EMBARGOED

Serious reported crime in the United States declined three percent in 1996, the fifth annual decrease in a row, the Federal Bureau of Investigation announced today in releasing preliminary figures from its nationwide Uniform Crime Reporting Program.

The FBI said that the overall drop resulted from a seven-percent decline in violent crime and a three-percent decrease in property crime, compared to the previous year. The final figures for 1996 are expected to be available in the fall.

In the category of violent crime, murder showed the greatest decline--11 percent, followed by robbery at eight percent, aggravated assault at six percent, and forcible rape at three percent. Among property crimes, burglary and motor vehicle theft each registered a five-percent decrease, larceny-theft fell by two percent, and arson remained unchanged.

By region, the West recorded an eight-percent decrease in serious crime, the Northeast a seven-percent decline, and the Midwest a two-percent drop. Serious crime in the South increased two percent over last year's total. Violent crime fell nine percent in both the Northeast and the West, eight percent in the Midwest, and two percent in the South. Property crime totals dropped eight percent in the West, seven percent in the Northeast, and one percent in the Midwest. The South experienced a two-percent increase in property crime.

Cities in all population groups in the Nation reported declines in serious crime. The largest decrease--six percent--was reported by cities with populations over one million followed by a five-percent decrease in cities with populations ranging from 50,000 to 99,999. Rural counties showed a three-percent decline from the 1995 level, and suburban counties registered a two-percent drop.

The Crime Index total decreased in 1995 by one percent, with violent crime decreasing three percent and property crime less than one percent. The Crime Index total decreased in 1994 by one percent, with violent crime decreasing three percent and property crime decreasing one percent. In 1993, the Crime Index total decreased by two percent: violent crime decreased by less than one percent; and property crime decreased by two percent. In 1992, the Crime Index total decreased by three percent, violent crime increased by one percent, and property crime decreased by four percent.

The Uniform Crime Reporting Program is a nationwide, cooperative statistical effort of over 16,000 city, county, and state law enforcement agencies voluntarily reporting data on crimes brought to their attention.

The complete preliminary annual UNIFORM CRIME REPORT is available on the FBI's Internet site at <http://www.fbi.gov>

EMBARGOED

The number of Crime Index offenses reported to law enforcement agencies throughout the United States decreased 3 percent during 1996 when compared to the number of offenses reported in 1995. The violent crimes of murder, forcible rape, robbery, and aggravated assault decreased 7 percent while the property crimes of burglary, larceny-theft, and motor vehicle theft decreased 3 percent.

Quarterly Crime Index trends for 1995 and 1996, show a 2-percent decrease for the first and second quarters and a 5-percent decline for the third and fourth quarters.

All 1996 figures are preliminary. The states of Alabama, Delaware, Florida, Illinois, Kansas, Kentucky, and Montana have not submitted any data for 1996 or have submitted data only for the cities over 100,000 in population. Final figures and crime rates per 100,000 inhabitants will be published in Crime in the United States - 1996 scheduled to be released in the fall of 1997.

Crime Index trends by population groups and by geographic regions appear in Tables 1 and 2 below.

- 1 Due to reporting changes, figures are not comparable to previous year and/or incomplete.
- 2 Complete arson data for 1995 and/or 1996 not available.
- 3 Forcible rape figures furnished by the state-level Uniform Crime Reporting (UCR) Program administered by the Illinois State Police were not in accordance with National UCR guidelines. Therefore, the figures were excluded from the forcible rape, Crime Index total, and Modified Crime Index total categories.
- 4 1995 data are not available.

Trends in all tables of this report are based on the volume of crime reported by comparable units. Agency reports which are determined to be influenced by change in reporting practices for all or specific offenses or by annexations are removed from trend tables. All 1996 figures are preliminary. Final figures and crime rates per unit of population will be published in "Crime in the United States 1996" scheduled to be released in the fall of 1997.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE ACTING ASSOCIATE ATTORNEY GENERAL

FROM: JOSEPH E. B. RANN JEB
DIRECTOR

SUBJECT: COPS Grantees and Review of FBI's preliminary 1996 Uniform Crime Reporting Numbers

I have finished a review of the preliminary 1996 Uniform Crime Report (UCR) figures and wanted to share a couple of observations with you. I may echo a few of my general comments at the Regional Community Policing Institutes event in Boston tomorrow afternoon.

The overall UCR figures are very encouraging -- crime has declined for an unprecedented fifth straight year, murder down 11% and violent crime is down 7%. Once again, the results clearly validate that community policing continues to make a tremendous difference in city after city across the United States.

A trend I have noted in recent years proves to be evident again: those agencies most committed to community policing and practicing it for a number of years are the ones that continue to experience some of the largest decreases in crime.

