Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Ms. Gebbie:

We are delighted to confirm your participation in the Association of Reproductive Health Professional's October 20th, Public Policy Briefing on Adolescent Reproductive Health. Adolescent Health '93: Protecting the Sexual Health of our Teens in the '90s is sponsored, in part by the American Social Health Association and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention in collaboration with the Congressional Caucus for Women's Issues.

The Open Forum, in which you agreed to participate, is scheduled to begin at 2:15 p.m. and end at approximately 4:30 p.m. The Open Forum will take place in the Grand Ballroom at the Willard Inter-continental Hotel at 1401 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW. To date, other confirmed Open Forum participants include Dr. Joycelyn Elders, Senator Nancy Kassebaum, Congresswoman Maxine Waters, Helen Boehm, PhD of Fox Broadcasting, Keith Sovereign, EdD of the Joseph P. Kennedy, Jr. Foundation and a teenager. Each participant will be given approximately 5-7 minutes to address relevant issues at hand. We would ask that you speak about the Office of National AIDS Policy and the role you see it playing in the prevention of HIV and other STDs in adolescents and how the office might work together with other members of the panel and audience and their affiliations in developing workable solutions to the health risks faced by adolescents.

Again, the purpose of the Open Forum is to create a dialogue about the appropriate relationship between federal and local governments, industry, private philanthropies, the press, and professional groups, whose missions include adolescent reproductive health promotion, STD prevention and the prevention of unintended pregnancy in teenagers.

Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Ms. Gebbie:

Congratulations. It is good to see you made it to Washington after all of these years in the trenches. We can use your help here.

You may remember me from my ATPM/ACPM days. I am now the president of the Association of Reproductive Health Professionals (ARHP). In addition to wishing you success and offering you the assistance of our organization wherever needed, I would like to invite you to participate in an Open Forum that is part of a full day program that Dr. Joycelyn Elders has committed to participate in its entirety. This event is the Public Policy component of our conference series, Adolescent Health '93: Protecting the Sexual Health of our Teens in the '90s. We are sponsoring this meeting in Washington on October 20, 1993 in conjunction with the American Social Health Association and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention in collaboration with the Congressional Caucus for Women's Issues. The focus of the meeting will be on STDs, HIV and unintended pregnancy in teens. (A more detailed description of the meeting is enclosed.)

ARHP is an interdisciplinary professional organization devoted to educating health care professionals and the public on matters related to human reproduction and health, including sexually transmitted diseases and HIV/AIDS. The organization was founded in 1963 by Dr. Alan Guttmacher, an OB/Gyn and the first full-time president of the Planned Parenthood® Federation of America. ARHP accomplishes its mission through sponsorship of scientific meetings, public policy updates and educational programs, production and dissemination of scientific materials and information for clinicians, patients, press, members of Congress, government officials, and the general public.

Adolescent Health '93 will feature federal, state and local policy makers; representatives of national medical and voluntary health agencies; members of public and private philanthropies; providers of direct teen services; and teens themselves. If you have further questions, please call me or Joel Quine, at (202) 466-3825. I hope you will be able to participate in what is shaping up to be an exciting dialogue.

Sincerely,

Dennis J. Barbour, JD
President

MULTI-CULTURAL CARE: FOCUS ON MINORITY HEALTH ISSUES

I

n the United States today, there is rising concern about equality in reproductive health care: are minority populations getting the kind of attention they need? Teen pregnancy, lack of access to health care, sexually transmitted diseases, Human Immunodeficiency Virus (HIV), Acquired Immunodeficiency Syndrome (AIDS), and inadequate outreach services, while affecting all of us, seem to bombard minority populations. In order to provide effective care, it is paramount that cultural differences be recognized and, if possible, understood.

Dear Carlos:

Thank you for taking the time to speak with me further about the Public Policy meeting scheduled for October 20, 1993. It is our hope that Ms. Gebbie will be able to participate. The Public Policy Update will feature federal, state and local policy makers; representatives of national medical and voluntary health agencies; members of public and private philanthropies; representatives of the health care industry; representatives of national church groups; providers of direct teen services; and teens themselves.

The information you requested is attached. As per our discussion, the agenda is continually updated. I will forward current copies as soon as changes occur.

With regard to the Open Forum speaking topics, we would ask that Ms. Gebbie speak about the Office of National AIDS Policy and what role she sees it playing in the prevention of HIV and STDs, with particular regard to adolescents; and, how the office might work together with other members of the panel and audience in developing workable solutions to the health risks faced by adolescents.

Thank you for your consideration. Please contact me with further questions at (202) 466-3825.
