SUBJECT: Presidential gift to Puerto Vallarta

In August of 1970 the President met with the President of Mexico in the Mexican village of Puerto Vallarta and at that time presented the President of Mexico with a small replica of a LEM as used in the Apollo missions and informed him that the United States would be sending him a monument for the town square to commemorate the meeting.

NASA has informed me that the monument has been completed and I need to know who is going to fund this thing. If you come up with a definite idea on the funding I wish you would direct me to get the thing taken care of and make it in the form of a "White House" or "Presidential must" because this is the kind of grey area that the different agencies tend to back off on.

Office of the White House Press Secretary

THE WHITE HOUSE

The White House announced today that the President has directed a number of management steps to improve the efficiency and effectiveness of the U.S. foreign intelligence community.

The President's objectives are to ensure:

- Continuing review of the responsiveness of the U.S. intelligence effort to national needs.
- Strengthened leadership for the community as a whole.
- More efficient use of resources in the collection of intelligence information.
- Elimination of less efficient or outmoded activities.
- Improvement in the quality, scope and timeliness of intelligence information.

The improvements directed by the President follow an exhaustive study conducted at his direction by the staffs of the National Security Council (NSC) and the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) with contributions from the President's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board (PFIAB), the President's Science Advisor, and the Intelligence community.

The major management improvements include:

- An enhanced leadership role for the Director of Central Intelligence (DCI) in planning, reviewing, coordinating, and evaluating all intelligence programs and activities, and in the production of national intelligence.
- Establishment of a National Security Council Intelligence Committee, chaired by the Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs. Its members will include the Attorney General, the DCI, the Under Secretary of State, the Deputy Secretary of Defense, and the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. The Committee will give direction and guidance on national intelligence needs and provide for a continuing evaluation of intelligence products from the viewpoint of the intelligence user.
- Establishment of a Net Assessment Group within the National Security Council Staff. The group will be headed by a senior staff member and will be responsible for reviewing and evaluating all intelligence products and for producing net assessments.
- Establishment of an Intelligence Resources Advisory Committee, chaired by the DCI, including as members a senior representative from the Department of State, the Department of Defense, the Office of Management and Budget, and the Central Intelligence Agency. This Committee will advise the DCI on the preparation of a consolidated intelligence program budget.

U MORE

- Reconstitution of the United States Intelligence Board chaired by the DCI, including as members the Deputy Director of Central Intelligence (Vice Chairman); Director of Bureau of Intelligence and Research, State Department; Director of National Security Agency, Director of the Defense Intelligence Agency; representatives of the Secretary of the Treasury and of the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Atomic Energy Commission. The Board will advise and assist the DCI with respect to the production of national intelligence, the establishment of national intelligence requirements and priorities, the supervision of the dissemination and security of intelligence material, and the protection of intelligence sources and methods.

The President has also directed certain changes in the Department of Defense's intelligence organization.

A National Cryptologic Command will be set up under the Director of the National Security Agency. Under this command will be consolidated activities now carried out by separate agencies. A further change is the consolidation of all Department of Defense personnel security investigations into a single Office of Defense Investigations. The President has also directed that a Defense Map Agency be created by combining the now separate mapping, charting and geodetic organizations of the military services in order to achieve maximum efficiency and economy in production.

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

August 3, 1965

Dear Admiral Raborn:

A survey of technical and physical security protection for the Presidency was recently conducted in accordance with NSAM 315. The survey team consisted of a select group of security experts from various government agencies.

One of the recommendations of the survey group is that a person having broad professional experience in the security field should be given the primary responsibility to develop a coordinated and more effective security program for the White House complex. It was also recommended that this person be a permanent member of the Technical Surveillance Countermeasures Committee (TSCC) of the U.S. Intelligence Board in order to keep abreast of developments in the audio countermeasures field and to obtain advice and assistance as needed.

In view of the above and the importance of all phases of White House security, it is requested that Charles A. Sither, the member of my staff who has the above responsibilities, be designated a member of the TSCC. It is requested that the U.S. Secret Service observer at the TSCC meetings be designated the alternate White House representative to the parent TSCC. The Secret Service representative will also continue to attend the meetings of the two TSCC subcommittees.

Sincerely,

W. Marvin Watson
Special Assistant to the President

Honorable William F. Raborn
Chairman, U.S. Intelligence Board
Room 7E19
Central Intelligence Agency
Washington, D. C.

17 Aug. '65

Dear Mr. Watson:

I refer to your letter dated August 3 which concerns itself with representation of your staff on the Technical Surveillance Countermeasures Committee (TSCC) of the U.S. Intelligence Board. The TSCC welcomes the participation of members of your staff on the parent committee as well as on the two subcommittees. It is my recommendation, however, that such representation be as observers rather than members so as to avoid an extravagant waste of time and effort on their part.

As observers, your representatives could attend all meetings and be fully aware of all committee deliberations, actions, and recommendations. Though knowledgeable, they would not as observers be directly involved in the support of domestic or overseas action programs which are the responsibility of TSCC. The observers would be fully aware of the intelligence community's research and development programs, countermeasures equipments, techniques, training programs, etc., without becoming enmeshed in the time-consuming interagency coordination mechanisms concerned with such programs. As observers, they would also be knowledgeable of the opposition's capabilities, techniques, and equipment to the extent that such are known to the intelligence community.

The nomination of Mr. Charles A. Sither as your principal participant in the TSCC is particularly welcome in view of his extensive background and unusual qualifications in this field and the TSCC looks forward to his presence at its next meeting on September 17. We also welcome the continued participation of the U.S. Secret Service representative as alternate to Mr. Sither at TSCC meetings and principal attendant at all the meetings of both TSCC subcommittees.

Sincerely,

(signed) W. F. Raborn

In cooperation with the Secret Service in carrying out their duties and responsibilities, it is a policy of long standing in the White House Office to provide that all packages for addressees either in the Executive Mansion or the Office shall be processed through the White House Mail Reception and Security Office (Room 85, EOB) before ultimate delivery. Only in this way can the necessary protective measures be taken.

In the Mail Reception and Security Office the employees coordinate the handling of these items with the Secret Service Protective Research Section, which includes photographing, radiac monitoring, fluoroscopy, and, if necessary, X-raying and detailed inspection. In addition, the sender's name is checked through the White House and Secret Service files, and the receipt of the item is made a matter of record. Since normal processing includes fluoroscopy and X-ray, packages containing photographic film, paper or supplies should be plainly marked as to contents to preclude damage or destruction through radiation.

It is appropriate at this time to call attention to the necessity for strict adherence to this policy and again to encourage employees to have their personal mail and packages sent to their private residences rather than to their offices.

The Mail Reception and Security Office will, of course, process each item as expeditiously as possible and arrange for its immediate delivery. Should time be of the essence in any particular case, the Mail Reception and Security Office should be alerted to that effect (W.H. ext. 35). 693

If an exceptional case should arise in which the standard procedures are not feasible -- such as delivery at some unusual hour -- arrangements for special handling should be cleared through the ranking representative of Secret Service Protective Research or the White House Police.
