RE: Six month plan for promoting the Millennium Communities program

In an effort to promote the Millennium Communities program we have:

- Included an ad in the December Washington Report informing readers of the upcoming opportunity to become a Millennium Community.
- Included an article with Millennium Community guidelines in our February Washington Report.

We will continue promoting Millennium Communities by:

- Creating a Millennium Communities button on our website with pertinent information and relevant links.
- Continuing to place reminders and relevant articles, including examples of what communities are doing, in our monthly Washington Report and Small Community Quarterly.
- Promoting the Millennium Communities program with the NATaT and NCSC Board of Directors at their February Board meeting.
- Bringing Millennium Handbooks and promotional material to State Associations of Towns annual meetings.
Pennsylvania: April 11-14, 1999
Indiana: July 21-24, 1999
Ohio: August 4-7, 1999
- Making sure our State Associations have all of the necessary materials to promote the program including handbooks and applications and encourage them to place articles in their monthly magazines.
- Use our Annual Conference September 8-10, 1999 to promote Millennium Communities projects.

KANSAS CITY'S 150TH ANNIVERSARY FEATURED BY WHITE HOUSE MILLENNIUM COUNCIL

KC150 Plans Included in Just-Released Handbook

KANSAS CITY, MO— Kansas City's sesquicentennial celebration, known as KC150, is featured in the White House Millennium Communities Handbook as an example of what communities across the country are doing to celebrate the millennium. The White House Millennium Council was created to encourage the participation of every American in the commemoration and celebration of the dawn of the new century.

The theme of the national millennium program is "Honor the Past – Imagine the Future," and activities planned for Kansas City's 150th anniversary are a perfect complement to this theme. "Our celebration of KC150 includes the encouragement of a great deal of grassroots activity in the Kansas City metropolitan area. KC150 was designed, in part, to serve as a catalyst for significant citizen involvement in a wide variety of civic and community improvement projects," says Jan Burmeister, KC150 project director.

KC150 is a metropolitan-wide effort that will involve not only major single events attended by hundreds of thousands of citizens but literally hundreds of mini-events and projects initiated by neighborhood groups, organizations, and others involved in celebrating and remembering our heritage. The goal is to instill new pride in the citizens of our area and create a legacy that lasts beyond the actual celebration date of June 3, 2000.

The acknowledgment of Kansas City's plans for its sesquicentennial by the White House Millennium Council is significant recognition of the efforts being put forth to improve the entire Kansas City metropolitan area and celebrate an important milestone in the city's history.

First Lady Announces Millennium Communities Program

New Initiative to Recognize and Stimulate Local Millennium Programs and Celebrations in Cities and Towns Through the Nation

Washington, D.C. -- In an address to the U.S. Conference of Mayors Annual Winter Meeting in Washington, D.C. today, First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton called on the mayors and other leaders to harness the millennial spirit as a force for positive change in every community across the country.

Building upon the President's invitation to all American citizens in his January 19 State of the Union address, Mrs. Clinton outlined the Millennium Communities Program, a new initiative developed by the White House Millennium Council to make America's celebration of the millennium both memorable and meaningful. "This program gives us an opportunity to unite our communities through local projects that preserve our historical and cultural legacy and prepare citizens -- particularly youth -- for the 21st century," the First Lady said.

The Millennium Communities Program is a national noncompetitive program designed to recognize communities that undertake projects and activities that are consistent with the national theme, "Honor the Past - Imagine the Future." The program is a partnership of the White House Millennium Council, the National Association of Counties, the National Association of Towns and Townships, National League of Cities, U.S. Conference of Mayors and the Bureau of Indian Affairs, with support from BellSouth Corporation, a national corporate sponsor.

Designated Millennium Communities will be awarded use of the national millennium logo and motto to identify community projects and events as part of the national millennium observance. They will be able to register their projects and events on a Millennium Communities web site designed to allow the sharing of ideas and will also be honored by recognition events and designation ceremonies.

