Dear George:

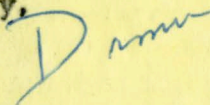

This is just a note to thank you for your letter of March 17.

It was thoughtful of you to comment so generously about my remarks at the Gridiron dinner, and I appreciated having an opportunity to visit with you.

Incidentally, I was glad to note that you have finally come up with a plan which will bring you and Harry Wismer together!

With kind regards,

Cordially,

Richard Nixon

Dear Mr. President:

I thought your speech Saturday night not only extremely well done but in excellent taste. I particularly was pleased with your praise of Ben McKelway, because I know it must have come from experience and from the heart.

As to our discussion, I could negotiate with Paul Robeson. The signing of Robeson might make everybody happy, including Wismer.
