ADDRESS TO THE NATIONAL LEAGUE OF FAMILIES

DATE: January 28, 1983
LOCATION: Hyatt Regency Hotel
Crystal City, Virginia
TIME: 9:30 a.m.
FROM: WILLIAM P. CLARK WPC

I. PURPOSE

To address the National League of Families on Friday, January 28, at 9:30 a.m., in the Regency Room A-D, Hyatt Regency Hotel, Crystal City, Virginia.

II. BACKGROUND

Attendance is expected to be 700 or more persons, including members of Congress and national and regional media coverage. An extremely warm reception is expected from the gathering given your long personal commitment to this group, plus the substantive actions to implement this commitment that have taken place since the League's July 1983 meeting. In my address the day prior, these actions were covered in detail.

Attached at Tab A are your remarks, which do not establish new policy positions on the issue, but give the public your backing to those now in force.

Attached at Tab B is a POW/MIA pin for your lapel.

The Chairman of the League Board, Mr. George Brooks, and Commander Ralph Gaither, Vice Chairman of the Board, plan to present you with a hand-carved plaque at the conclusion of your remarks. The plaque will be a replica of the League logo and was hand-carved by Gaither, himself a returned POW who has been to your home in California when you were Governor.

The podium seating follows this memorandum.

PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: NATIONAL LEAGUE OF FAMILIES OF AMERICAN PRISONERS AND MISSING IN SOUTHEAST ASIA
FRIDAY, JANUARY 28, 1983

George Brooks, Ann Griffiths, members of the board, family members, and Members of the Congress:

I think most of you know that during the course of any given day, we meet with an assortment of groups who represent a cross section of interests and causes.

None of these meetings are routine but I must tell you that this meeting today is more than special. The anguish you've suffered -- the families of brave men listed as prisoners of war or as missing in action -- is unspeakable, something the rest of us can never really know even in partial measure. Twelve years ago, I said something to a group of you in California that I believe is even more true today: If they could be here today, millions of Americans, from every corner of this land, who have only a glimmer of your pain, would say to you "we want with all our hearts to share your burden."

And what a burden you have had to bear. You watched as we disengaged from Vietnam and many of our POW's returned for an emotional homecoming. You have seen task forces and committees hold hearings and issue reports that attempted to foreclose hope. But as the tragic flow of refugees from Indochina began a few years ago, those columns of humanity who had suffered hunger and thirst, disease and piracy, brought with them firsthand, "live sighting" reports of American prisoners held captive after 1973. As this information was investigated, respected figures in the intelligence community reached personal conclusions that these reports were credible, even though the circumstances of the sightings prevented confirmation.

But with these refugees and the news they brought, another tragedy was unfolding here at home. You, the families of our missing men, were trying to be heard, and yet, you were sometimes unfairly and cruelly branded as an emotionally distraught group that ignored reality and simply hoped against hope.

Government and public attention began to wane. And instead of being a full partner with your Government in attempting to learn the fates of your loved ones, you were confronted with legal rulings that presumed your loved ones dead; you found yourselves quite literally on the outside, driven in some cases to demonstrate for attention in front of the White House gates.

Well, today I want you to know that your vigil is over. Your Government is attentive and the intelligence assets of the United States are fully focused on this issue. Furthermore, I pledge to you that we will take decisive action on any live sighting reports that can be confirmed.

We are also working to achieve an accounting of our missing men. I am sure you understand that some of these approaches must be done quietly. As Judge Clark told you yesterday, despite the differences between our governments, we have followed up the encouraging Lao response to the recent visit by the League's delegation. We are fully prepared to take additional, concrete steps with the Lao government to improve relations. I pledge to you that progress on the POW/MIA issue will be a principle measure of their sincerity. I wish to recognize publicly their positive steps to date and call upon them to continue with us in this humanitarian effort to end the years of uncertainty you have endured.

I also call on the government in Hanoi to honor their pledges to the American people on the POW/MIA issue. Not for me, not for our Government -- but for our missing men and those of you who did nothing to deserve this terrible emotional ordeal you have endured.

Now these steps are an indication of how things are changing for the better and how the work of those of you in the National League of Families has helped bring about this change.

You are the ones who have forged a partnership to realize our common quest: the return of all POW's, the fullest possible accounting for those still missing, and the repatriation of remains of those who died serving our Nation. The myth that this effort is partisan or needlessly raises your hopes has now been dashed.

The Government bureaucracy now understands that these goals are of the highest national priority and there is strong bipartisan support in the Congress. Those Americans who attempted to discharge Government responsibilities through private efforts should now understand that the full resources of our Government are now committed to these goals.

Today is a time for remembering many -- the private donors, the Congressmen and the Government employees, all those who are dedicated to organizing and supporting a variety of projects to achieve our goals. Because of the very nature of their work, they must shun publicity, but I want them to know that their quiet and responsible efforts represent the highest patriotic humanitarian values. I urge them to continue on with their work regardless of the obstacles and frustrations -- for the return home of only one of our men will be a personal reward of far greater value than any words spoken here today.

But beyond all those I have mentioned, there are of course those of you here today. Today, this is a room of heroes who kept a vigil of unprecedented faith and devotion. Through all the years of heartbreak and mistrust, you have been the ones who have cared, you have been the ones who asked for justice, for deeds not words.

The membership of the National League of Families, past and present board members, and your national office staff deserve the gratitude and accolades of this Nation. And I think I should mention other individuals who share our goals, such as Fred Travelena and returned POW Captain Jerry Coffee, have also given without regard to personal gain.

So all of us can be gratified that progress is being made -- but never satisfied. We need greater public awareness from the American people. So I ask each American who hears or reads of this to find a way to help. No matter how small each individual effort may seem, it is needed.

I ask too that you continue to provide us with positive suggestions through your Washington office. We welcome and solicit your help and cooperation, as well as your criticism when you feel we deserve it. It is possible there will be differences from time to time on tactics and strategy, but I repeat: We are heartfelt allies and friends, our goals are the same.

The Government is large, it's possible that sometimes you will hear voices that will sound contradictory or insensitive. But we're doing what we can to eliminate that. So, please, don't let it shake our larger faith. Only if we are united, only if we have faith in each other, can we finally hope to end the tragic ordeal that you have endured with such steadfast and wondrous courage.

God bless all of you and I want you to know Nancy and my prayers are with you and your loved ones.
