INTERNATIONAL COOPERATION AGAINST TERRORISM

Next, a VOA Editorial, reflecting the views of the U.S. Government.

In the aftermath of the hijacking of PAN AM Flight 73 at Karachi airport it is time to reflect on the widespread reaction to this despicable and cowardly crime. The response of nations around the world has been a resounding rejection of this and other acts of international terrorism, like the cruel murders in the synagogue of Istanbul. Regardless of political or religious persuasion, innocent men and women from every continent are joining the call for a stop to the wanton, indiscriminate killing and destruction.

The hijackers of PAN AM Flight 73 remain in the custody of the Pakistani government awaiting trial for murder. The government of Pakistan is to be congratulated for its handling of the difficult and often confusing situation it faced on September 4. The United States government remains prepared to assist in any way that leads to the successful prosecution of those responsible for the unnecessary killing of twenty men, women, and children from India, Pakistan, Mexico, Britain, and the United States.

This hijacking further demonstrates the resolve of nations to work together to prevent and discourage these attacks on international civil aviation. Not only did Pakistan help in preventing the airplane from departing Karachi -- which properly kept the hijackers on the ground and avoiding a potential in-flight disaster -- other nations refused to allow the airplane to land in their countries were it to have left Pakistan. Nations throughout the region joined together to reject the hijackers from entering their airspace. Countries like Cyprus, Egypt, Kuwait, Jordan, Saudi Arabia, Iran and Italy deserve the recognition from peace-loving people everywhere for their courageous stand against these perpetrators of death and destruction.

President Reagan prays for the families of those killed and injured in this tragedy. He remains committed to work with all nations to stop international terrorism from tearing at the fabric of our civilization and to seek justice against those who would commit violent acts against innocent victims for political reasons. As all of our law-abiding citizens have long understood and governments must continue to learn -- just people with just causes do not resort to terrorism.

That was a VOA Editorial, reflecting the views of the U.S. Government.
