THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

September 4, 1997

MEMORANDUM

TO: MELANNE VERVEER, DEPUTY ASSISTANT TO THE PRESIDENT AND DEPUTY CHIEF OF STAFF TO THE FIRST LADY

FROM: BETTY C. MONKMAN, CURATOR

SUBJECT: Native American Sculpture Exhibition

The exhibition "Twentieth Century Sculpture at the White House: Honoring Native America" will be installed on September 22 and 23 in the Jacqueline Kennedy Garden.

Since November is Native American Month, I suggest that some event be held during November for the lending institutions, artists and others in the Native American community. Having an event shortly after the exhibition is installed would assist in informing people that the exhibition is on view here at the White House.

cc: Barbie Greene

OFFICE OF THE CURATOR

The White House curatorial office holds as its prime concern the care and preservation of the historic and artistic contents of the Executive Residence. As the home of the highest elective officer of the United States, the White House has been intimately associated with the official and personal lives of Presidents of the United States and their families. Congressional legislation and Executive Orders have fixed certain responsibilities relative to the care, preservation and interpretation of the White House, and it is these charges that the Office of the Curator endeavors to implement and carry out.

1. REPORTS TO THE PRESIDENT AND FIRST LADY ON MATTERS RELATING TO THE HISTORY OF THE WHITE HOUSE AND ITS COLLECTIONS.

The office provides assistance to the President and First Lady regarding the furnishings of their living and office areas and seeks paintings and other art work for these spaces as requested. The Curator serves as the liaison between the First Lady and her staff and the Committee for the Preservation of the White House.

2. WORKS CLOSELY WITH THE COMMITTEE FOR THE PRESERVATION OF THE WHITE HOUSE TO PRESERVE AND INTERPRET THE MUSEUM CHARACTER OF THE PUBLIC ROOMS

The office brings matters relating to the public areas of the White House to the attention of the Committee for the Preservation of the White House for consideration and review.

3. RESPONSIBLE FOR THE CARE, PRESERVATION AND MANAGEMENT OF AN HISTORIC COLLECTION OF MORE THAN 30,000 OBJECTS

The office is the focal White House unit for all acquisitions for the permanent White House collection. It reviews and consults with the Committee for the Preservation of the White House on all acquisition matters and keeps records, including photographs, of every object in the collection according to the standards of the museum profession. It conducts research on objects and provides for the proper care and storage of the collection as well as overseeing the conservation of objects as needed.

Inventories of White House rooms dating from the first inventory of 1801 to the annual inventories of the 20th century are available to researchers. The Curator's Office and the National Park Service conduct an annual inventory.

4. RESEARCH CENTER AND REPOSITORY FOR WHITE HOUSE HISTORY

The office creates and maintains extensive records relating to the social and architectural history of the White House, including accounts of White House events during each administration, documentation of the architectural and decorative changes to the building and its rooms, a history of each room from the period of its first occupants and a detailed history of the White House grounds.

The photographic files are extensive. They include interior and exterior views of the White House from the 1840s to the present. A large print collection documents the building and events in the 19th century.

An extensive research library includes books dealing with the history of the White House, its grounds, the city of Washington, D. C., the Presidents and First Ladies and the fine and decorative arts. Over 500 periodicals relating to White House history are also in the library.

The library has holdings of videotapes and film footage pertaining to the White House and its occupants from the late 19th century to the present.

5. INTERPRETS THE WHITE HOUSE AND ITS COLLECTIONS

The office works closely with the White House Historical Association on the publication of its books relating to the White House and with the Association and the National Park Service on the production of other interpretative materials. It also reviews books and articles for historical accuracy which are published by other institutions and provides historical information to the White House staff, historians, curators, writers, the press and the general public.

All exhibits seen during White House tours are created by the curatorial staff. It also coordinates all loans of White House objects to the Smithsonian Institution and presidential libraries and sites as well as loans of paintings from museums for the First Family.

Members of the staff conduct detailed White House tours for special guests and museum groups and lecture to historical and museum groups throughout the country.

The staff prepares room guides and other training materials for the White House tour guides.

What My Grandmother Taught Me

Essay Contest for 9th, 10th, 11th and 12th Grade Students

"What My Grandmother Taught Me" is an essay contest sponsored by Mobil Corporation that is open to all 9th, 10th, 11th and 12th grade students at District of Columbia Public Schools. Students are invited to submit an essay of no more than 500 words that describes the valuable lessons they have learned from their grandmothers.

Grandmothers honored in the essays may be actual grandmothers but may also be other individuals such as a grandfather or other relative, a family friend, neighbor or "adoptive" grandparent whose wisdom and caring have had a positive influence in the student's life. Students may describe a grandmother or other individual who is now deceased but whose care and teaching continue to influence the student's life.

Deadline: October 28, 1997

Contest deadline is October 28, 1997. Essays will be reviewed by a panel of English teachers from the school district under the direction of Jennifer Gibbs-Phillips, Director of Technical Support and Training, State Education and Community Relations.

Prizes:

Mobil Corporation will send a certificate of honor to each grandmother described in the essays submitted. Students will need to include the name and address of their grandmother in their essay submission.

From the essays submitted, the panel will select 25 winning essays. Winning students and their grandmothers will be honored at a luncheon hosted by Mobil Corporation at the Museum of Women in the Arts on Thursday, November 20.

As part of their prize, winning students and their guests will tour an exhibition of American Indian Pottery and Weaving entitled "Legacy of Generations" and "Woven by Grandmothers" and have an opportunity to speak with one of the artists in the exhibition. At the luncheon, the artist will share her own history of "things my grandmother taught me." Students will be individually recognized with the grandmothers and each student will receive an engraved pen and leather journal. Grandmothers will receive a plaque recognizing their contribution.

What My Grandmother Taught Me

Essay Contest

How to submit an essay:

Student's essay must describe valuable lesson(s) learned from a grandmother, grandfather or other relative, family friend, neighbor or "adoptive" grandparent.

Essays must be 500 words or less.

Essays must be double-spaced and can be typed or printed clearly.

Essay must include the student's name and grade, teacher's name and junior or senior high school.

Essays should include the name and mailing address of the individual honored in the essay. (This is to enable Mobil Corporation to mail a certification of honor to each individual honored in the contest.)

Essay must be received by October 28, 1997 and should be sent to Mrs. Jennifer Gibbs-Phillips, Rabaut Administrative Unit, North Dakota and Kansas Aves. NW, Room 221, Washington, DC 20011.

Announcement of Winning Essays:

Winning students will be notified in a letter to the principal, the week of November 3.

The luncheon honoring the winning students and their grandmothers will take place on Thursday, November 20 at the Museum of Women in the Arts.

Transportation from the school location will be provided for students and their grandmothers.

will arrive at the Southwest gate at 8:15 am, Friday, October 17. They are expecting to meet you at the gate at that time.

Your meeting is schedule for 8:15 am in the Ward room at the Mess with Betty Monkman, Ellen, Lynn, Kim, and hopefully Capricia and Scoop.

Also, I spoke w/ Mike King about Chad Wick from RISE. You should have a follow-up conversation with Jen about whether they will hold P&G's slot and if so, perhaps you want to call P&G and ask them if they want to give it to Mr. Wick, if in fact they only have one slot.

In case you need to get in touch with me, my number at my grandmother's is

P6/(b)(6)

Have a good weekend and I'll see you on Monday.
