INTERNATIONAL UNION OF POLICE ASSOCIATIONS AFL-CIO

THE ONLY UNION FOR LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICERS

ROBERT B. KLIESMET
International President

SAM A. CABRAL
International Secretary-Treasurer

ARTHUR J. REDDY
International Vice-President

August 23, 1993

The Honorable William Clinton
President of the United States
The White House
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Mr. President:

Street level police officers are virtually without a voice in the development of American criminal justice policy. As an example, today the National Institute of Justice is convening a three day conference on community policing -- a move broadly supported by police unionists. Yet, NIJ planners largely ignored line officers in planning this conference, concentrating their efforts instead on police executives, academics, and consultants. Not that executives, academics and consultants don't have important roles to play in policing and criminal justice thinking -- they do. Yet, officers who deal daily with the problems of disorder, fear and crime, also must be present and represented in such activities if street realities are to be reflected in policy deliberations.

This is only a minor example of a profound problem in policing that we in the police union movement who supported your election believed that you would help correct.

For over seventy years police management has assumed that line officers have little to contribute to the shape or content of their work, and that line officers needed simply to be told what to do, how to do it, and how long they should take doing it. This philosophy has persisted despite 40 years of research demonstrating the complexity of line officers performance and the enormous amount of discretion line officers exercise in their work. Yet, even as the community policing movement evolves -- with its emphasis on the positive aspects of such discretion and primary role of line officers in policing neighborhoods -- neither line officers or their unions are significantly involved in shaping it, as evidenced not only by the NIJ conference going on as I write this, but in city after city across the United States.

For thirty years, I have tried to involve line officers in important practice issues in which they have enormous stakes: community relations; stress; use of force; recruitment of minorities; and now, community policing. I have agreed to serve on research review panels and regularly consult with NIJ and other personnel whenever requested. For decades, I have cooperated in research and tried to present a realistic professional line officer point of view. (I am attaching two papers that I am developing with an academic colleague, even though they are drafts for later publication. They provide important background material with which you and your staff should be familiar.) Yet, again and again, when I have sought federal funds to assist us in developing significant programs, I have been stonewalled and ultimately ignored.

We were not surprised that the previous two Republican administrations, despite their slavish courting of local police associations during elections, perpetuated outdated views of line personnel. Nor do we believe that, realistically, you will be able to improve the role of the practicing line officer in every American city. We are convinced, however, that through the Department of Justice, and especially the National Institute of Justice, policies and funding practices can be developed to include line personnel and their representatives that will serve as a national example.

I urge you to instruct Department of Justice personnel to assist us in the development of important programs and research and to end their funding boycott of groups such as the International Union of Police Associations, AFL-CIO, that responsibly represent line officers. Exertion of such leadership on your part would make a powerful statement to city and police administrators about the important contributions line officers can make to the development of police practice.

Sincerely,

Robert B. Kliesmet
International President

Dear Ed,

I attached for your review a letter from Mr. Robert Kleismet, President of the International Union of Police Associations(IUPA). IUPA represents the uniformed division of the Secret Service which has raised a concern regarding a labor issue detailed in the attached letter.

I have been working closely with this organization for the past year and a half and they have been strong supporters.

I would appreciate it if you would review this issue and advise me on how we should proceed regarding their concerns. I will call you later this week to discuss the issue in more detail.

Thanks.

Dear President Clinton:

Enclosed is a letter from seven-year old Raymond Silva. His father was killed in the line-of-duty in 1993. I was asked to pass this letter on to you.

As you can see, Mr. President, the survivors of our fallen heroes need to know that the country for which they lost their loved ones recognizes their supreme sacrifice. It is important to these families and to the law enforcement officers who daily take this risk.

I sincerely hope that you will join us on May 15th at our Memorial Service in D.C. to show these families and little Raymond that we will always remember and honor those who gave their lives to make this country safer.

Respectfully,

Dear Mr. President

My Name is Raymond Silva and I am 1 years old. I want to tell you about my dad's Name is Norman John Silva. He was a deputy Sheriff from Denver Colorado. He was killed Feb. 3, 1993 he was 30 years old when he got shot. He used to play games with us and make us laugh. His badge Number is 81048. I wish you could know him. He was the best dad ever, I miss him so much. I wish he was here so we can have fun.

My picture was in the paper after My dad's funeral. a girl from a Christian High school drew my picture and won a Art contest. They put my picture on this poster and I want you to have one.

My family and I will be in Washington D.C. in May and I would like to meet you and give you
a poster myself, when my dad's
name goes up on the wall.

Your friend
Raymond Silva

P.S. I'm sorry about your mother.

Honorable Jack Brooks
Chairman, House Judiciary Committee
United States Congress
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. Chairman:

On behalf of the Fraternal Order of Police -- Grand Lodge, which represents 248,000 rank-and-file law enforcement professionals throughout the country, I must express my profound disappointment that the House of Representatives was not allowed to consider a comprehensive crime bill prior to the Easter recess.

It is virtually inconceivable to me that, in the face of a growing public outcry against violent crime, certain partisan factions in the House were unable to put the welfare of Americans first by permitting this measure to move forward.

In my judgment, a reasonable rule governing the nature and order of amendments which could be offered to the crime bill during floor consideration was crafted which afforded the House every opportunity for a full and open debate. If 60 amendments and 12 hours of debate does not provide enough opportunity for reasonable consideration of this issue by the House, then something is very wrong with certain partisan Members -- not the rule governing floor debate.

Those of us who put our lives on the line daily against the forces of lawlessness are confused. It seems that the same partisans in the House who blather on incessantly about the need for crime control initiatives are again the same ones who continue to erect procedural roadblocks which prevent legislation in this area from moving forward. Particularly galling to me is the fact that while these same partisan Members posture for political advantage, police officers are being threatened, wounded and even killed by a rising tide of lawlessness. The bottom line remains that Americans everywhere need to have a meaningful and strong crime bill that will send an unmistakable message to the criminal element which currently preys upon our society.

Honorable Jack Brooks

Chairman Brooks, my members recognize that the House crime legislation is not perfect. There are many amendments in the proposed rule which we believe should be passed by the House. Moreover, we look forward to working the upcoming conference to further improve the comprehensive package. We support your efforts to move this legislative process along and we will continue to speak out against those who seem more intent on making headlines than helping us fight crime.

