RE: Letter of Investment

Dear Mr. Yahheb:

In addressing this correspondence to you, please allow me to express my personal appreciation and gratitude to you for your willingness to share in making a difference in the behavior disorders and health concerns in your state and mankind worldwide. I am deeply moved by the many conversations that have taken place by and between you and myself.

I am a certified practicing epidemiologist, with credentials as a specialist in the field of degenerative illnesses that include Diabetes, kidney/liver diseases and HIV/AIDS. Also, I was appointed to this position as the US ambassador of Goodwill, HIV/AIDS by President Clinton. As one of my personal undertakings, I have the desire to assist the general public at large as well as your native state under the banner of Lifeline Healthcare Products. With the product line I have to offer and own. To approach the peak of success, this product will solicit investor (s) and individual networkers based on retail multi level marketing, corporate sales, promotions and distribution.

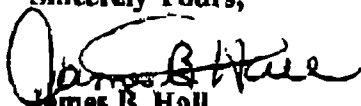

Secondly, in reference to the establishing of Wholelife Holdings, Inc., it is the regulatory body of the business to be used for the express purpose of ensuring and issuing proper shares of the Product Company. Our financial request is for amount equal to Three Hundred Thousand ($300,000.00)USD. This amount can and/or will be used for the continuous stability of all existing components of the Product Company, i.e. Manufacturing, Marketing, Distribution, Ordering & Fulfillment Center and Administration Staffing.

In exchange for the use the above requested funds, I am in a positive position to offer and/or extend a repayment schedule plus an attractive stock option, which will be honored in perpetuity with respect to the life of the company, i.e. Lifeline Healthcare Products, Inc. In addition to, but not limited to the same. The returns to the investor (s) will be disbursed and/or remitted to the same, on an annual basis. Please review the following: A.) A straight commission of (0.50) cents per bottle/unit purchased at retail value; B.) Discounted retail pricing and commission. C.) This proposal will also entitle you to partner with the organization fifty-fifty on any and all real estate requisitions of property that will be acquired by the not for profit group of Lifeline Foundation. This paragraph was prepared as a profile insert to be reviewed and considered for and/or by any and all interested parties as a scope for possible return on his or her investment.

Finally, I entrust that such a proposal can and will give all parties involved, the opportunity to be a part of making a difference in our present healthcare society globally.

RE: Letter of Invitation

Dear Mr. Edmonds:

In addressing this letter to you, the same will acknowledge the conversation that was held by and between your office and myself on recent date (June 11, 2000). I am delighted to know that your leadership and awareness is the same as both, the President and Vice President in light of support pertaining to the subject matter of adequate healthcare (HIV/AIDS). However, as indicated in the enclosed attachments, the war of this struggle is ajar and the beginning must be implemented with the act of unity as the solution.

Therefore, on August 6, 2000 in the Phillips Arena in Atlanta, Georgia we will call for a national "Call To Action" ceremony, which will consist of an entertainment benefit/cabaret that will host national celebrities and dignitaries from all walks of life in an effort to raise funds for a much needed Alternative Transitional Health/Wellness Retreat and Shared Living Village facility that will be housed on one hundred and forty acres specifically and especially for HIV/AIDS and other infectious and cancerous diseases. You are being requested to participate as one of our guest speakers for this event. All travel arrangements will be handled by our office upon your acceptance.

In closing, my final request to you to make a personal appearance at this event is; "The mental thoughts of negativity leaves the human body dysfunctional and fruitless, but the courage of understanding, love and participation for mankind is fruitful.

Once again, thank you, and all of those that make up the "Executive Team" for a safe and healthier life.

With warmest and personal regards, I remain.

Sincerely,

Dr. James B. Hall, M.P.H. Drs. PH.

Dear James:

Thank you for your letter about the AIDS crisis. We must commit ourselves to stopping the spread of this terrible disease.

In dealing with the AIDS crisis, I will pursue a four-part strategy of more research, thorough testing, better treatment, and improved education. I want to increase funding and accelerate research in order to help develop a vaccine and find therapies that will destroy HIV, repair the immune system, and treat AIDS-related infections. Until that time, we must reform our health care system to control the rising cost of treatment and provide security to every American family. I have asked Congress to fully fund the prevention efforts under the Ryan White Health Care Act so that we can help people with AIDS and ease the burdens that it places on families.

We must promote AIDS education in our schools and launch a strong and effective campaign that will reach into every community. Focusing national attention on this disease will help to provide the best strategies for prevention and will encourage compassion and understanding for the victims of this disease. I welcome your support as we seek to defeat AIDS.

Sincerely,

Bill Clinton
