March 21, 1983

MEETING WITH SELECTED HOUSE REPUBLICANS TO DISCUSS THE FEDERAL BUDGET

DATE: Tuesday, March 22, 1983

LOCATION: The Cabinet Room

TIME: 4:00 P.M. (45 minutes)

FROM: Kenneth M. Duberstein

K. D.

I. PURPOSE

To solicit Republican views on the Fiscal Year 1984 Budget, and the overall economic recovery effort, and to urge them to oppose the Democrat Budget proposal which is expected to be considered on the House Floor Wednesday, March 23.

II. BACKGROUND

This is the fifth in a series of meetings with selected House Republicans to discuss the Federal Budget.

On March 15, House Budget Committee Democrats agreed to a Fiscal Year 1984 Budget proposal that now is tentatively scheduled for House Floor consideration on Wednesday, March 23.

A press release by Democrat Budget Committee Members characterizes the proposal as one which "addresses the needs of all Americans with fairness and compassion." In reality, however, it is a political document which refutes the Administration's economic recovery effort by returning to the failed "tax and tax, spend and spend" policies of the past.

Among other things, this Budget proposal assumes 1) repeal of the third year tax rate reduction, 2) repeal of the tax indexing provision, 3) a drastic slash in the level of defense spending proposed under the Administration Budget proposal, and 4) a major increase in domestic spending compared to the Administration plan. Taxes would go up about $30 billion in Fiscal Year 1984 alone if this plan was implemented (over $300 billion in the next five years).

BACKGROUND (CONT'D)

House Republicans have not been able to fashion an acceptable Budget alternative which could win on the Floor, given the substantial increase in Democrat votes in the 98th Congress. However, it is felt that enough Democrats are skeptical of their Party's Budget plan, that a coalition may be possible to at least defeat that proposal on the Floor. That, in turn, would increase our ability to achieve a compromise later in the legislative process.

TALKING POINTS ON HOUSE DEMOCRAT BUDGET

- Signs of Spring usually remind us that it will soon be time to move our watches forward. I've called you here today because the House Democrats have apparently seen the signs of economic recovery and growing success for our program and have embarked on a desperate, last-ditch effort to turn the clock the other way--backward to 1980...or maybe 1970...or 1960...1950...
- I'm referring to the House Democrat Budget plan for 1984 which finally proves why I don't like five-year budget projections: Their trend-line goes right straight backwards to the Carter policies which created the mess we have struggled so hard to correct.
- I recognize that our budget deficit problem is so large, severe and threatening that it can only be solved through a process of "give and take" with the Congress.
- But how can you compromise with a proposal that throws out the window all of the hard-won progress we made these last two years on each of the fundamental elements of national policy.

-- Just for the immediate future--1983-84--the House Democrat plan calls for:

- o A $27 billion increase in taxes.
- o A $10 billion cut in defense.
- o An $8 billion increase in the two year deficit.
- o And all this--so they can have a staggering $45 billion increase in domestic spending compared to what we have proposed.

-- Unfortunately, that's just the short-run proposal. Dave Stockman will give you more details on their total five-year plan, but let me give you the message in no uncertain terms. I'm not going to sit still for a proposal which:

- o Raises taxes by $316 billion over five years --thereby cancelling in one fell swoop 42% of the net tax cut we have given the American people.
- o Guts our defense rebuilding program by slashing $206 billion from my 1984-88 request.
- o Repeals many of the overdue welfare reforms we have already enacted--throwing away billions in savings.
- o And in the name of fairness, adds an incredible $181 billion in domestic spending to the high levels we have already proposed.

-- The truth is, this so-called Democrat "fairness budget" is really about cruelty--to taxpayers who would face huge new burdens; to consumers who would face renewed threats of soaring inflation; to the jobless who would have no hope of economic recovery; and to every peace-loving American citizen who could no longer have confidence that our defenses are strong and our nation secure.

-- So if you haven't guessed, I'm ready to go to the mat on this one. And I hope I can count on your strong support.

-- There will come a time for give-and-take down the road. But not until they take this entire plan off the table--either voluntarily, or with our efforts, your votes and the strong insistence of the American people.

PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: CAPITOL HILL CLUB RECEPTION
TUESDAY, MARCH 22, 1983

Thank you very much. It is a real pleasure to come to Capitol Hill and find myself surrounded by friends. I must say I was enthusiastic when they told me I had been invited to a clean-up party on Capitol Hill. Now that I'm here I see I misunderstood. These elevators may need a little work and perhaps the carpets could stand some freshening up, but it's somewhere else that has so many screws loose.

Seriously, it is a pleasure to be here this evening. Because of your hard work, your loyal support, and your dedication to principle, America has its first chance in many years for real and lasting economic recovery. Your work and votes for the economic recovery programs -- our tax reforms and spending restraints -- have brought on the recovery gaining strength today. And with your guidance, support and tireless efforts, we were able to negotiate a compromise solution to our social security system. On behalf of the young couples who once again can look forward to owning their own homes, our elderly who can rest assured of their security, and the millions of ordinary American families now freed from the ravages of inflation, I thank you.

I know you are only too aware of the budget now being proposed in the House by the die-hard big-spenders. In what even the Washington Post has labeled a rehash of old Democratic policies, some Democrats are proposing a complete reversal of the domestic spending cuts we struggled to achieve during the last 2 years. They are calling for dangerous and drastic reductions in our defense program and tax hikes that would pile the tax burden on working-Americans higher than the record peace-time levels imposed during the last Administration. Their budget represents a wholesale return to the big-Government policies that failed so miserably in the past, bringing on the pain and hardship of recent years. We must not let that happen again. Together, we will not let that happen.

This spring, once again, I am asking for your help and support as we fight to protect the people's tax cuts, their indexing provision, and the all-important restraints on spending we have both won and proposed. If we continue on the course we have charted together, America's recovery will flourish and our people will prosper again. If we abandon principle now, giving in to the big-spenders and big-taxers, the recovery our people suffered so long to achieve will be snuffed out before it even takes hold.

So thank you, again, for your past courage and determination. I am grateful and the American people are grateful. We are counting on your continued spirit and unwavering strength during the tough weeks ahead. We are so very close now to achieving that great American renewal we set as our goal. Bound together in common commitment we can and we will make it happen.

Now, I believe you may have some questions for me.
