September 12, 1983

Dear Jay:

Thank you for your letter enclosing a copy of your letter to the President requesting an environment message.

While I understand and appreciate your interest in having the President issue an Environmental Statement, many of us here have concluded that a single statement may not be sufficient or achieve its desired result. The President charged EPA Administrator Bill Ruckelshaus with several priority items, including a thorough review of options for dealing with the acid rain dilemma, when he was sworn in last spring. And now, the Administration is deeply engaged in several issues relating to the environment which will in the long run prove more important and have more lasting impact than a Presidential statement.

I appreciate your thoughtfulness in providing a copy of your letter to the President. As we continue to address environmental questions in the months ahead, I will keep your views in mind.

Dear Mr. ^{Mike} Deaver:

Attached is a copy of a letter I sent today to the President concerning your apparent decision not to proceed with a Presidential Environmental Message. I was first informed of this decision by members of the White House staff when I attended a reception honoring conservationists from Costa Rica in the Rose Garden last week. I have since confirmed this decision through EPA staff.

~~For the reasons stated in my letter, I think the decision to cancel the Environmental Message is a mistake.~~ It leaves the perception that the President's interest in environmental issues is entirely a function of their political salience, to be ignored once the heat is off.

As you know from your own polls, support for strong environmental programs runs deep within the modern American society. The public will not accept an economic program that lacks visible and effective environmental policies.

A strong non-partisan Presidential statement of this Administration's environmental programs and policies, is still needed. We would appreciate any assistance you could lend in this matter. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Jay

Tuesday, September 6, 1983

The Hon. Michael K. Deaver
Deputy Chief of Staff
The White House
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. Deaver:

On Monday, October 24, 1983, the Helicon Corporation in partnership with AACCLA - The Association of American Chambers of Commerce in Latin America, and the Baltimore Council on Foreign Affairs, will sponsor a major national conference on United States - Latin American Relations and Trade Opportunities, at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Baltimore, Maryland.

As you can see, from the enclosed letter to the President, this conference could very well be one of the most productive forums for the President to present and further clarify this nation's policies and objectives in the countries of the Americas and the Caribbean.

I believe, that upon review of my letter to the President and our invitation for him to address the conference, you will see the determined effort that we are putting behind this conference and the support we feel for the President in his commitment to protect American interests in the hemisphere.

The events of the past week must wake up the free world to the reality of Soviet objectives. The examination of Soviet intentions and conduct should also serve to shed new light and understanding of Soviet interests and activities in the Western Hemisphere. Only a few weeks away, we believe our conference is an excellent opportunity and a very appropriate forum for the President to address this issue with new strength and determination. We hope and request that you encourage the President to accept our invitation. Thank you, in advance, for your review, consideration and support.

Sincerely,

Dear Mike:

With the long weekend and certain pressing events behind us, I hope you have had an opportunity to review the submitted request for an East Room or Blair House reception for our Women in Communications conference on September 22.

The goal of the symposium, which will take place at the Commission all day September 23, is to encourage an exchange among women who are business leaders in communications, including female broadcasters, investors, video and film producers and those getting involved in new and evolving communications services.

The reception on the 22nd will be a kickoff event for the conference the next day--appropriate in timing as that is the day the President declared in July as the National Women in Business Day. It would be a mutually beneficial event, I think, and a Presidential drop-in (5 minutes or less) would be a smart step. General media and broadcast media coverage is assured.

I hope you will give favorable consideration to our request.

The White House
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Mr. President:

This is a "birthday note" marking the first anniversary of your signing into law the Small Business Innovation Development Act (P. L. 97-219).

At the White House ceremony on July 22, 1982, you pointed out that the Small Business Innovation Research program would require a partnership of the Executive branch of the Federal government and small business in the private sector.

The first full year of the developing "partnership" will not be over until the close of the fiscal year on September 30. Only 100 of the estimated 750 grants for innovative research anticipated to be made have yet been made. But this legislative anniversary date should not pass without your receiving at least this summary view from the private sector as to how each of the two "partners" handled the first SBIR year.

We can all, I think, take pride in the magnificent response of the Nation's small high technology companies to the SBIR program. More than 8,700 proposals have been submitted to the eleven Federal agencies conducting research grant solicitations. (Although it may not be a wholly relevant comparison, 1,000 proposals were made by academic people in response to a recent research grant solicitation made by one of the major oil companies.)

The outpouring of proposals in response to the SBIR program confirms the serious -- even dangerous -- under-utilization of small high technology firms as a part of our national science base. Informal discussions with agency personnel confirm that the quality of the proposals is generally high. The estimated 750 grants to be made this year (one of every 14 of the 8,700 proposals) will call for no compromise with excellence.

