Dear Socks,

May 31, 1998

I really admire you for being our First Cat. What's it like? Do you like the publicity? Do you have many responsibilities? Do you like your new dog?

I live with 6 other cats outside of San Diego. I also live with 2 people.

Please send me your postcard and a note — maybe your autograph.

Thanks! Keep up the good work!

Sincerely,

Jack

Dear Socks the cat,

Hi socks the cat how is life in the White House. Do you get along with everyone there, I wish I could be you for a couple of days I would be happy. So what kind of food do you eat, what's your favorite?

My cat just had a kitten we named him Kaniki he is black with a little white spot on him. He is a new person in your state he is so cute you would like him we love him a lot so that is one of my animals I also have a parakeet and a german shepherd.

So Socks if you can will you send me back paper with your paw prints in ink and with your name signed on the bottom. Thank you for taking your time with this letter.

Sincerely yours,
Timothy Burke

ive us a kiss: Clinton gets a warm welcome from Buddy

Give us a cuddle: Cherie Blair with Humphrey at No 10

Give us a break: Lord Hattersley with bird fancier: Buster

Having a pet is fast becoming the way to get ahead in politics, and sometimes cats, create good photo opportunities for their masters, they even publish their own memoirs, political or otherwise. Cherie Blair discovered this year, keeping in the animals is vital. Humphrey the cat, previously of Downing Street, has plenty of mirrors. Mrs Blair dutifully fed for the press with Humphrey, showing that the modern politician and his or her spouse must be adept at more than singing babies. Although Humphrey named Sir Humphrey Appleby in BBC's Yes, Mr. Men is now under the political spotlight, he still has a voice. Sheila, the former partner to John Major, plans to pen A

It's Eye View of Number 10. The Times disclosed late last year her tale will chart the progress of Humphrey from eyecatcher to retirement. Another ripping yarn will come from the Upper House when Lord Hattersley's Staffordshire bull terrier and also a cross publishes his memoirs later this year. Buster is a veteran of the parazzi after his highly publicised and fatal encounter with a goose in St James's Park. Lord Hattersley took the blame and was fined £5. Humphrey was also accused of being involved in

They roam Whitehall and the White House, providing instant appeal for spin doctors. Amanda Loose looks at political animals something of a kerfuffle with birds in the same park and gained a reputation as a duckling snatcher.

Lord Hattersley says: "Buster shares my view that there was no blame attached to him. I broke the law and he is very calm about my conviction. He has stuck by me despite my criminal record."

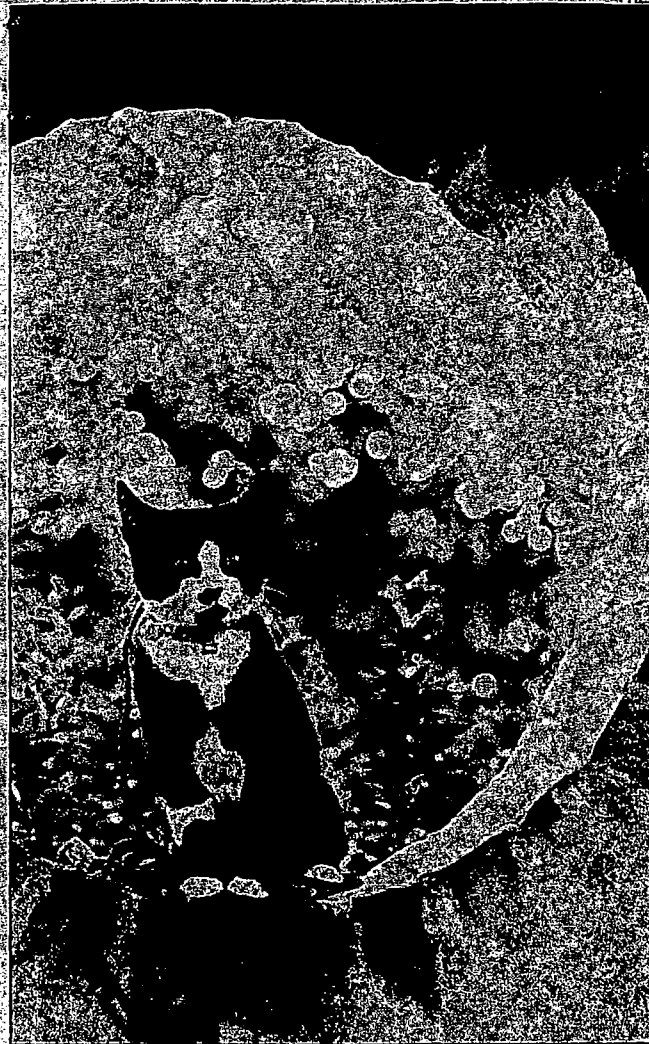

Lord Hattersley says he was brought up with dogs, and acquired young Buster when he knew he would no longer be

Buster has stuck by me despite my record standing for the Commons. So why have they decided to put pen to paper? Lord Hattersley says: "I became fascinated with the relationship between dog and man. Buster will talk about dog things, such as the trauma of a booster injection."

