Dear Mr. President,

One of our classmates, Sarah Granoff, is visiting the White House this weekend, so we would like to write you this letter that she will deliver to you.

We are learning about our government, so we'd like you to consider some ideas and suggestions you can recommend to Congress. We would like smoking to be prohibited in all public places. We would like there to be a law that people can only use guns to protect themselves against danger, and that anyone buying a gun must be identified, maybe by their fingerprints. We would actually prefer if there were no guns at all, but we know about the Second Amendment. We would also like a law that makes sure that only trees that are needed can be cut down.

We were wondering what you were thinking of doing after you leave office. What job might you select to do? What sports will you play when you're out of office?

We would like to invite you to visit our school. If you visit us, would you please tell us all about your presidency? Maybe we'll get to meet each other some day.

Respectfully

DEAR MR. President:

Two men who deserve the Medal of Freedom before you leave office ARE HENRY AARON AND John Lewis.

A ceremony in Atlanta awarding the medal to HANK and Congressman Lewis would be historic for them and for you.

Sincerely, Tom

No two people I've ever known more deserve the honor

Betty