With kind regards, I remain

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Chairman:

On behalf of the approximately 248,000 members of the Fraternal Order of Police (FOP) nationwide, it is my pleasure to inform you of our unqualified and enthusiastic support for the nomination of Honorable Ruth Bader Ginsburg to the United States Supreme Court.

The FOP believes that Judge Ginsburg's nomination by President Clinton represents an excellent selection of a proven jurist with the solid legal credentials to serve this country in the highest court of the land. The FOP has taken the opportunity since the announcement of Judge Ginsburg's nomination to review her opinions in the areas of searches and seizures, criminal procedure, rules of evidence, and prisoners' rights. If there is a common thread which holds the fabric of these rulings together, it is the absence of any apparent ideology which colors Judge Ginsburg's application of the law. From the perspective of the FOP, this approach represents perhaps the most desired quality in any judge.

The FOP applauds the selection of Judge Ginsburg by President Clinton and we urge the Committee to move this nomination forward in as expeditious a manner as possible.

With kind regards, I am

Sincerely,

On behalf of the 248,000 members of the Fraternal Order of Police, it is my pleasure to inform you of our strong and unqualified endorsement of U.S. District Judge Louis J. Freeh as the next Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI).

The FOP has long believed that the ideal candidate to lead of the FBI would be someone who has a strong law enforcement background, widely regarded for his/her personal integrity, and who possesses the ability to operate the agency in a manner independent of political pressures from any source. With the nomination of Judge Freeh by President Clinton, the FOP is confident that all of these qualifications have been more than met. Accordingly, our support for Judge Freeh is being enthusiastically given and we commend the President for yet another excellent nomination in the law enforcement arena.

MEMORANDUM

Writer's Direct Dial Number

TO: Steve Hilton

FROM: Stephen Brown

DATE: July 28, 1993

RE: National Fraternal Order of Police; Annual National Convention; Appearance of President Clinton

Since we have been missing each other via the telephone, I thought that I would resort to a faxed memorandum to convey that which I need to speak with you about.

As you already know, the FOP will be holding its national convention during the week of August 8 in Louisville, Kentucky. We have sent the White House scheduling office several copies of the original letter inviting the President to appear at this event. A copy of the original letter is attached to this memorandum for your review.

The convention will draw approximately 3500-4500 police officers and their families. Dewey Stokes, the current national president, will also be re-elected to another two-year term. Both senators and the local congressmen will make appearances, as will the Governor and assorted local elected officials.

Several things leap to mind when I contemplate this setting and our original request:

1. The FOP, since January, has done everything within its power to demonstrate a willingness to work on behalf of the White House. Our client has been there for the nominations of Zoe Baird, Janet Reno, Ruth Ginsburg, and Judge Freesh -- just to name a few. The FOP has been there for assorted other White House initiatives that have a law enforcement angle. More importantly, the FOP will continue to be there for the President over the next seven and one-half years. Finally, it is important for you to remember that of all the law enforcement interest groups in Washington, the FOP is the only one that is up on Capitol Hill twenty-four hours a day with a network of contacts and a track record of legislative accomplishments.

2. Representing approximately 248,000 police nationwide, the FOP is clearly the largest rank-and-file police organization in the country. Operating on the belief that the wider the exposure of FOP members to the President, the greater the chance for continued support for him and his policy initiatives, I believe that an appearance by the President would greatly advance this objective.
3. The officers and their families represent a key demographic group from the perspective of the White House. This event would provide the President with the opportunity to address an appropriate issue (e.g., a broad, thematic outline of the upcoming crime bill), touch an important constituent group, and appear in a very friendly setting.

Of course, the FOP is prepared to make whatever accommodations would be necessary for the President to appear at this event. Obviously, however, we need to begin now to make at least some preliminary preparations. Therefore, we need to have this request seriously considered in a timely fashion. The "bottom line" is that this event is too good an opportunity to take a pass on.

Dear President Clinton:

On August 9th through 12th, 1993, the National Fraternal Order of Police will be holding its 51st Biennial Conference in Louisville, Kentucky. It would be an honor for the approximately 5,000 attending if you would address the delegates, alternates, associates, auxiliary and guests at this conference.

We will be holding the business sessions from 9 a.m. until 2:30 p.m. on the 9th, 10th, and 11th. We would naturally accommodate your schedule as to day and time you would wish to speak. These sessions will be followed by workshops and later social events. Of course, we would be pleased if you would like to attend any of these.

Mr. President, the nation is at a critical point in the war on crime. The law enforcement officers of this country are fighting a difficult battle. With violence on the increase and increased risk to officer safety, a few words of encouragement and recognition from you along with your visions of where our country is going would be a wonderful impetus to these men and women who sometimes feel they are fighting a losing battle.

We will send a more detailed agenda of events at a later date, but sincerely hope that you will plan on attending our conference in Louisville and speaking to my brothers and sisters who daily risk their lives for the safety of this great nation.

Respectfully,

Dewey R. Stokes

DEWEY R. STOKES
NATIONAL PRESIDENT

December 9, 1993

Honorable William Clinton
The White House
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. President:

On behalf of the Fraternal Order of Police, representing over 248,000 rank-and-file police officers nationwide, I did want to convey our strong support for the "Violent Crime and Law Enforcement Act of 1993" which recently was adopted by the United States Senate.

The FOP recognizes that the Senate legislation reflects the leadership which you have provided on the twin issues of crime control and law enforcement during this first year of your tenure in the White House. It is also our understanding that you intend to place these issues at the top of your legislative agenda for 1994 with the goal being the final enactment of a comprehensive crime control package before the end of next year. To that end, please be assured of our active support for your efforts.

Certainly, there are numerous provisions in the Senate crime package which merit special concern to our members. The following points, while not exhaustive, include:

1. Funding. The $22.3 billion authorized in the legislation for the funding of various anti-crime initiatives over five years is desperately needed at all levels in the law enforcement community. Particularly crucial is the hiring of new police officers, which was a centerpiece of your campaign, and the "new starts" for prison construction.

A paramount concern with the funding issue is the ability to safeguard this money from "raids" by special interests that, while perhaps representing worthy policy initiatives, are not directly related to law enforcement needs. Although several provisions were added during floor debate to address this issue and prevent "cost shifting" by state and local units of government, the strong leadership of your office will undoubtedly be needed to protect this money from unintended uses.

2. Assault Weapons. The FOP believes that the proliferation of semi-automatic assault weapons is an issue ripe for discussion in the context of a comprehensive crime package.

