Dear Buddy,

I know you're a little puppy but I'm going to give you a letter. How old are you? I really want a puppy like you. You must look cuter than any other dog or puppy. It must be fun living in the White House. I wish I were you. I bet you run fast to get your bone that Bill Clinton threw. My dad had 3 dogs when he was a little boy. Can you give me a picture of you? Dear Socks and Buddy, Recently, my third grade class of gifted, regular, and learning support students at John F. Kennedy Elementary School completed a unit on 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue. The students kept a journal in which they recorded many White House facts and statistics, as well as, the names of all the presidents.

As a culminating activity the students thought it would be fun to write to some current White House residents. Socks and Buddy, you were chosen!

I have included the address of our school and the names of all my students. As the children will be anxiously awaiting a reply, please respond by sending pictures, letters, or any other enrichment information.

Sincerely,
