Dear Ms. Davis:

I received your request that Mrs. Clinton contribute to your book, Sweet Dreams: The Art of Putting Babies to Sleep. Although we commend you for undertaking this very important topic, unfortunately Mrs. Clinton must decline your invitation at this time.

Best of luck with your book.

Sincerely,

Dear Mrs. Clinton,

I'm writing a book for new parents about how to put babies to sleep, and would like to request a quote from you.

It's called Sweet Dreams: The Art of Putting Babies to Sleep — a small beautiful book with wisdom and advice from past and present thinkers, authors, experts, and moms and dads. It weaves in ~~great~~ tips from parents who know the humor, pure joy, and frustration involved in this simple act.

Tired parents searching for solutions would love to hear from you as America's First-Mom and a future Senator-Mom.

Please share your most ingenious tip, or best story about putting babies (newborn to toddler) to sleep. There's a self-addressed postcard enclosed to make it easy!

Thanks very much for your interest.

Sincerely,

Laurel Davis