The entrepreneurial owners and managers of these firms, moreover, are ready to go the extra mile of voluntary self-help to strengthen the whole private sector. More than 900 small technology business, professional and other opinion leaders have already volunteered for the "National Innovation Network" which this Institute is organizing. We will designate 100 of them this week as State Co-Chairmen and as the founding members of the Institute's "Technology Venture Presidents' Council".

On the government side, your Administration and the SBIR's supporters in Congress can take pride in the generally diligent Federal agency efforts to get the program under way speedily and well. All of us hope, of course, that the program's management and small business' response will improve in each succeeding year. The sunset provision in the law means that the program has, effectively, just four more years to prove itself finally.

Our Institute will try to assemble a useful consensus from participants and responsible observers about lessons from the first year. We will, of course, make the results available to the agencies for such use as they may have for them.

We have also, we believe, laid the basis for a still broader private sector direct and indirect involvement in the SBIR program. Many well-qualified small technology firms have yet to hear about it. Others do not yet know that it is a substantial step forward from past Federal small business procurement practices which have discouraged them. We are particularly anxious to find ways to improve the working relationships between participating small high technology firms on the one hand and the rest of the private sector on the other: large companies, universities and the financial community. Very promising support activities are under discussion in a number of states, and in some local governments.

Whether one looks at the future of the SBIR program from the standpoint of the Federal government or the private sector, it is clear that continued and recurringly visible Presidential support for it is indispensable. Congressional supporters of the legislation, particularly Senator Warren Rudman and Representatives Bedell, Gore, McDade and others have provided the Nation with an excellent example of responsible, vigilant oversight. Without your support when needed, their efforts would have been far less effective. (a)

We should like respectfully to suggest two ways in which this continued Presidential support may be expressed. On October 10, our Institute will be holding a major function at the Franklin Institute in Philadelphia. We are planning to make it a major event for both the scientific and business communities. The site has been carefully chosen to underscore the historic American linkage of "Basic Science, Industrial Technology and Entrepreneurship." The program will be notable one, featuring each of those private sector elements which must work together to maximize the benefits of the SBIR program. Several hundred technology entrepreneurs -- including SBIR winners and members of our Technology Venture Presidents' Council will be present. Of course we would be honored to have the President address the closing dinner, but we appreciate the demands of your schedule. As an alternative, we would be delighted to have a five to fifteen minute videotape message which we will show as a highlight of our program. On the succeeding Saturday (October 15) you could use it in your national radio broadcast.

Once again, we believe your support of the SBIR program has served our country well and we are grateful for it. You may rely on our continued commitment to its success and our readiness to help in any way we can.

To save time, I'm taking the liberty of sending copies directly to John Rousselot, Jim Sanders and Craig Fuller.

Sincerely,

Hi Mike!

The enclosed brochure is from Russell Lee and ECCA. This plan is a genius plan, it can solve the hunger problem in the United States, and it is working! The attached article is on how one million people will be fed in Los Angeles at Thanksgiving!

Mrs. James Baker visited the ECCA center in Los Angeles while the President was here, and intended to try to bring the President (and/or some of his closest advisors) to see the home base of this operation - but then the Korean airliner situation precluded it. She was most impressed, and I'd love it if somebody in your office would check with her about it.

Here's my real pitch, Mike: a friend of mine told me today that Russ Reid, the head of the Russ Reid Agency that does World Vision's spectacularly successful syndicated TV Specials, has been engaged by the Democratic party to do some important television and PR for Democratic candidates in 1984, and the real thrust will be in the area of hunger in America. They feel this is the one area where Reagan is really vulnerable. They want to feature Russell Lee and ECCA, because the plan is working, and would like to promise more of the same if the Democrats are elected!

As in most of the other areas, I believe the President can beat them to the punch, and absolutely rob them of an issue. Russell Lee is a Christian, and very much in the President's corner - in fact, it was largely the President's call for volunteerism that spurred Russell on. He is a volunteer, the plan will work in every American city, is especially effective in the urban areas, and addresses itself to minorities and underprivileged people, and doesn't cost the taxpayer anything!

Obviously, if the President can be situated to take due credit for feeding a million people in one swoop at Thanksgiving time especially, in a city like Los Angeles - it can be worldwide news, and prove that Ronald Reagan not only cares, but can come up with plans that work and fit his long held belief that the private sector has the answers, and not government and taxation.

September 6, 1983

I'm sure you see the implications and
I rush this information to you.

I'm also including a song that I've written and produced which is circulating amongst the Christian community widely in the United States, the title "LET ME LIVE: the anthem of the unborn child". The President has often said, "it's a shame that the one most vitally effected in the abortion issue can't speak out in its own defense".

Now it can.