In addition, COPS Office funding under our hiring, redeployment (civilianization/technology) or innovative anti-crime initiatives appears to be a significant factor in supporting the community policing successes in these jurisdictions. The Administration's leadership on community policing and their commitment to adding 100,000 community policing officers is truly paying off.

Noteworthy sites include:

| | | # COPS Funded Officers |
|--------------------|--------|-----------------------------------|
| • Baltimore | - 9.4% | 305 |
| • Boston | -14.5% | 114 |
| • Colorado Springs | - 6.5% | 42 |
| • Fort Worth | - 2.2% | 38 |
| • Fresno | -10.0% | 346 |
| • Greensboro | - 9.0% | 11 |
| • Hartford | -20.0% | 35 |
| • Los Angeles | -11.6% | 2,940 |

| | | |
|----------------|--------|-------|
| • Newport News | -12.5% | 147 |
| • New York | -13.8% | 3,974 |
| • Norfolk | - 8.5% | 96 |
| • Phoenix | - 7.9% | 333 |
| • Portland | - 9.0% | 4 |
| • Sacramento | -12.9% | 338 |
| • San Diego | - 4.0% | 355 |
| • Santa Ana | -13.0% | 81 |
| • Tucson | -14.0% | 64 |

Even with the good news, these figures must be viewed in the proper context. There are some cities where crime appears to be stable or has slightly increased, but those figures can be misleading given population increases in those jurisdictions. If one considers the actual crime rate [crimes per thousand population], these crime rates are actually decreasing.

To say the least, these latest numbers are most promising. In fact, a number of these sites (including Boston) will be receiving awards under the Regional Institutes training program. This nationwide network of training will take us to the next level. The Administration's investment in community policing is paying great dividends for both law enforcement and the communities they serve.

Attorney General Janet Reno released the following statement in response to the release by the FBI of preliminary figures for 1996 from the Uniform Crime Reporting Program:

"This is the largest recorded drop in violent crime since 1961, when these statistics were first recorded. President Clinton's plan is working: penalties are tougher, tens of thousands of illegal gun sales have been thwarted, more than 57,000 new police have been paid for, and we are helping more young people stay on the right path.

"Violent crime has fallen for several years, but we can not let up. It's time to enact President Clinton's comprehensive youth violence legislation, which builds on the 1994 Crime Act with tough, balanced penalties and programs to target gangs, guns and drugs."

DRAFT

TALKING POINTS ON 1996 UCR NUMBERS

- * The seven percent drop in violent crime is the largest drop in more than three and a half decades. (The drop in violent crime is the largest since the FBI began in 1960 to report on crime rates in the fifty states.)
- * Record rates of decline were reported for violent crime, murder and aggravated assault.
- * President Clinton's plan to combat crime is working and making a real difference for families all across America.
- * We increased penalties for serious crime, took guns out of the wrong hands and put more police on America's streets.
- * The results are now being seen: where once the trend in crime was a constant upward swing, we now have several years of declines in violent crime.
- * Crime is still too high, and we must not let up our efforts.
- * We need to enact President Clinton's comprehensive youth violence legislation, which builds on the 1994 Crime Act with tough but balanced enforcement and intervention provisions that target gangs, guns and violent youth crime."

FWASHINGTON TODAY: Crime stats down but fear persists in capital

WASHINGTON (AP) Patricia Robinson knows fear. Ever since her son Parran was gunned down two years ago, she has escorted her surviving son to school each day.

The school in northeast Washington is just two blocks away but Robinson is not taking chances. Sixteen-year-old Parran was the same distance from home when he and another friend were gunned down.

Darren, 14, is ``the only child I have left,'' Robinson said. ``It's hard for me to let him out.''

In a city where the White House and Congress talk often about dramatic steps to improve the local quality of life, Robinson's fear is not uncommon. As crime increased over the years, so did anxiety among Washington's 543,000 residents.

A consultants' report that sparked changes in the police department detailed widespread criminal chaos. Homicides alone increased 169 percent over the last decade.

Police in March launched a crime-fighting initiative aimed at restoring the public's confidence. Four hundred officers were redeployed onto the streets and more are on the way.

The ``zero-tolerance'' push is showing results, police say. Crime overall has dropped 16 percent this year. Homicides are down 25 percent, from 221 at this time last year to 164 so far in 1997.

But statistics alone cannot still the fears of residents who have witnessed a spate of horrendous crimes.

This year, three city police officers have been slain. A 12-year-old was kidnapped and killed in a gang-related incident on his way home from school. Last month, there were eight homicides in a 36-hour period.