Cities, counties, towns, townships and tribal governments/villages are eligible for the Millennium Community designation. Elected officials and tribal leaders should apply on behalf of their community to their respective associations. The association or Bureau of Indian Affairs will evaluate their plans to commemorate the millennium and recommend the official designation to the White House Millennium Council.

Mrs. Clinton introduced two tools to help communities get started: the Millennium Communities Handbook developed by the White House Millennium Council, and an interactive web page created by BellSouth Corporation. The Handbook offers ideas from communities that have millennium programs or plans underway as well as national White House Millennium Council programs that communities can participate in or replicate at the local level. The web page will allow communities to share ideas and projects, provide suggestions and recognize communities that earned the Millennium Community designation.

The White House Millennium Council was established by President Clinton and the First Lady in August 1997 to use the widespread interest in the millennium as a force for positive change and to unite citizens behind projects that preserve our historical and cultural legacy, celebrate American achievement, and increase participation in civic life. National program initiatives underway include Save America's Treasures, Millennium Trails, and the Mars Millennium Project. The White House Millennium Council also sponsors Millennium Evenings at the White House, a series of lectures and cultural showcases that highlight creativity and inventiveness through ideas, art and scientific discovery.

FACT SHEET

PROGRAM DESCRIPTION

The Millennium Communities Program is a national, noncompetitive initiative designed by the White House Millennium Council, in collaboration with major national intergovernmental organizations and the Bureau of Indian Affairs, to recognize communities across the country which are bringing citizens together to celebrate the millennium by paying tribute to the ideals and creativity that have shaped the past and by preparing their citizens -- especially children -- for the 21st century.

Criteria for designation as a Millennium Community include:

- Formation of a committee to plan and organize community-enhancing millennium celebration events and programs
- Inclusion in the planning process of people and organizations that are broadly representative of the community
- Consistency of programs and events with the national millennium theme, "Honor the Past -- Imagine the Future"
- Application submission and approval through one of the program's organizational partners

MILLENNIUM COMMUNITIES PARTNERS

The White House Millennium Council
U.S. Conference of Mayors
National League of Cities
National Association of Counties
National Association of Towns and Townships
Bureau of Indian Affairs

APPLICATION PROCESS

Applications can be obtained from any of the Millennium Communities partners, or from the White House Millennium Communities website at <http://www.millenniumcommunities.org>. Applications can be filled out and electronically submitted through this website.

Any individual or group can be the catalyst for a community application. Simply design a project in keeping with the criteria above and contact your local elected official -- your mayor, county commission, selectman or tribal leader -- to encourage them to apply.

Applications must be signed and endorsed by the chief local elected official representing the community, and should be sent to the appropriate partner organization for review. Applications from governors will be reviewed by the White House Millennium Council.

TIMELINE	Communities will be eligible for the program throughout 1999 and 2000.
RECOGNITION BENEFITS	Cities, towns, counties, states, and tribal reservations which are designated Millennium Communities will receive the following: • Award of the official designation “Millennium Community” • Use of and identification with the national millennium logo and motto: “Honor the Past -- Imagine the Future” • Registry of local projects on the national Millennium Communities website • Certificate of recognition signed by the President and First Lady • Invitation to participate in recognition events hosted by the President and First Lady
WEBSITE	Designated Millennium Communities will be registered on the Millennium Communities website at < http://www.millenniumcommunities.org >. The website will profile each community’s millennium projects and events.
HANDBOOK	The Millennium Communities Handbook describes the program in greater detail and offers sample projects which are consistent with the national millennium theme. The handbook is available by writing to any of the Millennium Community Partners, or on the Internet at the Millennium Communities website at < http://www.millenniumcommunities.org >.
WHITE HOUSE MILLENNIUM COUNCIL PROGRAM	The Millennium Communities Program is one of several initiatives developed by the White House Millennium Council to unite the nation as it celebrates the next millennium. Other programs include: • Save America’s Treasures • Millennium Evenings at the White House • Millennium Trails • Mars Millennium Project • My History is America’s History • International Projects

WHITE HOUSE MILLENNIUM COUNCIL

QUOTES FROM MILLENNIUM COMMUNITIES PARTNERS

"The Millennium Communities program provides us the opportunity to not only take a look at how far communities have come, but also to examine how we will meet our future challenges. The nation's mayors welcome this partnership with the President and First Lady to recognize communities' participation in the Millennium."