This song gives that unborn child a voice, a chance to plead its own cause, and I'm still hoping that there are ways that folks at your end can help us get this tape with its message to the right people, and in sufficient quantity to help fuel the groundswell reaction that will demand the amendment the President is seeking. Everywhere this song is heard, people's thinking starts to change, and the reaction is usually, "where can I get copies of that?
I want to get it to ----", the uses of it are legion, and I thought I ought to let you hear it. I'm not sure Jim Rosebush has actually let Nancy hear it, because I would have expected some reaction from her, and perhaps a suggestion or two about how to utilize the song to a greater degree. I pass it along to you in the hope that you may have a sage word or two for me.

I know you've got lots of other things to do, so I'll sign off.

Warm wishes from Shirley and me,

Dear Jim:

Thank you for your letter of September 1st. I have spoken with Fred Ryan, Director of the Scheduling office and he will be getting in touch with you to set a time for a meeting with the President. However I must explain that we object to any effort to use the meeting to involve the President in fundraising.

We have already denied a request filed on behalf of the association to use the Presidential Seal in fundraising for the restoration effort. It must further state that the fact of the meeting, or any statement of photographs flowing from it may not be used to aid in fundraising.

If there is anything else I can do please get in touch.

Sincerely,

MEMORANDUM FOR MICHAEL K. DEEVER

FROM: FRED F. FIELDING
COUNSEL TO THE PRESIDENT

SUBJECT: Request by James Roosevelt for Meeting with the President to Discuss U.S.S.
Potomac Restoration Efforts

*Bill

You have asked for our views on the request from James Roosevelt that the President meet with him and several other individuals associated with the effort to restore FDR's Presidential Yacht, Potomac. The effort is a joint project of the Port of Oakland and the Association for the Restoration of the Presidential Yacht Potomac. The latter organization, which has filed for 501(c)(3) status with the IRS, is actively involved in raising funds for the project.

Assuming that the Association is granted 501(c)(3) status, we would have no objection to several of its members, and others involved in the restoration project, meeting with the President to advise him of their efforts. We would, however, object to any effort to use the meeting to involve the President in fundraising. We have already denied a request filed on behalf of the Association to use the Presidential Seal in fundraising for the restoration effort.

Should a meeting be held, Mr. Roosevelt and his colleagues should be made fully aware in advance that the fact of the meeting, or any statements or photographs flowing from it, may not be used to aid their fundraising. Such a limitation may remove their main purpose in seeking the meeting.

Dear Michael:

I have the privilege of being associated with the U.S.S. Intrepid, the Presidential Yacht my father used frequently during his Administration. The many good reasons to dedicate this memorial are reflected in the accompanying statement from the Board of Governors.

As you can see, President Reagan has been apprised of this ambitious project. His response is particularly gratifying to the Roosevelt family.

A delegation of friends is now seeking an appointment with [REDACTED] to discuss my progress and ask for his continuing encouragement. The other individuals accompanying me are identified below:

The Honorable Lionel J. Wilson, Mayor of Oakland
Ms. Patricia Pineda, President, Oakland Board of Port Commissioners
Mr. Douglas Fraser, President Emeritus, International Union of United Auto Workers
Mrs. Emelyn K. Jewett, Senator Knowland's daughter

Naturally, we would like to see the President as soon as his schedule permits. I look forward to hearing from you.

Warmest personal regards,

Sincerely,

James Roosevelt

Dear Mr. Deaver:

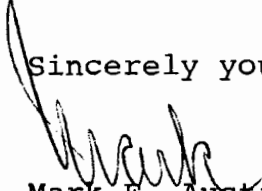

I know you only by reputation and obviously it is superb. By way of introduction, I have the good fortune of having been selected by the President to represent him in the Kingdom of Norway. No person ever enjoyed a post more than I enjoy this one and conversely, I don't think anybody ever worked harder to try to make a success of it. As you may or may not know, this is my second go-around as Ambassador, as President Ford appointed me to Finland in 1974.

My reason for taking your busy time is to inform you of a very able young lady who is interested in working for the President. Her name is Cynthia Boich. If you have traveled to Phoenix with the President or Mrs. Reagan, conceivably you have met her or have seen her. I say that because she is the next-door-neighbor to Mrs. Reagan's mother. Cynthia has been very close to both Dr. and Mrs. Davis for a good many years. In no way do I suggest that the above is qualification enough for her to work for the President. I have worked with Cynthia for a number of years on the International Heart Foundation Board in Phoenix, Arizona. That Board is made up of some of the leading citizens of the Phoenix area. Cynthia has held a number of important jobs for several corporations. I am sure she will inform you of the details of her background. She has recently formed a business of her own dealing with major corporations of the west. She called me from Phoenix asking my opinion and I strongly urged her to pursue direct contact.

