Subject: Interagency Working Group for the President's New Markets Tour

Thank you for agreeing to help coordinate local efforts and activities for each of the stops that the President will be making on the New Markets Tour, the week of July 5th. The purpose of this message is to outline some of the tasks that each interagency sub group you should be completing this week.

Also please note that the dates for travel to each city released this weekend to the Press were not entirely accurate. As you speak with individuals on the ground, please do not indicate what city will be visited on any specific dates other than the week of July 5th. We will send you a confirmed itinerary later today.

Per our discussion at last week's meeting, I have included in this e-mail a list of phone numbers for key contacts at each agency.

The following is a list of each site, the agencies that should be involved in planning for each site and the key coordinator for each stop. You will get a separate e-mail later today with information on a meeting with the full interagency group tentatively scheduled for tomorrow afternoon.

Site	Agencies Involved/Subgroup	Key Coordinator

Los Angeles	Labor/Transportation/HUD	Steve Heyman
Anaheim	Commerce/Labor	Jon Orszag
East St. Louis	HUD	Jacquie Lawing
Kentucky Highlands, KY	Treasury-CDFI/HUD/SBA Transportation/USDA/Labor	Michael Barr

Tasks that each subgroup should be working on for now include:

- Creating a written "Tick-Tock" schedule for the full afternoon or morning's activities (including specifics on address/location, key people for advance to contact once they are on ground, outline of type of activity - speech versus roundtable versus plant tour as examples, name and involvement of other participants in the activity planned, etc.). Draft to be completed by tomorrow and faxed to NEC.

- Coordinating conference calls or meetings as appropriate with all of the agencies involved to get input and ideas for the "Tick-Tock" schedule.
- Assigning a single key contact from the team for communication with businesses and non-profit organization that we may work with on the ground.
- Identifying agency staff who will work White House advance on the ground.
- Coordinating any corporate involvement at specific sites with Jay Dunn in OPL.

We will talk more about the coordination of agency plans for the tour on today's cabinet affairs call scheduled for 4:00.

I will be in touch with all of the key coordinators today if you have any questions about this e-mail or the Tour in general. Thank you for all of your assistance and look forward to seeing everyone tomorrow.

Based largely on our conversations at the New Markets meeting this past Tuesday, we've put together an initial list of potential sources from which data on new markets and inner cities could be drawn (attached). We welcome your comments on the list and any additions/modifications to the list. We've flagged the Consumer Expenditure survey (Treasury) and the Economic Census (HUD) as two sources that have been targeted for information in advance of the POTUS trip in early July.

We hope this serves as a starting point for future discussions among this working group on New Markets research. Thanks -

Legislative Outreach Plan for New Markets Trip – DRAFT

GOAL

We need to reach out to members of Congress shortly to invite them to participate in part of the New Markets trip on July 6-8. Obviously, how we interact with members regarding the trip will impact how some of them deal with us on the legislative front.

One issue we need to resolve is whether we can begin calling the members before we have made the final selections on where we will be going on the trip (this is a concern that Legislative Affairs has raised). One solution may be simply to hold off on making initial calls to those members who have requested that we visit their districts or states – that will allow us to move ahead beginning early next week.

Below is a draft list of priority calls that need to be made over the June 7-18 timeframe. These calls should be made by Stein, Sperling, Echaveste, and others as recommended by Legislative Affairs and the NEC.

NEXT STEPS

- Review list of members of Congress and add those who are missing on Thursday, June 3
- Assign calls to key principals or staff on Friday, June 4
- NEC and Legislative Affairs draft talking points on Friday, June 4
- Begin making these calls on Monday, June 7

PROPOSED PLAN FOR THE NEW MARKETS TOUR

Week of July 5-9, 1999

MEETINGS

To prepare for the New Markets tour in early July, the NEC will hold substantive working group meetings two times per week where the focus will be on potential deliverables for the entire New Market tour (see section 1 below).

Streett and Kaplan will call meetings at least once per week to cover logistical and scheduling issues, such as sites and locations and who will be participating on the trip (see sections 2 and 3 below). Obviously, locations will often be driven by the deliverables we are announcing.

Maria will call organizational meetings to focus on the overall trip.

PREPARING FOR THE TRIP

The three main issues to be addressed are: (1) deliverables – what we announce; (2) locations – where we go; and (3) participants – who comes with us.

1. Policy Deliverables for the Trip. To determine what we want to highlight and announce on the trip, we will divide up into substantive teams, follow up with CEOs, and reach out to non-profit development groups. In doing so, we will need to focus on geographical diversity to ensure that we have deliverables for rural areas, inner cities, and Native American reservations (we should specifically look at areas such as Appalachia and the Mississippi Delta).

New Markets Interagency Working Group. The ongoing New Markets Interagency Working Group needs to work on the substantive component of the July trip. We will divide up into teams that will each work on concrete deliverables.

- CDFI Team. Led by Michael Barr, this team will look at possible expansions of current CDFIs or new activities they have in their pipeline. This team will also coordinate with the CEO team (see below) when it works with CDFIs to determine where major private financial institutions are making significant investments.
- SBIC and New Markets Investment Companies Team. Led by SBA, this team will work on announcements related to LMI (low- and moderate-income) SBICs, and any new investments in underserved areas by SBICs and existing Community Development Venture Capital firms (such as Kentucky Highlands and Minnesota Investment Network).