Deedee Corradini

Mayor of Salt Lake City, Utah

President, United States Conference of Mayors

"The National League of Cities encourages all municipalities, large and small, to participate in the Millennium Communities program. It is a great way to connect with citizens, share success stories, commemorate local history, and prepare your community for the challenges of the 21st century."

Clarence E. Anthony

Mayor of South Bay, Florida

President, National League of Cities

"The Millennium Communities program is an excellent way to involve all of America in the celebration of the new century. County officials are eager to participate in the program because they know that the millennium offers a unique opportunity to reflect and preserve our rich history and to take steps to ensure a bright future. The National Association of Counties is proud to serve as a partner in the Millennium Communities program and will work hard to promote it nationwide."

Betty Lou Ward

Commissioner, Wake County, North Carolina

President, National Association of Counties

"The theme of the Millennium Communities program - 'Honor the Past -- Imagine the Future' - is especially meaningful to the nation's small communities. Few things are as valued as heritage in small towns, and in many, there is no challenge so great as the future."

Barbara Welty

President of the Board of Directors of the National Center for Small Communities and a member of the Board of Directors of the National Association of Towns and Townships

"The Bureau of Indian Affairs supports the participation of the 558 federally recognized Indian tribes in the Millennium Communities program because it will honor the contributions of our ancestors and strengthen our ties to the future."

Kevin Gover

Assistant Secretary - Indian Affairs, Department of the Interior

BELLSOUTH LAUNCHES WEBSITE FACILITATING NATIONWIDE WHITE HOUSE "MILLENNIUM COMMUNITIES" PROGRAM

WASHINGTON - BellSouth, provider of the premier Internet service in the Southeast, BellSouth.netSM, announced launch of an interactive Internet website supporting the Millennium Communities Program, a new White House Millennium Council national initiative which was announced today by First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton.

President and Mrs. Clinton created the Millennium Council in 1997 to give all Americans an opportunity to mark the millennium in meaningful activities that celebrate our democracy, strengthen communities and leave lasting gifts to the future.

"BellSouth is excited to be associated with the U.S. Conference of Mayors and all the other partners in this once in a millennium program," said Margaret Greene, BellSouth group president regulatory and external affairs.

Noting that BellSouth has been connecting individuals and communities for more than a century, Greene said, "we look forward to helping to connect the Americans who live, work and learn in the communities we serve -- both rural and urban, rich and poor -- not only to each other, but to the world." We are happy to "offer our expertise in online communications to make the program a success."

"The White House and BellSouth both understand the power of the Internet in helping to bring our nation closer together -- allowing communities to share their histories and their futures in a way that truly makes a positive impact on our society," said Ray Smets, president of BellSouth.net Inc. "The design and hosting of the Millennium Communities Program web site is a great example of how BellSouth enables customers to get the most out of the Internet."

Community leaders will be able to use the website at <http://www.millenniumcommunities.org> to seek recognition as a Millennium Community, search for examples of programs launched in similar communities and eventually post details of their own town or city's participation in this multi-year project.

The telephone industry volunteer organization, the Telephone Pioneers of America, and a citizen action group, the Alliance for Public Technology, are also part of the broad-based community supporting BellSouth's Associate Partnership in this initiative.

In addition to BellSouth and the U.S. Conference of Mayors, other partners in the Millennium Communities Program are the Federal Bureau of Indian Affairs, the National Association of Counties, the National League of Cities, and the National Association of Towns and Townships.