The inclusion of language on this subject in the measure adopted by the Senate, while going beyond the scope of earlier legislation on this point offered by Senator Dennis DeConcini and supported by the FOP, does at least guarantee that this important issue will be addressed in conference.

One area for improvement from the perspective of law enforcement would be an exemption from the current provision for certain categories of law enforcement officers (i.e., active duty who qualify for a particular weapon and those retired at "full service" who also qualify for a particular weapon).

3. Juveniles and Crime. Language in the Senate bill relative to the sale or transfer of a gun to a juvenile, or the possession of a gun by juvenile, is strongly supported by the FOP and should be retained at conference. The FOP is also supportive of a provision added during floor debate which would require that youths accused of serious violent crime be tried as adults.
4. Prisons. Relative to prisons and "boot camps," the FOP believes that the Senate legislation makes dramatic progress in providing for the funding necessary to construct these facilities as well as for various alternative approaches in the area of incarceration. The provision conditioning this funding requiring "truth-in-sentencing" for violent offenders should also be retained during conference.
5. Death Penalty. The legislation significantly expands the federal death penalty to cover approximately 50 additional offenses. The FOP supports this expansion along with the amendment adopted floor debate which would provide the death penalty for "drug kingpins."
6. Mandatory Minimum Sentencing. The FOP is also supportive of provisions in the Senate bill which impose federal mandatory minimum sentencing for a variety of offenses and for language which would impose a life sentence without possibility of parole for those convicted three times for violent crime.

The FOP is supportive of some discretion being afforded to federal judges who are faced with non-violent first offenders. Language exists in the legislation as per an amendment offered by Senator Strom Thurmond which addresses this issue.

7. Victims Rights. The Senate measure takes an important step forward in asserting the rights of those harmed by criminals. Particularly important is the ability of victims to speak at the sentencing of their assailants and language mandating restitution without diversion of those funds to other federal programs.
8. Law Enforcement Personnel. The Senate legislation contains a non-binding resolution expressing support for the exclusion of federal law enforcement personnel from the federal workforce cutbacks called for in your "Reinventing Government" report. The FOP believes that this exemption should not only be retained in conference, but perhaps made binding in some fashion.

It would appear extremely illogical to cut federal law enforcement personnel with one initiative while providing the funding for additional hiring of same in another. Furthermore, and due to the fact that state and local units of government will finally be provided the resources to pursue various anti-crime initiatives, the degree of liaison required of them with their federal counterparts will increase. Accordingly, cutting back on federal law enforcement personnel would work against one of the overall objectives of the Senate legislation.

Obviously, the issues raised above are only the highlights of the many provisions of the Senate legislation which are important to both my members and your Administration. My listing of these highlights is meant to serve as only a summary of our thinking thus far in the legislative process.

The Senate crime bill, if enacted, would have the immediate effect of incarcerating the recidivist offenders who commit approximately 67% of all crime today. The long-term solution to the problem of crime is, of course, prevention. For every crime which we are able to prevent, there will be no victim, no overloading of the judicial system, and no additional pressures on our prison system. To this end, it is vitally important that the youthful or first-time offender understand clearly that there is swift and certain punishment for a violation of the law.

Honorable William Clinton
Page Four

At the same time that our system of justice is made more certain after a crime has been committed, it is equally important that we allocate the resources necessary to convey the message to our youth that education, not violence or crime as a way of life, is the more sensible approach to take with their lives. Accordingly, those of us in law enforcement, in Government, and in private industry must work to make "boot camps" successful for first-time offenders. We must implement policies like the "Weed and Seed" initiative and community policing. Moreover, we must work with our churches and schools to both instill moral values and restore the family unit as the cornerstone of our communities.

Mr. President, the measure passed by the Senate under the able guidance of Senator Joseph Biden is an unprecedented positive development in the history of anti-crime legislation. More importantly, the momentum which this bill now has must not be lost due to partisan or ideological concerns in the House. America has become a violence-ridden society over the last twenty-five years and it will take considerable time to correct ourselves. Each of us -- you, the Congress, the courts, law enforcement and the American people -- must take the necessary first steps toward that objective. Passage of a crime bill is but one of those first steps.

As you know, your leadership will be critical in ensuring that this momentum is not dissipated. To that end, the FOP believes that a comprehensive debate of the many issues raised in the Senate legislation should be allowed to take place in the House, either on the floor or in the Judiciary Committee. To do otherwise would, I fear, allow either liberals or conservatives the opportunity to argue a failure of due process.

Mr. President, the FOP stands ready to work with you and Attorney General Janet Reno is enacting a comprehensive crime bill.

I thank you in advance for consideration of our views.

Sincerely,

Dewey R. Stokes
National President

The FOP is supportive of some discretion being afforded to federal judges who are faced with non-violent first offenders. Language exists in the legislation as per an amendment offered by Senator Strom Thurmond which addresses this issue.

7. Victims Rights. The Senate measure takes an important step forward in asserting the rights of those harmed by criminals. Particularly important is the ability of victims to speak at the sentencing of their assailants and language mandating restitution without diversion of those funds to other federal programs.
8. Law Enforcement Personnel. The Senate legislation contains a non-binding resolution expressing support for the exclusion of federal law enforcement personnel from the federal workforce cutbacks called for in your "Reinventing Government" report. The FOP believes that this exemption should not only be retained in conference, but perhaps made binding in some fashion.

It would appear extremely illogical to cut federal law enforcement personnel with one initiative while providing the funding for additional hiring of same in another. Furthermore, and due to the fact that state and local units of government will finally be provided the resources to pursue various anti-crime initiatives, the degree of liaison required of them with their federal counterparts will increase. Accordingly, cutting back on federal law enforcement personnel would work against one of the overall objectives of the Senate legislation.

Obviously, the issues raised above are only the highlights of the many provisions of the Senate legislation which are important to both my members and your Administration. My listing of these highlights is meant to serve as only a summary of our thinking thus far in the legislative process.

The Senate crime bill, if enacted, would have the immediate effect of incarcerating the recidivist offenders who commit approximately 67% of all crime today. The long-term solution to the problem of crime is, of course, prevention. For every crime which we are able to prevent, there will be no victim, no overloading of the judicial system, and no additional pressures on our prison system. To this end, it is vitally important that the youthful or first-time offender understand clearly that there is swift and certain punishment for a violation of the law.

