Co-author of Social Security: The System That Works. Bernstein believes the doomsday scenario for Social Security is misleading and opposes privatization proposals. Bernstein, who served as a principal consultant to the National Commission on Social Security Reform and a delegate to the White House Conference on Aging, says the problems with funding the system could be easily fixed. His writings on issues facing the elderly have appeared in the Yale, Harvard and Columbia law reviews, and in popular media, such as Fortune. He also served as a consultant to NBC for its Peabody award-winning program, "Private Pensions: The Broken Promise."

He is also coeditor of The American Prospect--a liberal magazine about American politics and society, public policy, and ideas--which he founded in 1990 with columnist Robert Kuttner and Robert Reich. Through The American Prospect, he helped to organize the Electronic Policy Network and to create its "virtual" publication, Idea Central.

Professor Starr has written extensively on American society and public policy, particularly on health care. His book The Logic of Health-Care Reform (1992, reissued in a revised and expanded edition in 1994) laid out the case for a system of universal health insurance and managed competition. During 1993 Professor Starr worked at the White House on President Clinton's health plan. He is currently working on a book on the politics of information and the information age.

Rodolfo O. de la Garza

Vice President of Research at The Tomás Rivera Policy Institute, is Mike Hogg Professor of Community Affairs in the Department of Government at the University of Texas in Austin where he has taught since 1980. A native (b)(6) he completed his Ph.D. at the University of Arizona in 1972. [0017]

In 1991-92, Professor de la Garza was Visiting Professor in the Government Department and the John F. Kennedy School of Government of Harvard University. He has been recognized for distinguished teaching by The Colorado College in 1980 and by the College of Liberal Arts at the University of Texas in 1988.

A specialist on ethnic politics and the politics of Mexico, Professor de la Garza has recently been involved in an analysis of Latino political behavior that has resulted in a five volume series addressing that topic. This research was supported by the Ford, Rockefeller, Tinker, and Spencer Foundations.

In 1993, Professor de la Garza received the Lifetime Achievement Award of the Committee on the Status on Latinos in the Profession of the American Political Science Association.

Louis DeSipio

Latina/Latino Studies program

University of Illinois

510 East Chalmers Champaign, IL 61820 (217) 265-0370

Louis DeSipio received two grants from the Emma Lazarus Fund of the Open Society Institute in 1998. The first was to study Immigration and Naturalization Service processing of naturalization applications during period of high demand. The second was to study of the implementation of administrative reform on naturalization administration in Los Angeles County. With support from the Rosenberg Foundation, DeSipio was able to extend this second grant to focus on California as a whole. In 1998, he completed a Mellon Foundation financed study of political organizational structures of emerging U.S. Latino populations (Dominicans, Colombians, Salvadorans, and Guatemalans) in New York and Los Angeles. In 1999, DeSipio is serving as section chair on race, ethnicity, and gender politics at the Southwest Social Science Association Meetings. He also serves on the executive committee of the American Political Science Association Section on Race, Ethnicity and Politics and on the Western Political Science Association's Committee on the Status of Chicanos in the Profession.
