Counsel's Office has reviewed the above-referenced draft briefing materials. The "Affirmative Action" points contain the statement "We all agree that the use of quotas is discretionary." "Discretionary" should be changed to "discriminatory."

As we have pointed out before with respect to Gramm-Rudman points, it is misleading and inaccurate to state that the three-judge panel of the district court "upheld the validity of Gramm-Rudman-Hollings Act." It is correct to state that the court upheld the validity of the general approach of Gramm-Rudman, while striking down as unconstitutional one aspect of the Act. In addition, in the last sentence of the first Gramm-Rudman point, "will" should be changed to "should" -- there are never any guarantees on when the Supreme Court will act.

Mr. Hart telephoned me about the application of Nippon Cargo Airlines, with which I was unfamiliar. I advised Mr. Hart that if the matter were a Section 801 case, the Executive Order would prohibit me from discussing it with him. Shortly thereafter, I received this correspondence. on Laurence Tribe's God Save This

Pursuant to our discussion at this morning's staff meeting, I have re-dated my proposed response for your signature.

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

February 6, 1986

MEMORANDUM FOR FRED F. FIELDING

FROM:

JOHN G. ROBERTS

SUBJECT:

George Washington Law Review's Article
on Laurence Tribe's God Save This Honorable Court

Jeffrey Walker, Book Review Editor of The George Washington Law Review, has invited you to respond to a review of Professor Tribe's God Save This Honorable Court by Donald Lively, an associate professor of law at the University of Toledo College of Law. Tribe's book -- written with the very specific aim of influencing the confirmation process for the next Supreme Court nominee -- argues that (1) Presidents generally get what they want from Supreme Court justices they appoint, and (2) the Senate should play a more active role in the "advice and consent" process. Lively's review -- trite, sophomoric pabulum -- applauds Tribe and contrasts Tribe's view with that of Justice Rehnquist, who noted in a recent address that justices often frustrate the aims of the Presidents who appoint them.

I am not entirely unbiased, but I found Lively's critique of Rehnquist's views and some of his judicial opinions not only shallow and unconvincing, but an offensive "bashing" calculated to endear the author to liberal academia. Rehnquist's views, for example, are labeled "careless," "reckless," "self-serving," and "disingenuous." The author has not even a modicum of intellectual shame, unabashedly attacking straw men. See p. 7 ("Rehnquist might argue that...").

Frankly, neither this review nor what I have read of Tribe's book strike me as a serious undertaking worthy of response. Some justices live up to the expectations of those who appoint them; some do not. The Senate is free under the Constitution to consider whatever it cares to consider in voting on a nominee. I would simply advise Mr. Walker that we barely have time for light reading, let alone writing reviews.

SUBJECT: Presidential Radio Talk: Nicaragua

Counsel's Office has reviewed the above-referenced draft radio talk, and finds no objection to it from a legal perspective. The first two lines of the fourth paragraph on page one are, however, subject to misinterpretation. The sentence can be read to mean that no nation received more aid from us than did Nicaragua, which is not true. This confusion can be cured by adding "was providing" after "nation" at the end of the second line of the paragraph.

DIRECTOR
PRESIDENTIAL APPOINTMENTS AND SCHEDULING

FROM: JOHN G. ROBERTS
ASSOCIATE COUNSEL TO THE PRESIDENT

SUBJECT: Request to Prepare a Videotape for the Commission on the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution

You have asked for our views on whether the President should do a videotape for the Commission on the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution. The Commission would use the videotape in presentations to state and local groups to promote appropriate commemoration of the bicentennial.

This office has no legal objection to the President providing a brief videotape, and we think it would be a good idea. The videotape would provide the President an opportunity to present his views on the importance of recommitting ourselves to the basic values of Federalism and liberty embodied in the Constitution. The message should not discuss the Commission or specific projects, but simply the general importance of the Constitution. This office should review the message, and can assist in the drafting as well.

It should be noted that the Commission is authorized by law to accept donations to cover its own expenses and projects. It must be made clear to the Commission that a Presidential videotape will be provided only if there are adequate assurances that it will not be used in any sort of fundraising activity.