Honorable William Clinton

At the same time that our system of justice is made more certain after a crime has been committed, it is equally important that we allocate the resources necessary to convey the message to our youth that education, not violence or crime as a way of life, is the more sensible approach to take with their lives. Accordingly, those of us in law enforcement, in Government, and in private industry must work to make "boot camps" successful for first-time offenders. We must implement policies like the "Weed and Seed" initiative and community policing. Moreover, we must work with our churches and schools to both instill moral values and restore the family unit as the cornerstone of our communities.

Mr. President, the measure passed by the Senate under the able guidance of Senator Joseph Biden is an unprecedented positive development in the history of anti-crime legislation. More importantly, the momentum which this bill now has must not be lost due to partisan or ideological concerns in the House. America has become a violence-ridden society over the last twenty-five years and it will take considerable time to correct ourselves. Each of us -- you, the Congress, the courts, law enforcement and the American people -- must take the necessary first steps toward that objective. Passage of a crime bill is but one of those first steps.

As you know, your leadership will be critical in ensuring that this momentum is not dissipated. To that end, the FOP believes that a comprehensive debate of the many issues raised in the Senate legislation should be allowed to take place in the House, either on the floor or in the Judiciary Committee. To do otherwise would, I fear, allow either liberals or conservatives the opportunity to argue a failure of due process.

Mr. President, the FOP stands ready to work with you and Attorney General Janet Reno in enacting a comprehensive crime bill.

I thank you in advance for consideration of our views.

Sincerely,

Dewey R. Stokes

DEWEY R. STOKES
NATIONAL PRESIDENT

December 9, 1993

Honorable William Clinton
The White House
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. President:

On behalf of the Fraternal Order of Police, representing over 248,000 rank-and-file police officers nationwide, I did want to convey our strong support for the "Violent Crime and Law Enforcement Act of 1993" which recently was adopted by the United States Senate.

The FOP recognizes that the Senate legislation reflects the leadership which you have provided on the twin issues of crime control and law enforcement during this first year of your tenure in the White House. It is also our understanding that you intend to place these issues at the top of your legislative agenda for 1994 with the goal being the final enactment of a comprehensive crime control package before the end of next year. To that end, please be assured of our active support for your efforts.

Certainly, there are numerous provisions in the Senate crime package which merit special concern to our members. The following points, while not exhaustive, include:

1. Funding. The $22.3 billion authorized in the legislation for the funding of various anti-crime initiatives over five years is desperately needed at all levels in the law enforcement community. Particularly crucial is the hiring of new police officers, which was a centerpiece of your campaign, and the "new starts" for prison construction.

A paramount concern with the funding issue is the ability to safeguard this money from "raids" by special interests that, while perhaps representing worthy policy initiatives, are not directly related to law enforcement needs. Although several provisions were added during floor debate to address this issue and prevent "cost shifting" by state and local units of government, the strong leadership of your office will undoubtedly be needed to protect this money from unintended uses.

President William Clinton
December 9, 1993
Page Two

2. Assault Weapons. The FOP believes that the proliferation of semi-automatic assault weapons is an issue ripe for discussion in the context of a comprehensive crime package.

The inclusion of language on this subject in the measure adopted by the Senate, while going beyond the scope of earlier legislation on this point offered by Senator Dennis DeConcini and supported by the FOP, does at least guarantee that this important issue will be addressed in conference.

One area for improvement from the perspective of law enforcement would be an exemption from the current provision for certain categories of law enforcement officers (i.e., active duty who qualify for a particular weapon and those retired at "full service" who also qualify for a particular weapon).

3. Juveniles and Crime. Language in the Senate bill relative to the sale or transfer of a gun to a juvenile, or the possession of a gun by juvenile, is strongly supported by the FOP and should be retained at conference. The FOP is also supportive of a provision added during floor debate which would require that youths accused of serious violent crime be tried as adults.
4. Prisons. Relative to prisons and "boot camps," the FOP believes that the Senate legislation makes dramatic progress in providing for the funding necessary to construct these facilities as well as for various alternative approaches in the area of incarceration. The provision conditioning this funding requiring "truth-in-sentencing" for violent offenders should also be retained during conference.
5. Death Penalty. The legislation significantly expands the federal death penalty to cover approximately 50 additional offenses. The FOP supports this expansion along with the amendment adopted floor debate which would provide the death penalty for "drug kingpins."
6. Mandatory Minimum Sentencing. The FOP is also supportive of provisions in the Senate bill which impose federal mandatory minimum sentencing for a variety of offenses and for language which would impose a life sentence without possibility of parole for those convicted three times for violent crime.

President William Clinton
December 9, 1993

The FOP is supportive of some discretion being afforded to federal judges who are faced with non-violent first offenders. Language exists in the legislation as per an amendment offered by Senator Strom Thurmond which addresses this issue.

7. Victims Rights. The Senate measure takes an important step forward in asserting the rights of those harmed by criminals. Particularly important is the ability of victims to speak at the sentencing of their assailants and language mandating restitution without diversion of those funds to other federal programs.
8. Law Enforcement Personnel. The Senate legislation contains a non-binding resolution expressing support for the exclusion of federal law enforcement personnel from the federal workforce cutbacks called for in your "Reinventing Government" report. The FOP believes that this exemption should not only be retained in conference, but perhaps made binding in some fashion.

It would appear extremely illogical to cut federal law enforcement personnel with one initiative while providing the funding for additional hiring of same in another. Dear President Clinton:

Enclosed is a letter from seven-year old Raymond Silva. His father was killed in the line-of-duty in 1993. I was asked to pass this letter on to you.

As you can see, Mr. President, the survivors of our fallen heroes need to know that the country for which they lost their loved ones recognizes their supreme sacrifice. It is important to these families and to the law enforcement officers who daily take this risk.

I sincerely hope that you will join us on May 15th at our Memorial Service in D.C. to show these families and little Raymond that we will always remember and honor those who gave their lives to make this country safer.

Respectfully,

Dewey R. Stokes

Dear Mr. President

My Name is Raymond Silva and I am 7 years old. I want to tell you about my dad his Name is Norman Tony Silva II he was a deputy Sheriff from Denver Colorado. He was killed Feb. 3, 1993 he was 30 years old when he got shot. He used to play games with us and make us laugh. His badge Number is 81048. I wish you could know him. He was the best dad ever. I miss him so much. I wish he was here so we can have fun.

My picture was in the paper after My dad's funeral. a girl from a Christian High school drew my picture and won a Art contest. They put my picture on this poster and I want you to have one.

