SUBJECT: National College Week Report

For your information, we are distributing the Department's National College Week report, and summaries of our success. Almost 400 schools participated in this program encouraging middle and high schoolers to think about college early. Many colleges have already asked us to make this an annual event. If you would like any further information regarding National College Week, please call Laura Emmett at 401-3053 or John Emekli at 401-4389.

THE SECRETARY OF EDUCATION

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20202

December 8, 1999

Dear President:

I want to thank you for taking the time to participate in the U.S. Department of Education's first-ever National College Week. Because of your and your colleagues' efforts, thousands of secondary school students throughout the United States today are more aware that college is indeed possible if they prepare early.

Overall, nearly 400 colleges and universities throughout the nation joined you in this national effort to raise college awareness. Like you, they engaged in a variety of interesting and sometimes unique National College Week activities including visiting local middle schools and high schools, hosting local college nights and having op-eds published in their local papers.

Many college and university presidents took time out of busy schedules to visit a middle school or high school. That personal involvement drove home the message that many more young people are able to go to college and need to prepare early academically to do college level work.

I am also very pleased that the American Council on Education, the Council for the Advancement and Support of Education, the National Association for College Admission Counselors, the College Board, the Council of the Great City Schools and the National Association of Secondary School Principals joined in this effort.

A good number of higher education officials have suggested that we build on our success and continue to promote National College Week as an annual event. In response, the Department is interested in developing a listserv for colleges and universities so that we can share announcements and opportunities promoting the many positive messages associated with National College Week. If you are interested in participating in this program, please e-mail Laura_Emmett@ed.gov with the appropriate contact information including e-mail addresses.

Again, thank you for all of your hard work and continued dedication to ensuring equal access to education and promoting educational excellence in your community and throughout the United States.

Yours sincerely,

NATIONAL COLLEGE WEEK HIGHLIGHTS

U.S. SECRETARY OF EDUCATION LAUNCHES NATIONAL COLLEGE WEEK

On November 15, U.S. Secretary of Education Richard W. Riley opened the U.S. Department of Education's first-ever National College Week in Detroit. Citing a new Education Department report, Getting There, Secretary Riley told local leaders, educators and students that college is affordable and financial aid is available for every student who is academically ready for higher education.

PRESIDENTS TOUT DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA COLLEGE ACCESS ACT OF 1999

On November 16, Secretary Riley toured Dunbar Senior High School with local college and university presidents to raise awareness for the District of Columbia College Access Act of 1999. Signed into law by President Clinton, this legislation provides tuition subsidies to District of Columbia residents to ensure access to a range of affordable higher education options. Such subsidies are already available to the residents of all 50 states. Joining Riley were Congresswoman Eleanor Holmes-Norton and presidents from Southeastern University, Trinity College, Catholic University, and the University of the District of Columbia. Representatives from American University, George Washington University, Gallaudet University, Georgetown University, Howard University, George Mason University, University of Maryland at College Park and Marymount University also attended.

NATIVE AMERICAN STUDENTS TOLD TO "THINK COLLEGE"

Native American students at the Four Directions Charter School heard firsthand stories about what earning a college degree can mean to them, their families and tribes. The event coincided with the release of The American Indian College Fund's report "Developing Your Vision While Attending College," a series of four handbooks for Native American secondary school students. An Ojibwe drum song opened and closed the event, which was attended by the school's high school students.

OVER 1,000 STUDENTS ATTEND ATLANTA RALLY

On November 19, the four Historically Black Colleges and Universities of the Atlanta University Center hosted over 1,000 middle school students at its College is Possible Rally. The rally, held on the campus of Clark Atlanta University, marked the first time that Clark Atlanta University, Spelman College, Morehouse College and Morris Brown University worked together in an outreach effort to middle school students.

CAL-STATE UNIVERSITY SYSTEM DELIVERS

Throughout California, National College Week activities initiated by Chancellor Charles Reed, campus presidents, and other campus officials took place on 15 of the 23 California State University campuses. An op-ed by Chancellor Reed was printed in the Los Angeles Daily News and the Long Beach Press-Telegram. Cal-State Bakersfield held a news conference to announce National College Week, new remedial education outreach efforts and a new teacher preparation program. Cal-State San Marcos President Alexander González wrote an op-ed for the North County Times. San Francisco State President Robert Corrigan visited and distributed materials to 7th graders at James Lick Middle School.

SCHOLARSHIP AWARDED TO NEWBORN

To emphasize the point that it is never too early to start thinking about college, a lucky baby born during National College Week received a one-year scholarship to the University of Wyoming. University President Philip Dubois announced the education lottery during a news conference in Birthing Room No. 6 at Cheyenne's United Medical Center.

GOVERNOR DESIGNATES "NATIONAL COLLEGE WEEK IN OHIO"

Governor Bob Taft officially designated November 15-20 "National College Week in Ohio." In addition, Ohio State University President William E. Kirwan discussed National College Week on television during the halftime show of the Ohio State-Illinois football game.