I fully realize one of the President's problems is getting qualified women to fill important positions which might be available. From my own viewpoint, I can assure you she would be a strong addition to the Reagan team wherever you might find her a suitable assignment.

I hope all goes well with you and that you are not too close to the forest to see the trees. From far away Norway, the President is looking better and better. I speak not only for myself, but for many of the people with whom I come into contact, both in government and among many Norwegian friends. Continued success to you.

Sincerely yours,

Mark E. Austad

Summary

I want to report to you on our successful efforts to support Ambassador Kirkpatrick's Security Council speech on the Soviet air massacre. USIA produced a 10-minute VCR on flight KAL 007, using recorded comments of the Soviet pilots who stalked and shot down the plane. The VCR decisively refuted Soviet claims that they had warned the plane, had fired only tracer shots, and that the plane had been flying without navigational lights. At about the same time that Ambassador Kirkpatrick played the tape for a fascinated audience of delegates and reporters, the Soviet Government reluctantly admitted shooting down the Korean plane.

A copy of the tape is attached.

Background

USIA, working in conjunction with other agencies, prepared a videotape showing the flight path of the ill-fated Korean plane, and the comments of the Russian pilots who tracked and finally shot it down. English translations, identification of speakers, and printed Russian texts appear on the screen over the pilots' voices.

Ambassador Kirkpatrick played the tape for the U.N. Security Council as part of her presentation, and later at a press conference at USUN. Veteran observers believed that this use of videotape as part of a Security Council debate is unprecedented. At about the same time, the Soviet Government finally admitted shooting down the plane, confounding their own U.N. ambassador who chose not to reply directly to the evidence of the tape.

A fascinated group of delegates and journalists watched the tape on five specially provided TV monitors - one of which was set up behind the Soviet Ambassador as a focal point for photographs. The VTR was the principal topic at the press conference Ambassador Kirkpatrick held at our U.N. Mission following her speech. Judging by many of the questions and comments made informally, the journalists present seemed to consider the tape as "the smoking gun", which definitively refuted the Soviet's various and conflicting accounts of the disaster.

*M.D.D.
I have the tape
B.S*

Soviet Ambassador Troyanovsky did not even try to reply to the tape. At about the same time that Ambassador Kirkpatrick spoke to a hushed U.N. audience, the Soviet Government finally announced that they had, indeed, shot down KAL 007.

Comment

This innovative use of television demonstrates the impact a carefully produced and well coordinated program can make. The alternative - releasing the printed text and audio tapes of the pilots' transcript - would not have achieved the same dramatic effect and newsworthiness. The tape is being played by TV stations around the world, forcefully driving home the reality of the Soviet's brutal act - and the inadequacy of their explanations.

Dear Mr. Danilov:

Thank you for the letter and the materials on the President's visit with Mrs. Mabel Oliver. We sure do appreciate persons like her who are with us.

With regard to your recommendation of Chief Judge James A. Andersen of the Circuit of Appeals to a vacancy on the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals, I have sent it on to Fred Fielding, Counsel to the President, for his review. I'm sure he will be in touch on this at the appropriate time.

Dear Mr. _____

I trust that you have received the various materials which I have sent to you about the recent meeting of President Ronald M. Reagan and Mrs. Mabel K. Oliver in Seattle.

The meeting between the President and "Mrs. Republican" (as Mabel is affectionately known in Seattle) was a "smashing hit!" Mrs. Oliver has been receiving numerous invitations to speak at social functions for the "older citizens" about her good health, age, good looks, and Republicanism - of course. I believe that Mabel has already started the "re-election campaign" for President Reagan "unofficially."

Now it gives me a great deal of pleasure to send to you copies of my letters to President Ronald M. Reagan and Vice President George Bush in which I have expressed my support for the appointment of Chief Judge James A. Andersen of the Circuit Court of Appeals for the State of Washington to a vacancy on the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals for the United States at San Francisco. After you have an opportunity to review these materials, I hope that you will agree with me that Judge Andersen deserves the appointment: he has worked for the Republican Party for more than 40 years starting as a King County Deputy Prosecuting Attorney and pursuing a very illustrious career in the Washington State Legislature as a Republican Senator. All of us in Seattle (both Republicans and Democrats) hold Judge James A. Andersen in the highest esteem.

As an active member of the Republican Party for the past 38 years and a former candidate for the United States House of Representatives from the 7th Congressional District, I have watched very closely the career of Judge James A. Andersen and I am writing you a report to you that Judge Andersen will add a great mark of distinction to the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit. I urge you to support the appointment of Chief Judge James A. Andersen to President Ronald M. Reagan for the vacancy on the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals.

Sincerely yours
Dan P. Danilo