- EZ/EC Team. HUD – working closely with CEB – will lead the effort to find new announcements that are in the pipeline in the 105 EZ/ECs. They will coordinate this effort with the other policy teams (e.g., with the CDFI team if a new CDFI is being created in an EZ). The EZ/EC team will also work closely with the CEO team (see below) on significant new investments, loans, or mentoring that companies are undertaking.
- Microenterprise Team. This team will focus on any new lending or technical assistance programs, e.g. the PRIME program, particularly if legislation is passed by the time of the trip. Also, there may be existing microlending initiatives where an expansion or new programs could be announced.
- BusinessLINC Team. This team would be led by SBA and/or Treasury and will focus on innovative partnerships that could be announced as part of the BusinessLINC program. This group would also work closely with the CEO team.
- Research Team. This group will work on policy papers or reports that could be issued during the trip (e.g., the HUD report the Department wants to release; the State of the Cities report). This group could also work with other organizations (e.g., Porter’s Initiative for Competitive Inner Cities) to identify what data is available for us to use in conjunction with other deliverables. The research team could also gather information on activities certain states are supporting, such as venture capital initiatives. We could also shine a spotlight on the need for data around the issue of untapped potential in these markets.
- Workforce Team. Several of the CEOs who participated in the roundtable with the President commented on workforce and training efforts, so we may want to work with Labor on, for example, a Youth Opportunities angle.
- Overall Agency Activities. Working with the relevant agencies, Cabinet Affairs and the NEC will begin to compile a list of upcoming agency announcements, some of which could be incorporated into the trip. For example, HUD plans to announce a Brownfields EDI grant program in August.
- CEO Team. Led by Cheri Carter, this team will work in an integrated fashion with the policy teams listed above and reach out to CEOs in a coordinated manner. For starters, we should send out individualized follow-up letters from Sperling to the CEOs who participated in the May 11 roundtable, thanking them and raising specific ideas for the July trip. In addition, Sandy Weill may want to send a letter to a broader group of CEOs to ask for their involvement in the effort. The team should focus on several fronts:

Retail. The CEO team will need to identify large retail operations that may be interested in making new investments or announcing major developments.

Financial Institutions. On this front, the CEO team will need to work closely with the CDFI team and SBIC team.

Manufacturing Companies. The team will need to look at opportunities to announce plant locations or major investments in plant and equipment in underserved markets. Also, we should find companies that are doing Welfare-to-Work initiatives that we could highlight.

Large Service Companies (i.e., insurance). The team could look at programs that companies use to target underserved markets and create sales forces that work specifically in underserved markets. Perhaps some companies would be able to announce an expansion of existing programs.

- Non-Profit Team. We should think through what role large nonprofits could play on the trip. For example, Enterprise has apparently been working with the Wall Street Project, and they are also planning a 100,000th home event which they are trying to get the VP to attend – perhaps we could incorporate this event into the July tour. LISC could also have a real role. There are also major universities and faith-based organizations that are working with large companies on economic development projects. This group would be responsible for coordinating any announcements around these types of activities.

2. Locations to Visit. Obviously, where we go will be driven by what the various New Markets Interagency Working Group policy teams, the CEO team, and the non-profit team come up with for deliverables. In addition, however, we should draft a parallel list of possible locations to visit, with a particular focus on political factors. Cutler will work with Political Affairs, Intergovernmental, Public Liaison, and Legislative Affairs to develop this list.

3. Participants. We will need to begin to compile a list of outside leaders, members of Congress, senior Administration officials, and others to attend part or all of the trip with the President.

Outside participation. OPL, Political Affairs, and Intergovernmental should begin making a preliminary draft list of individuals who might want to participate. It should be bipartisan, ranging from Rev. Jackson to Jack Kemp.

Congressional participation. Legislative Affairs should similarly draft a bipartisan list of members who may want to participate. Clearly, where we decide to travel will impact this list, but we should also try to include Speaker Hastert, J.C. Watts, and other Republicans in the mix.

Administration participation: We need to think through how the Vice President, First Lady, and Cabinet will be involved in the trip.

- Vice President's role. Should he travel with POTUS for the entire three days, like the bus trips of the 1992 campaign, or make separate visits to different sites? Should he accompany for just a portion?
- First Lady's participation. Should we construct a distinct role in the July trip? One option is to hold a day or half-day when the focus is on microlending.
- Cabinet rollout. Who should accompany and when? Should we have separate travel? Should it follow the trip for several days?

COMMUNICATIONS PLAN

Led by Siewert and others, the Communications team will start now to lay the groundwork for this trip in the press. For example, to ward off misguided criticism that we waited six years to pay attention to this matter, we need to have Sec. Cuomo, Sec. Rubin, or Sperling submit an op-ed laying out our record of achievement in economic development and spelling out all that remains to be done.

LOGISTICS

Scheduling will try to assign an advance lead to this trip as soon as they are able.

The NEC will try to pull in one or two people to focus full-time on the deliverables aspect of the trip as well.

Administration participation: We need to think through how the Vice President, First Lady, and Cabinet will be involved in the trip.

- Vice President's role. Should he travel with POTUS for the entire three days, like the bus trips of the 1992 campaign, or make separate visits to different sites? Should he accompany for just a portion?
- First Lady's participation. Should we construct a distinct role in the July trip? One option is to hold a day or half-day when the focus is on microlending.
- Cabinet rollout. Who should accompany and when? Should we have separate travel? Should it follow the trip for several days?

COMMUNICATIONS PLAN

Led by Siewert and others, the Communications team will start now to lay the groundwork for this trip in the press. For example, to ward off misguided criticism that we waited six years to pay attention to this matter, we need to have Sec. Cuomo, Sec. Rubin, or Sperling submit an op-ed laying out our record of achievement in economic development and spelling out all that remains to be done.

LOGISTICS

Scheduling will try to assign an advance lead to this trip as soon as they are able.

The NEC will try to pull in one or two people to focus full-time on the deliverables aspect of the trip as well.
