

Don't stop now....

This book is intended as a catalyst. Read it, write all over it, stick notes on it. And then add your thoughts to the discussion...

What do you like about these Ideas in Development?

Which do not work for you, and how can they be improved?

Use the authors' e-mail addresses —at the end of each article—to contact them directly. Use our website to share your ideas more widely. Work with us to develop a vision of how an inclusive economy might look—and how to get there.

There is much to do.

Hi,

This conference is focused on generating new ideas for economic development, so I thought you might be interested. I'll probably go to some of it.

>Background: CFED at 20 - Growing Assets, Expanding Opportunity

>The theme "Growing Assets, Expanding Opportunity" unifies CFED's activities >and thoughts in this anniversary year. Our goal is to create a dynamic and >inclusive economy where everyone has the opportunity to live in hope and >with dignity. This means the opportunity to earn a family wage, run a >everyone has the right and the responsibility to participate in the economy.

>It seeks not only to meet the demands of Wall Street, but also to promote >equity and sustainability on Main Street.

>The people and communities who are experimenting with new ways to tackle >these issues inspire our daily work. Ingenuity and innovation are >widespread. Solutions recast the respective roles and responsibilities of >government, the private sector, and nonprofit organizations. The challenge >for the coming century is to harness this energy to support public policies, >institutions, and development practices that move us toward an inclusive >economy, and away from disparity and disharmony. A fresh vision for economic >development will help us bring together, in new and effective ways, community >practice, public policy, and private markets.
