Snapshots of Our Schools:

A State-by-State Profile of How America Must Build Better Schools

"All over America, our faculties are better than our facilities. You've got the problem of the trailers, and then you've got the problem in our cities of so many old school buildings that either can't be or haven't been modernized, so that you've got whole floors in some of these schools that are shut down, even though the schools are filled to the gills, because the schools cannot afford the cost of modernizing these old buildings. If we care about it, we need to put it beyond politics and put our children first and get this done."

President Bill Clinton, August 23, 2000