My family and I will be in Washington D.C. in May and I would like to meet you and give you
a poster myself, when my dad's
name goes up on the wall.

Your friend
Raymond Silva

P.S. I'm sorry about your mother.

13TH ANNUAL NATIONAL PEACE OFFICERS MEMORIAL SERVICE SPEECH

TO: The President
DATE: Sunday, May 15, 1994
LOCATION: West Front of the Capitol
TIME: 9:45-10:25 AM
FROM: Steve Hilton
Chris Lin

I. PURPOSE

This is a memorial service to honor and remember the 146 police officers killed in the line of duty in 1993.

II. BACKGROUND

In 1962, President John F. Kennedy declared May 15th as National Peace Officers Memorial Day. Each year for the past thirteen years, the Fraternal Order of Police (F.O.P.) and the F.O.P. National Auxiliary has sponsored a National Peace Officers Memorial Service in remembrance of police officers who have been killed in the line of duty the previous year. The F.O.P. is the nation's largest police organization, representing almost 250,000 police officers. The F.O.P. National Auxiliary is a national support group for surviving family members of slain F.O.P. members.

This memorial service honors all police officers (not just F.O.P. members) who lost their lives in the line of duty in 1993 and remembers their families. Among the 146 officers honored, will be those Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearm officers killed at Waco. This year, the F.O.P. will honor 146 officers. The memorial service is part of a series of events honoring police officers during National Police Week (from May 13-15). On Friday, May 13th, Attorney General Reno delivered the keynote address at the Law Enforcement Memorial Candlelight Vigil, which both you and the Attorney General participated in last year. On Saturday, the families of survivors attended seminars to help deal with the loss of their loved ones. The difference between the Candlelight Vigil and the Memorial Service is that the Vigil honors all police officers killed in the line of duty, while this event honors just those officers killed in the line of duty during the previous year.

The F.O.P. was founded in 1915 in Pittsburgh with 9 original members. Since then, the organization has grown to represent approximately 250,000 law enforcement professionals in 45 states. This membership makes the F.O.P. the largest organization of rank-and-file police officers in the United States. The Office of Public Liaison has been working closely with the F.O.P. for the past year or so. The F.O.P. was not one of the original police organizations to endorse you during the campaign, and they understand the ramifications of their decision. They have since shown strong support for your initiatives, and have repeatedly indicated that they recognize their error and that they want to work more closely with the Administration. To that end, the F.O.P. made extraordinary efforts both in the field and on the Hill, to help pass H.R. 4296 -- the assault weapons ban -- and will continue to work hard on our behalf to pass the Crime Bill. Your participation in this ceremony represents the signal of support they have been hoping for.

The F.O.P. Auxiliary, also formed in 1915, consists of families of F.O.P. members. The F.O.P. Auxiliary is the largest support organization in the United States for law enforcement families. The F.O.P. Auxiliary continues to organize and conduct the National Peace Officers' Memorial Service held on May 15th of each year in Washington, D.C.

Prior to the event, you will meet briefly with Dewey Stokes and the seven other F.O.P. Executive Committee Members. Dewey Stokes, a retired police officer who has served with the Columbus, Ohio Division of Police for 26 years, is currently serving his fourth term as National President of the F.O.P. Additionally, you will meet with two families of police officers who were killed in the line of duty: Cynthia and Raymond Silva, and Mary, Nathaniel and Nicholas Faulkner. Cynthia is the widow of Deputy Sheriff Tony Silva from Denver, CO. Raymond Silva, her son, specifically wrote you to request an opportunity to present to you a drawing of his father. Mary Faulkner met you during a health care town hall meeting in Missouri. Mary and her two sons, Nathaniel, 4, and Nicholas Faulkner, 7, will soon be losing their health care coverage because of Officer Stephen Faulkner's death in 1992.

Washington, D.C. 20510

Dear President Clinton:

My name is Mary Faulkner and I am the widow of Police Officer Stephen A. Faulkner who died in a line of duty death while working for the Kansas City, Mo. Police Department in the police helicopter unit. I met you in Kansas City at your Town Hall Meeting that was held to discuss health care issues. Thank you for taking the time to listen to me when all the other government officials I had contacted didn't seem to want to take the time. I had a meeting with Mayor Emanuel Cleaver as you had suggested and I understand from our meeting you have discussed with him my health care dilemma with the Kansas City, Mo. Police Department.

Mayor Cleaver was very open and candid during our meeting and I feel confident that he will do everything in his power to help change police department policy. The problem I face is that we are dealing with a Board of Police Commissioners who do not change easily. They are upset with me because I have pointed out a need for surviving families that should be addressed and they would rather bury their head in the sand. Mayor Cleaver pointed out to me that there is a very good possibility that if police department policy is changed to include health care for the surviving family of a fallen police officer that my children and I will not be "grandfathered" in. Although I would be very thankful for the department change and the fact that the next family would not have to fight the battle I have had to fight, I am still left with the cold hard facts that I have lost the only man I ever loved and have our two small children, ages 7 and 4, to raise alone.

What is even more distressing is the fact that I am not alone in this health care dilemma. There are others just like me and my children all over this country. The majority of this country's population automatically assume that when a police officer dies in the line of duty the police department automatically helps to take care of their health insurance. In most cases the police departments do not. We are the forgotten. I hope you will remember us in your health care reform. I have never heard anyone mention at any time when discussing your health care package what is provided for surviving family members when their loved one dies while on the job. At the Town Hall Meeting in Kansas City you explained to me that under your health care package I could still have coverage. But in situations such as I am dealing with, I believe the employer has some obligations, too. Is this type of situation covered in your health care package?

Next weekend, May 15th is National Law Enforcement Officers Memorial Day. I and about 1200 others will be in Washington, D.C. to remember our loved ones who have died in the line of duty. There is a wealth of information for you to glean from these survivors. We are the forgotten when it comes to health care. There is a wonderful opportunity for you here to promote your health care reform. I know that you are scheduled to be the keynote speaker at our Memorial Day Service. Mrs. Kathleen Young, president of Concerns of Police Survivors (COPS), has been very helpful to me in bringing my concerns before the Kansas City, Mo. Police Department and you will see her there also. We would love to have the opportunity to sit with you and talk about the issues we face or have faced when our loved one died in the line of duty.

