MEMORANDUM FOR: KEN COLE

SUBJECT: Briefings for Black Leaders

As I discussed with you earlier, I recommend a small number of black leaders be brought in for lunch with you and myself followed by briefings on the new budget, revenue sharing, and social programs, twice each week from April 22 - May 10. These briefings would last about 2-3 hours and would be off the record in nature. We will issue releases to the media only after several briefings have been held.

Each group would be made up of 10 black opinion leaders and 4-5 Administration representatives. It would greatly enhance the impact of this effort if the President would drop by one, or all of the sessions.

It is important to hold these briefings at this time to effectively counteract the existing attitude among blacks regarding the Administration's posture toward the black community.

I have attached a list of possible attendees (Republicans and Democrats) for the first four groups and a list of persons from the Administration who might act as briefers.

FEDERAL ENERGY OFFICE
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20461

OFFICE OF THE ADMINISTRATOR

The Honorable James R. Schlesinger
Secretary of Defense
The Pentagon
Washington, D.C. 20301

Dear Secretary Schlesinger:

I would like to request the early release from the United States Air Force of Captain Weldon Hurd Latham so that he might apply his unique background and skills to furthering the objectives of the Federal Energy Office. Captain Latham, who is currently assigned to the Office of the General Counsel, Office of the Secretary of the Air Force possesses unique qualifications to contribute to dealing with our nation's energy problems. We have in the past experienced considerable difficulty in locating individuals with his qualifications and background.

As you know, the President established the Federal Energy Office by Executive Order in order to carry out the responsibilities which were delegated to him by the Congress in the Emergency Petroleum Allocation Act of 1973. The Federal Energy Office is the Government's principal instrument for dealing with the energy crisis and is now striving to minimize the effects of the energy shortage on the American people and economy. To carry out this important program, we must, at the outset, attract to our staff individuals with Captain Latham's background and demonstrated abilities.

If our request is approved, Captain Latham will be employed as a Senior Attorney in our Office of Exceptions and Appeals. This Office has been newly created to receive, analyze and recommend decisions on exceptions, exemptions and appeals to the Petroleum Allocation and Price Regulations. Short of formal litigation, this Office provides the final administrative remedies in these areas available to the petroleum industry. It is, therefore, vitally important that we have Captain Latham assist us in this work.

Captain Latham is a particularly attractive candidate to FEO because of the unique skills and abilities he would bring to this agency -- his combined legal experience and education in business and law. His undergraduate major in business administration and minor in economics has provided him with a grasp of business principles and organization and a basic understanding of business economics. His legal education provided major study in corporate and tax law. Captain Latham's work background has included the following specific experience which is of considerable value to FEO:

1. Three years in management consulting which provided intense exposure to economic, financial and business planning; analysis and interpretation of Federal and state statutes; and evaluation of prospective business acquisitions.
2. Eighteen months as an Adjunct Professor of Law at Howard University where he taught classes in government regulation of business, agency, partnership and business associations.
3. Two years of experience in the private practice of law with a major Washington law firm with work primarily in the areas of corporate, business and administrative law.
4. Nearly one year with the U.S. Air Force performing legal and policy-making functions in the Office of the General Counsel, Secretary of the Air Force.

This combination of business and legal experience has provided Captain Latham with precisely the expertise required by FEO. He has developed an indepth understanding of the Federal regulatory process and of business and corporate activities. This kind of expertise is significant to the successful implementation of an exceptions and appeals program within FEO.

Additionally, it is my understanding that you are operating under a Congressional mandate to reduce the total number of Air Force officers. The early release of Captain Latham would, therefore, be beneficial to the Government by serving both FEO and the Air Force.

I urge your prompt favorable consideration of this request and am ready to answer questions or provide any additional information required.

Sincerely,

s/ John Sawhill

PREVIOUS PARTICIPATION:

The President's Minority Business Enterprise program, established in 1969, has been a major thrust in the minority community. In 1973, the President asked that all Federal agencies "do everything possible to assist in the growth of minority enterprises." The President also urged "support of the Inter-agency Council"...the means by which we in government can mobilize the considerable resources at our command to carry out the OMBE program.

BACKGROUND:

Commerce Undersecretary John Tabor convenes the Council monthly to review Task Force reports from respective Department/Agency representatives to assure that goals and objectives are being met. White House Special Assistant Stan Scott represents President Nixon on the Interagency Council, and serves as liaison to Domestic Council.

INTERAGENCY COUNCIL MEETING

Thursday, May 9, 1974

(5 minutes)

The Roosevelt Room

From: Stanley S. Scott

TALKING POINTS

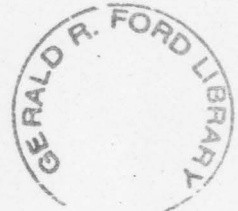

The Office of Minority Business Enterprise (OMBE) Interagency Council will meet Thursday, May 9, at 9:30 a.m.

The Interagency Council was created by Executive Order 11625 of the President, October 13, 1971, to cause all departments of the Executive Branch, and other Federal agencies, to give full support to the expansion of opportunities for minority entrepreneurs to benefit from spending by the Federal Government.

OMBE

OMBE itself was a creation of President Nixon. In his campaign of 1968, he called for something more than welfare handouts or adversary community action programs or hiring programs in the public or private sector. He called for "an expansion of black ownership, of black capitalism." He said "We need more black employers, more black businesses". Bridges to Human Dignity, March 25, 1968. Subsequently, he expanded the concept to include all minority and disadvantaged groups, saying:

"Blacks, Mexican-Americans, Puerto Ricans, Indians and others must be increasingly encouraged to enter the field of business, both in the area where they now live and in the larger commercial community -- and not only as workers but also as managers and owners".
Statement on Minority Enterprise, March 5, 1969.

INTERAGENCY COUNCIL MEETING

The Interagency Council Procurement Task Force in FY 73 generated $1.4 billion worth of contracts from Federal Government agencies to minority business.

OMBE's administered program was launched in 1969 with a budget of $46,000. Today there is a $52 million program and the budget sought in FY 75 is $94.9 million.

In 1973, The Purchasing Council generated and assisted minority businesses and industries to win $215 million worth of contracts for goods or services. 540 corporations participate. 210 corporations have adopted affirmative minority purchasing programs. Regional counsel have identified 6,218 qualified minority firms.

CONCLUSION

The OMBE program is a creation of President Nixon. It is a new look, where minorities are encouraged to participate as owners and members of private enterprise in our country, not treated as welfare recipients or any second-class citizen.

The program is off and running. The President can take pride in it and can greatly assist it further by attending the Interagency Council meeting and reiterating his strong support for it.

DATE: July 19, 1974

PURPOSE: To demonstrate again your concern about the domestic economy and inflation. To discuss the need for price and wage restraint for industry to compete effectively in the world market. To seek the views of these leaders on the economic situation, particularly with respect to ideas on ways to subdue inflation, stimulate new investment and promote stable growth.

BACKGROUND: The polls, the stock market, discussions with business and financial leaders indicate growing concern about domestic and international economic developments. There is also the sense that the Administration does not have a sound, coherent economic policy. Inflation continues to rise at a substantial rate with a current rate of 11.2% and a year-end forecast of 7-8%.

This meeting is the second of two meetings with business and economic leaders to review the general economic situation and to solicit ideas on anti-inflation measures which can be taken. The first meeting with a similar group was on July 11.

The President would solicit preliminary views and ask the group to report subsequently (within 30 days) to Kenneth Rush their specific recommendations on further actions which should be taken to reduce inflation.

Kenneth Rush would moderate the meeting, calling on specific individuals for their views. The President would present his views at the end.
