have become productive residents of the United States. Many have also started families and are now parents of U.S. citizens.

"The vast majority of immigrants who come to the United States come here for the opportunities and challenges that our nation offers," said Davis. "Immigrants represent the vitality and spirit of America. They work hard and represent the values of the American dream. I am proud to represent the Northern Virginia area which many hardworking immigrants choose as their new home."

Congress of the United States

Washington, DC 20515

October 15, 1999

Cosponsor Legislation to Extend Adjustment of Status to Colombian and Peruvian Refugees who fled atrocities in the 1980s and early 1990s.

Dear Colleague:

In the 1980s and early 1990's severe guerilla conflict in Colombia and Peru caused thousands of refugees to flee their countries and to seek safe haven in the United States. In both countries political violence and bloodshed escalated to levels which shocked the entire Western Hemisphere. Assassinations, extrajudicial executions, rape, car bombings, torture, kidnappings, and other reprisal killings afflicted every level of society.

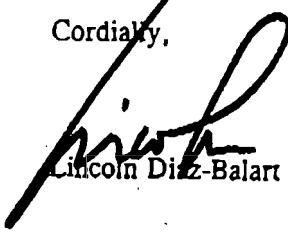

With regard to Colombia, the Miami Herald Editorial Board noted on August 1, 1999: "During the "Extraditables" terror campaign of the late 1980s and early 1990s, narco cartels bombed malls and jetliners, randomly killing innocent civilians en masse." Similarly in Peru, the terrorist "Sendero Luminoso" (also known as the Shining Path) perpetrated large-scale atrocities against civilians. According to Amnesty International's Annual Report for 1990, in October of 1990 alone, that marxist-terrorist organization killed 350 people.

During this time, many Colombians and Peruvians applied for asylum and refugee admission in the United States. In spite of their strong cases most were denied and consequently appealed. According to the INS, between 1989 and 1997 the cumulative approval rate for Colombians was 15.8% and Peruvians 24.8% - well below countries such as Cameroon (48.7%), Ethiopia (50.3%) and Burma (54.8%).

At the same time, in 1990 the INS was adopting new asylum regulations which required older cases filed in the 1980s to be backlogged as new cases were processed with priority for tracking purposes. In response to these backlogs and systematic delays, many Colombians and Peruvians also applied for suspension of deportation - having resided in the United States for seven years and having established families and businesses in the United States. The 1996 Immigration Act, however, retroactively changed the eligibility rules for suspension of deportation, requiring ten years of continuous physical presence and imposing an "extreme and exceptional hardship" standard for proof of hardship. These changes coupled with inaction on asylum applications have left approximately 60,000 Colombians and 15,000 Peruvians in the United States without immigration status, work authorization, and in a position of harsh uncertainty for their families. As the situation in Colombia worsens, it would be inhumane for those who came as legitimate refugees to be separated from their families after waiting years for final review by the INS.

Please join a growing bipartisan effort to assist these families by cosponsoring the Andean Adjustment Act of 1999, H.R. 2741. H.R. 2741 would permit qualified refugees who entered the United States on or before December 1, 1995 the opportunity to apply for lawful permanent residence. A LOS COLOMBIANOS Y PERUANOS

Washington, D.C. – En la noche del jueves 5 de agosto de 1999, el Congresista Lincoln Diaz-Balart (R-FL), conjuntamente con su colega la Congresista Ileana Ros-Lehtinen (R-FL) y los Congresistas Christopher Smith (R-NJ), Presidente de la Sub-Comision de Operaciones Internacionales y Derechos Humanos; Ben Gilman (R-NY), Presidente de la Comision de Relaciones Internacionales; Bill McCollum (R-FL), Presidente de la Sub-Comision sobre la Delincuencia de la Comision de Asuntos Judiciales; Tom Davis (R-VA), Presidente del Comité Congresional Republicano; J.C. El nuevo proyecto de ley, La Ley de Ajuste Andina de 1999 (AAA), fue redactado utilizando como modelo la Ley de Ajuste Nicaraguense y Alivio Centroamericano de 1997 (NACARA), patrocinada por Diaz-Balart. Durante el ultimo ano, Diaz-Balart ha llevado a cabo una intensa campana para promover los derechos migratorios de los colombianos y peruanos. Como consecuencia en gran parte a la labor del Congresista Diaz-Balart en favor del derecho de los colombianos a pedir y obtener asilo politico en Estados Unidos, el porcentaje de aprobacion de solicitudes de asilo politico para los colombianos se ha mas que duplicado durante este ano.