President Clinton, I thank you that you were the first person that took my situation seriously. I am dealing with a Board of Police Commissioners who do not want to change and feel threatened that I stood up and stated that their policy is inadequate. I continue to pursue this issue because of all that Steve gave. I pursue this issue because I have two small boys to raise alone. I pursue this issue because I know there will be others who follow in my footsteps and I don't want them to have to pursue this battle when they are dealing with their grief as I am. Mr. President, I would appreciate anything you can do to help me in my pursuit of a police department policy change that would help me in raising my sons. I would also count it a privilege to help you in your pursuit of health care reform. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mary Faulkner

SUBJECT: NATIONAL LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICERS MEMORIAL DAY, MAY 15, 1994

Attached please find a letter from Mrs. Mary Faulkner. Mrs. Faulkner is the widow of Police Officer Stephen Faulkner of Kansas City, Missouri. The President met Mrs. Faulkner at his town hall in Kansas City. As you read her letter you will note that Mrs. Faulkner made all the appropriate contacts with elected officials but still has no hope of receiving health care coverage. I forward her letter in hopes that we may be able to assist her or provide her an answer.

At this time, I believe that The President's participation at the National Law Enforcement Officers Memorial Day event on May 15 is under consideration. I hope that his schedule will permit him to do so. If Mrs. Faulkner's story is accurate, her letter may be a good topic to address at this event (the combination of crime and health care). In this light, I bring Mrs. Faulkner's letter to your attention.

At least, I believe that we should respond from The President and I will coordinate the appropriate response, since the letter was delivered to my attention, however, I would like to have your input.

Thank you for your attention to this matter.

President Bill Clinton
Attn: Mary Hale
Intergovernmental Affairs
White House
1600 Pennsylvania Avenue
Washington, D.C. 20510

Dear President Clinton:

My name is Mary Faulkner and I am the widow of Police Officer Stephen A. Faulkner who died in a line of duty death while working for the Kansas City, Mo. Police Department in the police helicopter unit. I met you in Kansas City at your Town Hall Meeting that was held to discuss health care issues. Thank you for taking the time to listen to me when all the other government officials I had contacted didn't seem to want to take the time. I had a meeting with Mayor Emanuel Cleaver as you had suggested and I understand from our meeting you have discussed with him my health care dilemma with the Kansas City, Mo. Police Department.

Mayor Cleaver was very open and candid during our meeting and I feel confident that he will do everything in his power to help change police department policy. The problem I face is that we are dealing with a Board of Police Commissioners who do not change easily. They are upset with me because I have pointed out a need for surviving families that should be addressed and they would rather bury their head in the sand. Mayor Cleaver pointed out to me that there is a very good possibility that if police department policy is changed to include health care for the surviving family of a fallen police officer that my children and I will not be "grandfathered" in. Although I would be very thankful for the department change and the fact that the next family would not have to fight the battle I have had to fight, I am still left with the cold hard facts that I have lost the only man I ever loved and have our two small children, ages 7 and 4, to raise alone.

What is even more distressing is the fact that I am not alone in this health care dilemma. There are others just like me and my children all over this country. The majority of this country's population automatically assume that when a police officer dies in the line of duty the police department automatically helps to take care of their health insurance. In most cases the police departments do not. We are the forgotten. I hope you will remember us in your health care reform. I have never heard anyone mention at any time when discussing your health care package what is provided for surviving family members when their loved one dies while on the job. At the Town Hall Meeting in Kansas City you explained to me that under your health care package I could still have coverage. But in situations such as I am dealing with, I believe the employer has some obligations, too. Is this type of situation covered in your health care package?

Next weekend, May 15th is National Law Enforcement Officers Memorial Day. I and about 1200 others will be in Washington, D.C. to remember our loved ones who have died in the line of duty. There is a wealth of information for you to glean from these survivors. We are the forgotten when it comes to health care. There is a wonderful opportunity for you here to promote your health care reform. I know that you are scheduled to be the keynote speaker at our Memorial Day Service. Mrs. Kathleen Young, president of Concerns of Police Survivors (COPS), has been very helpful to me in bringing my concerns before the Kansas City, Mo. Police Department and you will see her there also. We would love to have the opportunity to sit with you and talk about the issues we face or have faced when our loved one died in the line of duty.

President Clinton, I thank you that you were the first person that took my situation seriously. I am dealing with a Board of Police Commissioners who do not want to change and feel threatened that I stood up and stated that their policy is inadequate. I continue to pursue this issue because of all that Steve gave. I pursue this issue because I have two small boys to raise alone. I pursue this issue because I know there will be others who follow in my footsteps and I don't want them to have to pursue this battle when they are dealing with their grief as I am. Mr. President, I would appreciate anything you can do to help me in my pursuit of a police department policy change that would help me in raising my sons. I would also count it a privilege to help you in your pursuit of health care reform. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Mary Faulkner

The President of the United States
Thirteenth Annual Police Officers Memorial Service
West Front of the Capitol
May 15, 1994

Thank you very much:

o Dewey Stokes, president of the Fraternal Organization of Police, which for 13 years -- along with its National Auxiliary - has sponsored the National Police Officers Memorial Service.

o Karen Lippe, president of the F.O.P. Auxiliary.

o Representatives of federal law enforcement: Attorney General Janet Reno; the director of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms, John Magaw, who is a former member of the F.O.P. from his days as a Trooper in Ohio; the director of the U.S. Marshals Service Eduardo Gonzales; and the director of U.S. Customs, George Weise.

o The representatives of all the other law enforcement organizations who are here today.

o And the Members of both Houses of Congress who are here today [names to come].

For every name that is added to the National Law Enforcement Officers Memorial, there is a face, a family, and a human tragedy.

Three months ago, in Columbus, Ohio, I met the widow and the precinct sergeant of police officer John Kleitz, who was shot to death on duty after he stopped a suspicious car. Kleitz had gotten married just a month before he was killed.

This morning, I met the families of police officer Stephen Faulkner, of Kansas City, Missouri, and Deputy Sheriff Tony Silva, of Denver. They each died in the line of duty. And I'll never forget the letter I got from Deputy Sheriff Silva's six-year-old son, who wrote to me: "My dad ... was 30 years old when he got shot. he used to play games with us and make us laugh. His badge number is 87048. I wish you could know him. He was the best dad ever."

Today, we honor John Kleitz, Stephen Faulkner, Tony Silva, and all the law enforcement officers who gave their lives last year in the line of duty. And we pay tribute to a community of service and sacrifice:

-- the survivors who have lost fathers and sons, brothers and sisters, mothers and daughters;

-- the more than half million law enforcement officers who go to work each day, not knowing if this will be the day they will make the ultimate sacrifice;

-- and the families of law enforcement officers who send their loved ones off each day, with pride in the work they do and a prayer that they will come home safely.

