Dear Ms. Gebbie:

The National Youth Leadership Forum, a non-profit organization which develops innovative, informative and inspirational educational programs for youth, is in the process of developing a program to be offered to promising high school juniors and seniors who demonstrate an interest in medicine. We would like to invite you to speak to these outstanding future physicians during our program next summer.

The National Youth Leadership Forum on Medicine (NYLF/MD), being held in sessions from June 20-30 and July 4-14, will bring together today's foremost professionals in the field with tomorrow's leaders. During the program, students will gain firsthand knowledge about current issues and practices, the most recent research and technology, as well as educational requirements, national policy and career options.

Last year's Forum, the first ever of its kind, was a huge success. Students had the opportunity to visit several of the top medical facilities, including the National Institutes of Health, the Children's National Medical Center, all four medical schools and the National Naval Medical Center, among others. In addition, we had several leaders in the field of medicine speak to the group, including former Surgeon General Dr. Antonia Novello, Mr. George Strait, Medical Correspondent for ABC News and Dr. James Todd, Executive Vice President for the American Medical Association.

We are looking for this coming program to be even bigger and better than our inaugural medical Forum. We have expanded the format from six to eleven days, and have added several new components to an already extraordinary schedule. Representing high schools from all across the country, these exceptional youths will be eager to meet and learn from those who have a hand in creating policy and those who bear the responsibility for executing it. It would be an honor and a privilege for these dedicated young men and women to have you speak to them.

One component of the program is an entire day devoted to AIDS. Realizing that this disease is one of the most pressing issues in the medical community, we feel it is very important to inform and educate these future physicians about all aspects of this horrible affliction. We would like to invite you to be a keynote speaker on our AIDS day. Other components of this day will include small group discussions with persons infected with HIV and AIDS, and a panel discussion with local physicians.

As the National AIDS Policy Coordinator, your words will have a great impact on these young citizens and future health care workers. These impressionable youth are thirsting for knowledge, especially the important message which you are sending. You can be sure your words will be carried home with our students and will be shared with family, friends and community.

We look to you to help us continue to inspire and motivate the best and brightest. We will contact your office to see if an arrangement might be possible for you to speak to the students in our summer 1994 Forum. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Michael Lasday
Forum Director