En una conferencia de prensa a las 11:00 a.m. el martes, 10 de agosto, Diaz-Balart y Ros-Lehtinen conjuntamente con lideres comunitarios colombianos y peruanos, haran publicos los detalles de este importante proyecto de ley.

La conferencia de prensa tendra lugar en la oficina de Diaz-Balart, localizada en el 8525 N.W. 53 Terrace, Suite 102 en Miami.

La llamada "Acta de Ajuste Andino" podría convertirse en ley durante el año 2000, según afirmaron la última semana los principales promotores de esa propuesta legislativa. No obstante, reconocieron que los esfuerzos locales y nacionales deberán enfrentar aún diversos obstáculos. Mientras tanto, esperanzados ciudadanos colombianos y peruanos se reunieron nuevamente frente al Congreso el domingo pasado, para solicitar apoyo en torno al proyecto.

Confían que el próximo año será aprobada la ley de ajuste andino

Promotores locales de la llamada "Acta de Ajuste Andino" estiman que ésta podría convertirse en ley durante el año 2000. Admiten, sin embargo, que los esfuerzos locales y nacionales tendrán que superar aún varios obstáculos.

LEGISLACION. Miles de ciudadanos peruanos y colombianos podrían beneficiarse con la H.R. 2741, que les daría la residencia permanente en caso de ser aprobada por el Congreso.

POR REBECA LOGAN

El proyecto de ley H.R. 2741, conocido como el Acta de Ajuste Andino podría ser aprobado por el Congreso en menos de un año, según el coordinador general de la Unidad Cívica Peruana del área metropolitana de Washington, Juan Carlos Dulanto.

"Estamos seguros que antes de junio del próximo año se va a aprobar esta legislación" manifestó Dulanto en una entrevista con Tiempos del Mundo.

Dulanto expresó que cuando se inició el esfuerzo muchos predecían que se iba a tomar por lo menos siete años antes de lograr cualquier conquista legislativa.

La legislación en cuestión otorgaría la residencia permanente a ciudadanos de Colombia y Perú que hayan ingresado y permanecido en Estados Unidos a partir del primero de diciembre de 1995. Igual-mente contiene provisiones que incluyen a aquellos en proceso de deportación y también permitiría el ajuste migratorio de ciertos familiares de los beneficiados. La fecha límite fue escogida para coincidir con la fecha previamente aceptada por el Congreso de la Ley de Ajuste Nicaragüense, conocida como NACARA.

La H.R. 2741 fue presentada en agosto de 1999, tras una serie de manifestaciones a nivel nacional y como resultado de reuniones entre el legislador Lincoln Díaz Balart (R-FL) y representantes de la comunidad colombiana del estado de Florida. La legislación cuenta con una veintena de patrocinadores, pero según Dulanto el número de legisladores que favorece la legislación va en aumento cada día.

Dulanto estimó que son varias las razones que indican que la legislación será una realidad una vez que se inicie la sesión legislativa, por una combinación de factores domésticos e internacionales.

Resaltó la intolerable situación de violencia en Colombia y la violación de los derechos humanos por parte del gobierno peruano como dos factores que hacen necesaria la legislación, al igual que el reconocimiento de un creciente número de políticos en Washington de la crisis que atraviesan ambos países.

También hizo referencia al apoyo bipartidista que ha recibido el proyecto de ley y en especial destacó la participación de los republicanos, quienes controlan el Congreso y en el pasado no habían apoyado este tipo de iniciativas.

"El ajuste andino sólo afecta a 100 mil hispanos, y los republicanos prefieren apoyar este tipo de propuesta, de número limitado", manifestó Dulanto, quien señaló que los esfuerzos organizativos están dirigidos hacia ambos partidos.

A nivel local se han realizado diversas manifestaciones, que incluyeron presentaciones folklóricas, la recolección de firmas y reuniones con legisladores del área para promover este esfuerzo. Entre los copatrocinadores de la legislación estuvieron el legislador Tom Davis (R-VA) y su colega Jim Moran (D-VA), quien recientemente expresó su apoyo al proyecto.