Most of all, we dedicate ourselves to becoming an America worthy of the heroes we honor today.

Every law enforcement officer here has taken a solemn oath to uphold the law and defend your fellow citizens. And, although fear must be your constant companion, you still go out on there every day, wearing the badge and the uniform that symbolize your commitment to risk your lives to protect our lives.

I often think that the oath you take, and the job you do, are acts of faith that your fellow citizens will support you in your work and strive to be a civilized community. That is why we, too, must make a commitment to you, and to each other, that we will live within the law and teach our children the difference between right and wrong. For, if we do not restore the fabric of civilized life in this country, then it is ultimately futile for us -- and unfair to you -- to send you out into the streets to protect us from ourselves.

The first thing we must do is give you the support you need, so that you can do your jobs every day, and so that fewer police officers and ordinary citizens will be victims of crime and violence this year and in the years to come.

As we stand today in the shadow of our nation's Capitol, let us stand united in asking the Congress to pass a Crime Bill that will make your jobs easier and all our people safer.

We need a Crime Bill that puts 100,000 police officers on the streets of our communities. We know that police officers are more effective when they know the people and their children, when they prevent crime from happening in the first place. And you know that police officers are safer when the people know you are part of the community.

We need a Crime Bill that takes assault weapons off our nation's streets, making sure that law enforcement officers will not be outgunned by criminal gangs and terrorists armed with weapons of mass destruction. That is why so many of you worked so hard to make sure that the House of Representatives passed a ban on assault weapons.

We need a Crime Bill that puts tougher penalties on the books, that tells violent career criminals "three strikes and your out," that sets the death penalty for the most heinous crimes, including killing a police officer.

And we need a Crime Bill that offers our young people positive alternatives in their lives: by making our schools gun-free, drug-free, and violence-free; by providing alcohol and drug education, programs to encourage peaceful settlements of disputes, and activities to get young people to stay out of gangs; and by encouraging responsible adults to be mentors to young men and women who examples to learn from and to follow.

Recently, I met with Dewey Stokes and the leaders of almost all the law enforcement organizations to discuss the Crime Bill. And we all agreed: we need to prevent crime as well as punish it.

Many police officers already participate in these programs. And our communities and our country owe you a debt of gratitude for the good work that you are doing, saving our young people the same way that we lose them -- day by day, one by one.

Your safety as police officers -- and our safety as a society -- depends on what happens not only in our Capitol, but also in our communities, our families, and our hearts and souls.

Your jobs are so dangerous because, in so many ways, our society is coming apart when we should be coming together. These are the most trying times in history for police officers because you must deal with the most difficult and intractable problems in our society: the breakdown of work and family and community. You face these problems every day on the mean streets of our largest cities, our smallest towns, and our newest suburbs.

And until we strengthen what is right with America and fix what is wrong, your jobs will be dangerous, and our debt to you will be incalculable.

Yesterday, in Indianapolis, I helped dedicate a memorial to two of the greatest Americans of our time: Martin Luther King, Jr., and Robert F. Kennedy.

I stood at the place where Robert Kennedy told a crowd that the Rev. Martin Luther King, Jr., had been shot to death. After he spoke, the crowd left that place, dedicated to keeping the peace at a time of great sorrow and great anger. And these are some of the words that Senator Kennedy spoke on that night, more than a quarter century ago:

"So I shall ask you tonight to return home, to say a prayer for the family of Martin Luther King ... but, more importantly, to say a prayer for our own country, which all of us love."

This morning, I ask you to say a prayer for the law enforcement officers who have fallen and for the families who loved them so much.

Say a prayer for the older people who live in fear, behind locked doors and barred windows, and for the young people who are losing their lives to drugs and guns, to violence and despair.

And say a prayer that we can put an end to the crime and violence that turns neighbors into strangers and strangers into enemies. For as Robert Kennedy said on that night in Indianapolis 26 years ago: "The vast majority...of people in this country want to live together, want to improve the quality of our life, and want justice for all human beings who abide in our land."

Let every American do what you, our law enforcement officers, do every day: Keep our commitment to justice, to our fellow citizens, and to our country. And, when we all keep that commitment, we will keep the promise we call America.

Tony Silva
Cynthia Silva -- Widow
Raymond Silva -- Son

Tony was a Deputy Sheriff from Denver, CO. During this time, he worked at the Denver City Jail, where his work with the inmates was well-regarded. On February 3, 1993, Tony was accidentally shot by his partner and died almost instantly. Tony's son, Raymond, wrote a letter to the President requesting the opportunity to present the President with a poster of him and his father.

Stephen Faulkner
Mary Faulkner -- Widow
Nathaniel Faulkner -- Son
Nicholas Faulkner -- Son

Stephen was an officer working for the Kansas City Police Department. He was killed in a helicopter accident in 1992. NOTE: he had been recognized in last year's memorial service. Since Stephen's accident, his wife and sons have been covered by COBRA; however, they will be uninsured in 18 months. This is a constant worry for the Faulkners, as one of the children has a pre-existing condition which had forced Mary Faulkner to quit her job. Mary Faulkner met and spoke briefly with the President during his town hall meeting in Kansas City. He was the first person to actually listen to her story.

Dear Fellow Citizen,

If the politicians' quotes on the front of this envelope don't convince you that they are after your gun, then this will:

1. There is a bill before Congress right now which would completely REPEAL the Second Amendment -- you will have to turn in your gun.
2. There is another bill before Congress right now which would SLAM certain popular types of ammunition with a 1000-percent federal tax.
3. There are more anti-gun politicians in power than ever before and they all want one thing...YOUR GUN!

For your information, I've sent you a copy of the bill that would repeal the Second Amendment so that you could see this threat with your own eyes.

Before time runs out, please cross through this document to show me that you're joining the National Association of Chiefs of Police in our noble mission to support officers nationwide...

...our patriotic struggle to protect the rights the Founding Fathers gave you...

...and our worthy cause to stop the anti-gun radicals before they disarm law-abiding citizens like us and leave only the criminals armed and dangerous.

Because that's what's really at stake here, my friend.

As a public service to you, I've sent you a copy of H.J.Res. 81, the bill that would take away your gun.