Three weeks ago, a 7-year-old boy was shot to death as he sat in his father's car outside a fast-food restaurant. Two weeks ago, three Starbucks Coffee workers were found shot to death in a back room of their shop in the fashionable Georgetown neighborhood.

The recent slayings prompted House Speaker Newt Gingrich to challenge President Clinton to come up with an anti-crime plan for the city.

``Enough is enough,'' Gingrich, R-Ga., wrote Clinton. ``The citizens of this city need action and they need it now.''

White House aides noted that the president already has proposed that the federal government take over the city's prisons and courts, freeing money for other needs.

The latest high-profile crimes make the healing even harder for victims like Robinson.

``It did something to my whole family,'' she said. ``Some mornings, I don't even want to get up.''

Even her home feels different since Parran's death, Robinson said. She loved the working-class neighborhood when she moved there 13 years ago. Her family lived nearby. She knew her neighbors. It was safe.

``It was a place where you could sit outside and talk all night,'' she said.

But as crime spread, she and other residents felt they were living under siege.

Parran and two friends had gone to a movie in nearby Prince George's County, Md., the night he was killed. His mother encouraged him to go there because she believed it was safer.

As the three returned home, shots were fired into their car.

Police believe the gunmen were after another boy in the car, Robinson said. No one has been arrested.

Darren 12 years old at the time was afraid to go outside after that. He ran if he saw unfamiliar cars on his street. He wrote letters to his dead brother.

These days, Robinson walks or drives Darren to school.

Other residents cite improvement, but their confidence wavers, too.

On a recent night at the notorious Barry Farms public housing complex in southeast Washington, groups of residents mingled outside a scene many say would have been impossible a few months ago.

``There's less people hanging out, no shooting,'' one man said. A woman tending her garden agreed. ``We wouldn't even be standing here now,'' she said.

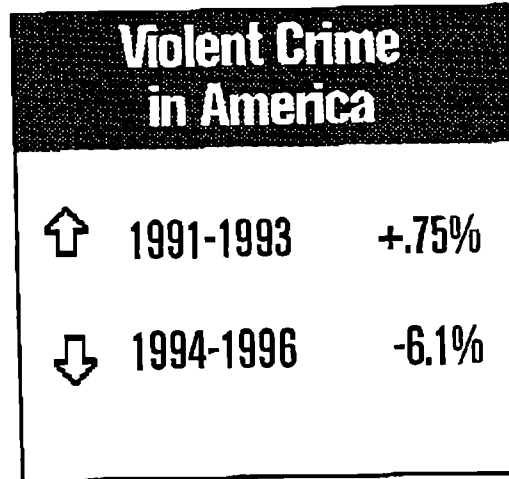

But even while citing a better atmosphere, all were afraid to give their names.

FOR RELEASE
6 P.M., ET, SUNDAY
NOVEMBER 23, 1997

The Nation's law enforcement agencies reported a 4-percent decrease in serious crime during the first 6 months of 1997 when compared to figures reported during the same time period of the previous year, according to preliminary Uniform Crime Reporting Program figures released today by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

An Index of violent and property crimes is used to measure serious crime. Violent crime decreased 5 percent and property crime fell 4 percent during the first half of 1997.

In the category of violent crime, murder and robbery both dropped 9 percent; aggravated assault fell 3 percent; and forcible rape declined 2 percent. Among the property crimes, arson decreased 9 percent; motor vehicle theft and burglary both dropped 5 percent; and larceny-theft declined 4 percent.

Serious crime decreased in all of the geographic regions. Declines recorded include 6 percent in the Northeast, 5 percent in both the Midwest and West, and 3 percent in the South.

All of the Nation's cities showed a decline in serious crime for the 6-month period, with the largest population groups, cities over 250,000, recording the largest decline, 6 percent. The decreases reported by suburban and rural county law enforcement agencies were 3 and 1 percent, respectively.

UNIFORM CRIME REPORTS
JANUARY-JUNE 1997

FOR RELEASE
8 P.M. EST, SUNDAY
NOVEMBER 23, 1997

The number of Crime Index offenses reported to law enforcement agencies throughout the United States decreased 4 percent during the first six months of 1997 when compared to the figures reported during the same period of 1996. The violent crimes of murder, forcible rape, robbery, and aggravated assault decreased 5 percent while the property crimes of burglary, larceny-theft, and motor vehicle theft decreased 4 percent.

During the first quarter of 1997, a decrease of 4 percent in serious crime was reported when compared with the numbers reported for the same quarter of 1996. Second quarter numbers decreased 5 percent.

Crime Index trends by population groups and by geographic regions appear in Tables 1 and 2 below.