"Hemos recogido más de 45 mil firmas y estamos adelantando reuniones con legisladores de Maryland y Virginia para enero, a fin de sacar adelante este esfuerzo. Hemos recibido una muy buena respuesta" explicó Dulanto. El promotor y empresario peruano estimó que se había avanzado mucho en los apenas cuatro meses que lleva la campaña.

Sin embargo consideró que se necesita una continua y activa participación de la comunidad colombiana y peruana para mantener la atención sobre este asunto.

El director ejecutivo del Centro de Recursos Centroamericanos, CARE-CEN, Saúl Solórzano, opinó que aunque se había visto ciertos resultados para estas comunidades, existen aún varios obstáculos que se debían superar antes que el ajuste andino fuera aprobado por el Congreso.

Solórzano —quien lleva más de 10 años trabajando en favor de legislación pro-inmigrante y en especial en torno a NACARA— estimó que todavía se necesita el apoyo de la Casa Blanca, al igual que la introducción de legislación similar en el Senado.

También señaló la consagrada oposición del presidente de la Comisión de Inmigración, Lamar Smith (R-TX), como una obstrucción. Sin embargo, resaltó el respaldo de republicanos emergentes como JC Watts (R-OK), que eventualmente podría reducir la obstrucción de Smith.

En la próxima sesión legislativa se podría ver la aprobación de varios proyectos de ley que ajuste migratorio, incluyendo el que beneficia a colombianos y peruanos, consideró Solórzano, haciendo referencia a las últimas dos sesiones legislativas que no favorecieron a los inmigrantes.

"Lo más importante es la combinación de factores domésticos y la presentación de las condiciones de los países de origen para impulsar estas iniciativas con una perspectiva de seguridad nacional y ajuste humanitario", declaró Solórzano.

Asimismo, las elecciones presidenciales y legislativas del próximo año podría beneficiar estas iniciativas inmigrantes, señaló.

"Los latinos ahora nos fijamos en propuestas legislativas concretas. Ya no es suficiente que los candidatos sepan decir 'adiós' en español", concluyó Solórzano. ♦

Proyecto similar a NACARA para colombianos y peruanos

Se trata de la Ley de Ajuste Andina (AAA) 1999

Por Ariel Remos

Los colombianos y peruanos que entraron en EE.UU. antes del 1 de diciembre de 1995, podrían obtener su residencia permanente en este país, si el proyecto de ley titulado Ley de Ajuste Andina (AAA) 1999, se convierte, como se espera, en ley de la nación.

El proyecto fue presentado en la Cámara el pasado 5 de agosto por el congresista republicano por la Florida Lincoln Díaz-Balart, y copatrocinado por sus colegas republicanos Ileana Ros-Lehtinen, también por la Florida; Christopher Smith, por New Jersey, presidente de la Subcomisión de Operaciones Internacionales y Derechos Humanos; Ben Gilman, republicano por New York y presidente de la Comisión de Relaciones Internacionales; Bill McCollum, por Florida, y presidente de la Subcomisión sobre la Delincuencia, de la Comisión de Asuntos Judiciales; Tony Davis, por Virginia, presidente del Comité Congressional Republicano; J.C. Watts, por Oklahoma y presidente del Comité Parlamentario de la Mayoría; Henry Bonilla, por Texas, y el demócrata por New Jersey Bob Menéndez.

Este proyecto de ley fue redactado siguiendo como modelo la Ley de Ajuste Nicaragüense y Alivio Centroamericano de 1997 (NACARA), patrocinada por Díaz-Balart. Dicha ley establece el procedimiento que permite a nicaragüenses y cubanos elegibles, llegados antes del 31 de diciembre de 1995, legalizar su situación migratoria obteniendo la residencia permanente con todos sus beneficios.

Los colombianos y peruanos no están incluidos en el proyecto enviado el pasado jueves al Congreso por el Presidente Clinton, denominado Ley de Paridad Centroamericana y Haitiana, que extiende a hondureños, guatemaltecos, salvadoreños y haitianos, los beneficios de la amnistía que actualmente gozan los nicaragüenses y cubanos bajo la Ley NACARA. Sin embargo, según Díaz-Balart, los colombianos y peruanos "tienen el denominador común" con muchos de ellos de haber salido de sus países a causa de la violencia comunista, tanto los peruanos en los años 80, como los colombianos, aun hoy. "Y sería injusto que quedaran fuera en la próxima reforma de inmigración, omisión que vamos a salvar con este proyecto", dijo Díaz-Balart.