Please cross through it and return it to me at once to show me that you'll fight to keep your gun. Thank you. 1

Bill Clinton and other anti-gun politicians want YOUR guns, and they don't care what they have to do to get them.

They're trying to amend the Constitution to take away your right to even own a gun.

If you're a hunter, they want your rifle. Even if it was one given to you by your father.

If you have a handgun for personal protection, they want your gun, too.

You see, in Bill Clinton's America, the government will decide who has the "privilege" -- not right -- of owning a gun.

And guess what, it won't be you.

If you're a collector or target shooter, they want your guns as well.

As President Clinton said on March 11, 1993, "We can't be so fixated on our desire to preserve the rights of ordinary Americans to legitimately own handguns and rifles."

Bill Clinton will not fight for your rights...you have to stand up and defend yourself now.

The National Association of Chiefs of Police knows where the real crime problem is in America today.

It's in our broken criminal justice system that lets violent offenders out of jails after only a fraction of their terms are served to prey on innocent citizens again.

We need more prisons, not more gun control laws.

America needs more prosecutors, not more gun taxes. And America needs more leaders who will defend your Constitutional rights...

...not "criminal-rights" bleeding-heart liberals who care more about winning votes than about protecting you.

Florida State University professor Gary Kleck estimates that 1,200,000 Americans stop criminal attacks with privately owned firearms every year.

That's the kind of law-enforcement that your police support.

How many of those 1,200,000 people will lose their lives if the anti-gun lobby wins this battle?

How many innocent people will die, how many homes and businesses will be burglarized, how many mothers, sisters and daughters will be raped...

...as a direct result of Bill Clinton's blind crusade to take your gun away?

Violent crime will skyrocket, putting even more demands on your overworked police force, meaning less security for you.

Criminals will be the only ones who have guns.

You will LOSE your right to defend yourself or your family.

You will LOSE your right to hunt.

You will LOSE your right to own a gun.

You will LOSE one of your basic rights as an American.

Are you OUTRAGED at this attack on your rights?

Are you ANGRY that the politicians care more about criminals than they do about you?

Are you FRUSTRATED that they can simply repeal the Second Amendment against your wishes?

If so, then I need you to stand with me and fight back today. I need you to join the National Association of Chiefs of Police and our nationwide grassroots action movement to protect your gun-owning rights.

NACOP is made up of thousands of Americans and law enforcement officials who believe that we need to get tough on criminals, not law-abiding gun owners.

We believe that we need to keep violent murderers, rapists and robbers behind bars...

...not take away privately owned guns.

And we believe that if the politicians in Washington win, the criminals will take over our streets.

You and I can't let that happen.

I need your help today to make history.

Please cross through the copy of H.J.Res. 81 that I sent you today to inform you about this crisis.

Then, send it back to me today with your generous battle contribution of $25, $35, $50 or $100 today.

You and I must fight for our rights. We must fight to protect our families from criminal predators.

And we must fight for the rights of future Americans.

It is a noble mission, a patriotic struggle and worthy cause all rolled into one. And I pray that you will join us today with your generous $25, $35, $50 or $100 donation.

Thank you, God bless you, and please let me hear back from you as soon as possible. There's no time to waste.

Sincerely,

Gerald Arenberg
Executive Vice President

P.S. The President of the United States...the Director of the FBI...members of Congress...they're all joining forces to take away YOUR GUN. You must act now to stop them! Please rush your generous support to NACOP now. Thank you.

MEMORANDUM FOR VICKY RADD

From: Steve Hilton
Chris Lin

Subject: Attached -- Kate McDonald O'Malley

Last week, we received the attached letter of endorsement from the Fraternal Order of Police (FOP) in support of Kate O'Malley's appointment to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Sixth District.

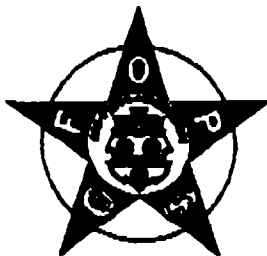

The FOP represents the largest number of rank and file police officers throughout the country (approximately 250,000). Despite the fact that they did not endorse the President during the campaign, the FOP has since shown strong support for the President's initiatives, and have repeatedly indicated that they recognize their error and that they want to work more closely with the Administration. To that end, The FOP made extraordinary efforts both in the field and on the Hill, to help pass H.R. 4296-- the assault weapons ban-- and will continue to work hard on the Administration's behalf to pass the Crime Bill. In May, the President sent a strong signal of the FOP's importance to us by participating at the 13th Annual Peace Officers Memorial Service sponsored by the FOP.

In an effort to maintain positive relations with the FOP, we need to keep them apprised on the status of issues such as these. Please let us know where this nomination is so that we can respond to this group.

Thank you for your attention to this matter.

NATIONAL PRESIDENT

June 14, 1994

The Honorable William J. Clinton
President of the United States
1600 Pennsylvania Avenue
Washington, D.C. 20500-2000

Dear Mr. President:

Sir, as National President of the Fraternal Order of Police it is with great pride and pleasure I write to recommend Kathleen (Kate) McDonald O'Malley for appointment to the United States Court of Appeals for the sixth district.

Mr. President this is, of course, a very serious appointment and can affect the everyday working law enforcement officer and citizen within the sixth district and one in which I work and live. Upon discussing Kate's possible appointment with several in the law enforcement field including my local lodge representative Mike Taylor, I can say without reservation based upon their input and Kate's background and performances as a trial lawyer with one of the most prestigious law firms in Columbus, Ohio and the state of Ohio Porter, Wright, Morris & Arthur; her past experience as a Federal law clerk; the job she has done for Ohio Attorney General Lee Fisher (a mutual friend of ours) and now as his Chief of State and first assistant prior to her promotion. I can think of no other choice for this position.

Mr. President, Kate is one who is not afraid of sacrifice as she did when she left a secure and prestigious private practice to come to work for our Attorney General and performs public service, she's done so willingly and with great enthusiasm. And as one of her responsibilities as Chief of State for Attorney General of the State of Ohio has been working with law enforcement on legal as well as legislative matters.

Mr. President, I believe you could not make a better appointment to the federal bench than Kate O'Malley. Kate will be a credit to the bench and an appointment, Mr. President, for years to come that you shall remain proud to have made for all the right reasons. We the National Fraternal Order of Police; State Lodge and Sheriff Organizations of Ohio strongly support and recommend Kate O'Malley for United States Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit.

Sincerely,

Dewey R. Stokes
National President
Fraternal Order of Police