BellSouth is a $23 billion communications services company. It provides telecommunications, wireless communications, cable and digital TV, directory advertising and publishing, and Internet and data services to nearly 34 million customers in 19 countries worldwide.

WHITE HOUSE MILLENNIUM COUNCIL

Honor the Past—Imagine the Future

We stand at the convergence of a new century and the next millennium, a milestone in human history. People everywhere await its arrival with growing anticipation -- some are busy planning the greatest New Year's Eve party ever, while others warn of a coming apocalypse or at least a massive technological failure. But most regard the turn of the millennium as a time of great opportunity: to reflect on the past, assess the present, and make new commitments to the future.

The President and Mrs. Clinton created the White House Millennium Council in 1997 to give every American an opportunity to mark the millennium in meaningful activities that celebrate our democracy, strengthen communities and leave lasting "gifts to the future." The White House Millennium Council, in cooperation with local elected officials, will award "Millennium Community" designation to those cities, towns, counties and Native American tribes that take a leadership role in marking the new millennium.

Guided by the national theme -- "Honor the past-- Imagine the future" -- the White House Millennium Council works with federal agencies, state and local governments and private sector partners to develop collaborative projects and partnerships. The Millennium Council launched Save America's Treasures, a public-private partnership to preserve the nation's historic sites, documents and artifacts most in danger of deterioration. Through this program funds have been appropriated for the restoration of the Star-Spangled Banner, the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution, and already private donors have contributed over 30 million dollars for the restoration of these and other national treasures.

The Millennium Council also produces Millennium Evenings at the White House, a series of lectures and cultural showcases that highlight American creativity and inventiveness through our ideas, art and scientific discoveries. These programs present prominent scholars, scientists, artists and other visionary thinkers and are accessible to the public by satellite broadcast and cyberecast over the internet. With the cooperation of the Department of Transportation, the National Park Service and other agencies, the Council has created Millennium Trails, a national initiative that will create, extend or improve over 2,000 recreational, scenic and historic trails.

The White House Millennium Council is collaborating with the U.S. Department of Education, the National Endowment for the Arts and other partners to develop innovative programs that will prepare American students for the 21st century. The Mars Millennium Project draws upon the resources of the American space program and challenges students to design an ideal community on the planet Mars in the year 2030. My History is America's History, a collaboration with the National Endowment for the Humanities, will encourage students and their families to see their own stories as integral parts of the American past and to preserve documents, photographs and other artifacts.

While celebrating American achievements, the White House Millennium Council will also mark the international significance of the millennium and is cooperating with other national commissions to develop projects that emphasize preservation of cultural and natural resources, encourage tourism and the imaginative use of technology, and engage all the world's children in creating a positive vision for the future.

WHITE HOUSE MILLENNIUM COUNCIL

J A N U A R Y 1 9 9 9

SUGGESTED TALKING POINTS ON NEW YEAR'S EVE

These do not go much farther than what has appeared in print (W. Post and W. Times) already.

- A. Yes, the White House, the city and our partners are planning a grand New Year's Eve celebration to welcome the year 2000.
- B. The events, under the title of "America's Millennium," will be free and family-oriented.
- C. The celebration will be a cooperative effort of the White House Millennium Council; the National Park Service; the Smithsonian Institution; producers Quincy Jones and George Stevens; and Steven Spielberg; and with Mayor Anthony Williams and the city of Washington, DC.
- D. The events will be privately funded. The America's Millennium Leadership Committee, led by Terence McAuliffe and David W. Jones is privately raising support for these events.
- E. The City is an enthusiastic partner, working with private groups that promote the city as well as city agencies and institutions.
- F. The partners will be making a formal announcement, with more program details, soon.
- G. The basic elements of the New Year's events are several days of events that families can enjoy and a concert open to the public.
- H. Answer to specifics: more details will be available later -- goal is by July 4.
