MEMORANDUM OF UNDERSTANDING BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES
GOVERNMENT AND THE GOVERNMENT OF ISRAEL

1. The United States position is that withdrawal of UNDOF for the duration of the disengagement agreement requires the consent of both sides. Should the matter of the withdrawal of UNDOF or a proposal to change the mandate of this force come before the U.N. Security Council without the consent of Israel, the U.S. will vote against such withdrawal.
2. The United States will oppose deployment of UNDOF personnel from the Soviet Union, from other Communist countries, or from countries which have no diplomatic relations with Israel, in the U.N. area of separation or of their use in the supervision of the disengagement agreement. With respect to the deployment of forces in the area of separation the U.S. will approach the U.N. Secretary-General or directly Syria with a view to working out arrangements whereunder no units or personnel of nations which do not have diplomatic relations with Israel will (a) be deployed adjacent to the Israeli line, or (b) participate in the inspection of the Israeli area of limited forces and armaments.

3. The United States has informed the Governments of Israel and Syria that it will perform aerial reconnaissance missions over the areas covered by the disengagement agreement at a frequency of about one mission every ten days (or two weeks) and will forward the photographs to both Israel and Syria as soon as they are ready.

Should the U.S. or Israel aerial reconnaissance detect a violation the U.S. will intervene diplomatically with Syria to bring about a rectification. Also, that should Israel detect a violation the U.S. will immediately perform a special flight of verification.

4. The United States informs Israel that Egypt has given an undertaking to the U.S. that it will support the disengagement agreement with Syria, Egypt considers this ~~is~~ a fair agreement. In the case of Syria violating the agreement and/or reopening hostilities or launching a military offensive Egypt will not support Syria militarily or otherwise.
5. Recognizing the defense responsibilities of the Government of Israel following redeployment of its forces under the disengagement agreement, the U.S. will make every effort to be fully responsive on a continuing and long-term basis to Israel military equipment requirements.
6. The U.S. will consult fully with Israel before there is to be a next phase of the Geneva Conference. The U.S. will do its best to ensure that the Conference proceeds at a pace agreed between the U.S. and Israel.
7. In case of a Syrian violation of any of the provisions of the agreement or any of its attachments, the U.S. Government will fully support Israel.

Should the matter of the withdrawal of the UN force come before the United Nations Security Council without the consent of Israel, the United States will vote against such withdrawal.

- (2) The United States will oppose supervision of Israeli held areas by UN personnel from the Soviet Union, from other communist countries, or from countries which have no diplomatic relations with Israel. With respect to the deployment of forces in the area of separation, the United States will approach the United Nations Secretary General or directly Syria with a view to working out arrangements whereunder no units or personnel of nations which do not have diplomatic relations with Israel will (a) be deployed adjacent to the Israeli line, or (b) participate in the inspection of the Israeli area of limited forces and armaments.

- (3) The United States has informed the Governments of Israel and Syria that it will, with the consent of the parties, perform aerial reconnaissance missions over the areas covered by the disengagement agreement at a frequency of about one mission every ten days or two weeks, including special missions on request, and will forward the photographs to both Israel and Syria as soon as they are ready.
- (4) Recognizing the defense responsibilities of the Government of Israel following redeployment of its forces under the Disengagement Agreement the United States reaffirms that it will make every effort to be fully responsive on a continuing and long-term basis to Israel's military equipment requirements.
- (5) It is the policy of the United States that implementation of the Disengagement Agreement should take precedence over the undertaking of new commitments by the parties related to subsequent phases of the Geneva Conference. The United States will do its best to help facilitate the Conference proceeding at a pace commensurate with this view.

- (6) In case of a Syrian violation of any of the provisions of the Disengagement Agreement, the United States Government will support Israel diplomatically and will immediately consult with it regarding necessary reactions.