El proyecto fija como fecha antes de la cual debe someterse la solicitud de admisión como residentes permanente, el 1 de abril del año 2003. Y podrán solicitar su ajuste de status inclusive los que cacionándose en EE.UU., hayan recibido orden de exclusión, deportación y remoción del país, entre otros, siempre que sean elegibles. El solicitante deberá estar en el país por lo menos un año al tiempo de la solicitud. El proyecto contempla también que se les otorgue a los solicitantes permisos de trabajo provisional mientras su solicitud es tramitada.

Díaz-Balart, que ha desarrollado intensa campaña en pro de los derechos migratorios de los colombianos y peruanos, dijo a DIARIO LAS AMERICAS en su oficina de Miami, que espera que al ir acercándose la fecha de las elecciones, crezca la oportunidad de que el proyecto de ley pueda convertirse en Ley. "Veo serias posibilidades en el 2000", afirmó, pero subrayó la importancia de que las comunidades colombianas y peruanas se movilicen tras el proyecto en gestiones con sus gobiernos y legisladores, con el fin de aumentar el apoyo que es indispensable para la victoria final.

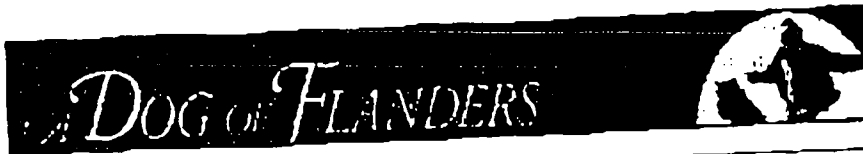

Por su parte, la congresista Ros-Lehtinen se refirió a los momentos difíciles que están pasando los peruanos y colombianos y lo justo de que sean convertidos en residentes y ciudadanos. No descartó ciertas dificultades en el camino de los debates y las enmiendas que tendrá que afrontar el proyecto, pero que "tarde o temprano" el proyecto se convertirá en Ley.

Peruvian motorcade backs immigration bill

By SONJI JACOBS
Herald Writer

A motorcade of more than 200 cars supporting legislation that would change the immigration status of Peruvians slowed traffic to a crawl on northbound Biscayne Boulevard for more than an hour Sunday.

"We're seeking permanent residence for Peruvians," said Luis Morales, general secretary adjunct for Peruvian Civic Unity, the group that organized the rally. "We don't want them to go back, because there is no future in Peru."

Morales and others say the bill, H.R. 2741, the Andean Adjustment Act of 1999, or AAA, will help solve many of the immigration problems faced by the Peruvian community. Introduced earlier this month by two South Florida Republicans — Reps. Lincoln Diaz-Balart and Ileana Ros-Lehtinen — the bill would grant permanent residence to Peruvians admitted to the United States before Dec. 1, 1995.

The rally began at Miami Senior High School, where both Diaz-Balart and Ros-Lehtinen spoke about the importance of the bill. Then the motorcade, dubbed the "Caravan for Amnesty" by organizers, traveled to the Department of Immigration building at Biscayne Boulevard and Northeast 79th Street, where an enthusiastic crowd of about 250 people awaited its arrival.

Many spoke fervently about their desire to stay in the United States and the problems affecting their native country.

"I don't think there's one Peruvian here who can't tell a story about terrorism," said Rebeca Fernandez, 28, of Miami Beach. "I had a bomb thrown in my office there. I can't live like that. I can't live in fear."

Other members of the Hispanic community also joined the motorcade and rally to show their support for the bill. Several participants proudly unfurled and waved yellow, blue and red Colombian flags to appreciative cheers.

"Peru and Colombia are suffering from similar problems," said Juan Carlos Zapata, president of the Colombian American Service Association. "This is going to help us join forces."

In July, Zapata organized a rally in downtown Miami to demand temporary legal status for recent Colombian refugees and legal immigration status for Colombians already living in the country.

The large number of cars in Sunday's motorcade caught law enforcement officials by surprise, said Lt. Diego Ochoa of the Miami Police Department.

Officers tried to keep traffic flowing north on Biscayne Boulevard as motorcade drivers slowed down to wave red and white Peruvian flags and repeatedly honk their car horns. With each passing car, the crowd jammed together on the sidewalk cheered more loudly and raised signs that read, "We Support AAA."

Members of Peruvian Civic Unity are planning a trip to Washington, D.C., in late September to push for passage of the bill.