Forcible rape figures furnished by the state-level Uniform Crime Reporting (UCR) Program administered by the Illinois State Police were not in accordance with national UCR guidelines. Therefore, the figures were excluded from the forcible rape, Crime Index total, and Modified Crime Index total categories.
 *Complete arson data for 1996 and/or 1997 are not available.
 †Due to reporting changes, figures are not comparable to previous year.

Trends in all tables of this report are based on the volume of crime reported by comparable units. Agency reports which are determined to be influenced by change in reporting practices for all or specific offenses or by annexations are removed from trend tables. All 1997 figures are preliminary. Final figures and crime rates per unit of population will be published in Crime in the United States 1997 scheduled to be released in the fall of 1998.

NOVEMBER 23, 1997

The Nation's law enforcement agencies reported a 4-percent decrease in serious crime during the first 6 months of 1997 when compared to figures reported during the same time period of the previous year, according to preliminary Uniform Crime Reporting Program figures released today by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

An Index of violent and property crimes is used to measure serious crime. Violent crime decreased 5 percent and property crime fell 4 percent during the first half of 1997.

In the category of violent crime, murder and robbery both dropped 9 percent; aggravated assault fell 3 percent; and forcible rape declined 2 percent. Among the property crimes, arson decreased 9 percent; motor vehicle theft and burglary both dropped 5 percent; and larceny-theft declined 4 percent.

Serious crime decreased in all of the geographic regions. Declines recorded include 6 percent in the Northeast, 5 percent in both the Midwest and West, and 3 percent in the South.

All of the Nation's cities showed a decline in serious crime for the 6-month period, with the largest population groups, cities over 250,000, recording the largest decline, 6 percent. The decreases reported by suburban and rural county law enforcement agencies were 3 and 1 percent, respectively.

STATEMENT OF ATTORNEY GENERAL RENO ON FBI CRIME STATISTICS

"Crime has been falling for several years, because policy makers, law enforcement and ordinary Americans are coming together to do the right thing. President Clinton has put more police on the streets, and more people are coming forward to work with them. Now we must build on our progress, by doing more as a nation to keep young people on the right path. I urge every American to get involved, and help us cut crime even more."

NOVEMBER 23, 1997

The Nation's law enforcement agencies reported a 4-percent decrease in serious crime during the first 6 months of 1997 when compared to figures reported during the same time period of the previous year, according to preliminary Uniform Crime Reporting Program figures released today by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

An Index of violent and property crimes is used to measure serious crime. Violent crime decreased 5 percent and property crime fell 4 percent during the first half of 1997.

In the category of violent crime, murder and robbery both dropped 9 percent; aggravated assault fell 3 percent; and forcible rape declined 2 percent. Among the property crimes, arson decreased 9 percent; motor vehicle theft and burglary both dropped 5 percent; and larceny-theft declined 4 percent.

Serious crime decreased in all of the geographic regions. Declines recorded include 6 percent in the Northeast, 5 percent in both the Midwest and West, and 3 percent in the South.

All of the Nation's cities showed a decline in serious crime for the 6-month period, with the largest population groups, cities over 250,000, recording the largest decline, 6 percent. The decreases reported by suburban and rural county law enforcement agencies were 3 and 1 percent, respectively.

UNIFORM CRIME REPORTS
JANUARY-JUNE 1997

FOR RELEASE
6 P.M. EST, SUNDAY
NOVEMBER 23, 1997

The number of Crime Index offenses reported to law enforcement agencies throughout the United States decreased 4 percent during the first six months of 1997 when compared to the figures reported during the same period of 1996. The violent crimes of murder, forcible rape, robbery, and aggravated assault decreased 5 percent while the property crimes of burglary, larceny-theft, and motor vehicle theft decreased 4 percent.

During the first quarter of 1997, a decrease of 4 percent in serious crime was reported when compared with the numbers reported for the same quarter of 1996. Second quarter numbers decreased 5 percent.

Crime Index trends by population groups and by geographic regions appear in Tables 1 and 2 below.

Forcible rape figures furnished by the state-level Uniform Crime Reporting (UCR) Program administered by the Illinois State Police were not in accordance with national UCR guidelines. Therefore, the figures were excluded from the forcible rape, Crime Index total, and Modified Crime Index total categories. Complete arson data for 1996 and/or 1997 are not available. Due to reporting changes, figures are not comparable to previous year.

Trends in all tables of this report are based on the volume of crime reported by comparable units. Agency reports which are determined to be influenced by change in reporting practices for all or specific offenses or by adjustments are removed from trend tables. All 1997 figures are preliminary. Final figures and crime rates per unit of population will be published in Crime in the United States 1997 scheduled to be released in the fall of 1998.