"My main purpose is to amuse and also to help people understand dogs' relationships with their owners and owners' relationships with their dogs. Buster has no opinion on the EU or on Clinton's behaviour."

American politicians' pets are more strident in airing their views. During the 1992 election campaign, Millie the Bush family springer spaniel almost went head to head with Socks, the Clinton family black and white cat. At times it seemed that Millie was entering the electoral fray, with the then

Rounded view: Socks the First Cat

President Bush allegedly remarking: "Millie knows more about foreign policy than those two bozos Bill Clinton and Al Gore." The cat hit back with Socks T-shirts sold along the campaign trail by two young entrepreneurs.

Millie was already something of a celebrity, having earned more than her master in 1991 through her memoirs, which were ghost-written by Barbara Bush. Socks, now at the White House, was an instant celebrity and thrilled millions of readers with Socks Goes to Washington: The Diary of America's First Cat (by Michael O'Donoghue).

In it, Socks regales the reader with tales of spiders in Lincoln's bedroom and his liking for the Chinese Ambassador, as "any country that eats dogs is OK with me." Socks merchandise, a fan club and cartoon have also been snapped up by his admirers, along with a computer game and the obligatory baseball cap.

Socks has received thousands of fan letters, and an office was set up for him at a Washington retirement home for former members of the US armed forces. He has made a brief foray into the arena of international feline relations, he and Humphrey forming something of an Anglo-American feline alliance, with Socks issuing a statement after the safe return of Humphrey from a jaunt in 1995.

Previous feline incumbents at No 10 and the White House have managed to live relatively private lives. Before Humphrey (a stray taken in by the Cabinet Office in 1989, and now living out his days agitating goldfish in suburbia), Wilberforce the cat successfully evaded the zoom lenses. The cats in residence at the White House during the Carter and Ford administrations could hardly have caused such a stir as young Socks.

If you want a friend get a dog, said Truman

How times change. It was President Truman who observed: "If you want a friend in Washington, get a dog." President Clinton has recently acquired a chocolate coloured Labrador puppy named Buddy, after an appeal to the nation for suggestions. Buddy's arrival last year caught the media's attention, something the beleaguered Clinton administration must have welcomed. He provided photo opportunities, including the rather fraught meeting between the First Dog and First Cat.

Socks, it appears, was less than impressed with the new arrival and a skirmish ensued until the President intervened. He has compared making peace between the two to achieving the same in Northern Ireland, the Middle East or Bosnia.

Buddy

Dear Socks & Buddy,

My name is Katie Lucas. I'm 11 years old, I'm in Mrs. Brunker's 5th grade class.

How do you like being "First Cat" & "First Dog"?

Do you have your own rooms? If so are they big?

How did you get your names?
Do you ever get lost in the Whitehouse?

If you wouldn't mind could you send me a picture of you and Buddy? I would really appreciate it.

P.S. Write Back!

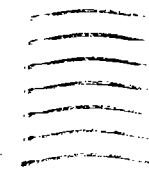

Your friend,

Katie Lucas

Dear Buddy,

Is it fun at the White House?

And do you look at Locke also?

I bet you do, because dogs hate cats. I have a dog & her name is Lassie. She is huskie & a little bit of coyote. She does not like other dogs! Lassie is 8 1/2, and I am

9! When is your birthday?

Mine is on

Dear Buddy,

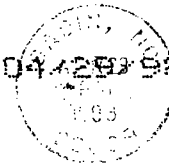

My name is David Cooper.
I am nine years old and go to Badin Elementary. I like to play football for the Albermarle Bulldogs and play
baseball for the Toxys Dodgers.
I like basketball and skiing.
Math and science are my favorite subjects. I have two brothers, one sister and two parents. I have a dog named Molly and a hamster named Todd. Monday and Friday are my favorite days because that is when we play games. Do you like the White House? Do you get to run around in it or stay in one place. What kind of dog food do you eat? Can you do any tricks?

Your friend,
David Cooper

P.S. Can you send me a picture of your family and dog.
