O Primeiro Ministro

Lisbon, 17 September 1998

Dear Mr. President

I want to convey to you my solidarity, friendship and respect.

We do share the conception that politics should be a matter of convictions, dedication and purpose. We do share the idea that public service ought to focus on social and economic improvement of those in need. We both believe that education is the key for the development of nations.

The role of the United States will remain — under the foreseeable future — a key factor for the world's stability. American politics have global reflexes. It concerns us all.

The United States constitutional structure has sustained the country's political coherence and cohesion. It has laid the grounds for a perceivable Foreign Policy.

I do believe America will stay the course laid by its founding fathers. I do know that the United States will keep on focusing its global responsibilities. That America will maintain its stabilising role in world affairs, both at political and economical level.

Sincerely yours

(António Guterres)
