SUMMARY

FROM: JONATHAN EDWARDS
DATE: 25 FEBRUARY 2000
RE: DC FUNDING OF CHARTER SCHOOLS

- 25 charter schools have been deprived (in significantly varying degrees) of funding due to the funding shortfall in the DC education budget.
- The total number of charter school students across the districts (for which funds have not been received) is estimated by the CFO's Office to exceed 600 students.
- The cost of fully funding the charter schools this year (according to the CFO's Office) somewhere between $3M and $7M. However, because of the amount of the Edison and Advantage schools, alone, the figure is probably closer to 7M.
- The Edison School was not funded for 150 SPED students and 60 regular students worth about $1.5M.
- The Arts & Technology Academy has not been funded for approximately 73 K-5 students and 50 Kindergarten students, worth close to 1M.
- The Arts & Technology Academy as not able to sufficiently prove residency for approximately 73 students (565K) and is at a risk of only receiving 12.% funding for its 50 Pre-Kindergarten students (400K).
- Despite the fact that about 11% of the students in the DC school system did not have the appropriate residency documents, no funds were withheld from the regular school system. The CFO's Office said doing so would have been an "unfair double whammy for the DC school system."

Course of Action: Additional funding needs to be provided to serve those DC families in all charter schools that have demonstrated residency. Currently, they are not being represented by DC tax dollars. Obviously a second possibility is that a supplemental Appropriations bill is passed worth an estimated 7 Million.
