Dear Mr. Denny:

Thank you for your letter of September 19. I was happy to learn of your interest in a position as speechwriter for the President. I have taken the liberty of referring your correspondence to David Gergen, Director of Communications here at the White House. I am sure you will be hearing from him soon regarding your request for a job.

Thank you again for your interest in serving the Reagan Administration.

With best wishes,

Mr. Michael Deaver,
The White House,
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. Deaver,

I understand that you may need a speechwriter for the President. If so, I'd like very much to talk to you about it -- and, perhaps, offer a no-obligation trial run.

I am, in brief, a multi-media writer who is deeply interested in political and foreign policy issues, who believes that the President can communicate more effectively than at present, and who, in past years, wrote speeches for a wide variety of public and private people.

In a prior incarnation, I was an editorial consultant to the Civil Rights Commission under Eisenhower and Johnson. In that capacity, I wrote speeches for President Johnson, Attorney General Herbert Brownell, Senator Ed Muskie, and others. I also served as special editor of a book on 100 years' progress on civil rights in America. Later, I wrote speeches on housing and urban planning for Muskie and wrote a variety of speeches for members of the House and Senate on oil and brick depletion allowances (defending them) and on the positive effect on local economies of the food industry. I also wrote perhaps 100 speeches for various trade association heads on issues affecting their industries.

If you possibly recall my infrequent correspondence with you, I've made suggestions for 5-minute talks by the President on broadcast media (I think your people used my suggestion for radio but not for TV), and for handling of various foreign policy and domestic issues.

Unfortunately, I don't have copies of speeches written in the past. Instead, to give you a sample of my general writing and thinking, I'm enclosing an essay that I'm offering to a magazine. It's a spinoff of a year's research on issues of war, peace, and morality for a foundation proposal for documentary film production.

If what I've said and written interests you, please call me. Thanks.

Sincerely,

Bob Denny

Dear Elise:

I have received your letter of September 16 with attached from Ellen Sill-Levy, President of the Financial Women's Association of New York, endorsing the idea of the Economic Club of New York and the FWA jointly sponsoring a dinner featuring the President as guest speaker.

Many thanks for bringing this worthwhile invitation to my attention. As you may note in our response to your letter of July 26th your request has been referred to Fred Ryan, Director of Presidential Scheduling. We'll raise this matter at our next long-range scheduling meeting and you should expect to hear from Fred very soon.

With best wishes,

and to Pete.

Dear Mike:

As you can see by the enclosed, I am forwarding a request to have the President as a speaker before the Financial Women's Association in New York. This group might provide an appropriate mechanism for the President to call attention to some of his success stories in the economic area.

Faith Whittlesey's office (through Judy Buckalew) is apprised of this invitation and has all the background information on the Financial Women's Association.

I should think an October or November date, if it were of interest, might be appropriate. I would appreciate knowing whether this is a go or no-go situation.

Sincerely,

Dear Elise:

On behalf of the Financial Women's Association, we would be honored to sponsor a special presentation in New York City for President Ronald Reagan.

For more than 28 years, the Financial Women's Association of New York has actively worked to enhance the contributions of women in finance. We are the largest and most prominent financial women's association in the country.

As you know, at this writing our members include: Muriel Siebert, Former New York State Banking Commissioner; Suzanne Jaffe, Deputy Comptroller of New York State; Hon. Paula Hughes, Member of the Board of Governors -- U.S. Postal Service; Barbara Thomas, SEC Commissioner; Julia Walsh, Chairman Julia Walsh & Sons, Inc., and women with senior management responsibilities in leading corporations and financial institutions.

Guests who have spoken at FWA sponsored events include: Walter Wriston, Chairman, Citicorp; Arthur Levitt Jr., Chairman Board of Governors and Chief Executive Officer, The American Stock Exchange; Hon. Donald Rumsfeld, former Secretary of Defense and U.S. Ambassador to NATO; Hon. William G. Miller to Secretary of the Treasury; Paul Volcker, Chairman, Federal Reserve Bank; Thomas Murphy, former Chairman, General Motors Corporation.

I've attached some background information about the Financial Women's Association for your review.

If we are able to arrange a program for the President, the FWA would be responsible for liaisioning with all relevant women's business groups, e.g., The Women's Forum, the Women's Bond Club, etc. We would sponsor a forum of any size, according to the wishes of The White House.

I look forward to hearing from you.

Best,

Dear Mike,

The idea enclosed--which would make it difficult for the Soviets in any future 007 like confrontation--originated close to home.

It's from my wife, Mary Cele. (A Math/English major and my most reliable of all consultants.)

Any consideration you or your designates might believe it to merit will, as always, be deeply appreciated.

As an aside, when 007 was hit, many asked my reaction--to it and the President's response. (I was not surprised to hear it was you who prompted his immediate return from California.)

For whatever it might be worth in early campaign strategies, here's what I found myself saying:

The incident finally puts into perspective for everyone--what the President has known all along. The Soviets are the enemy.

Ronald Reagan, I contend, took this job in 1980...for reasons other than the usual motivators of great men--fame, power or money. He'd enough of all three to anticipate a super retirement...which he gave up to run.

His prime motivation, instead, was to place two subjects on the national agenda: (1) The Soviets are the enemy. (2) So is big government here.

For 1984, I say, he'll run again because it's just like 1978-79 all over. Who else is there (with the courage and charisma) to further sell this agenda if he doesn't run? So he'll run ... and he'll win.

End of comment, Mike. But I've found these simple basics will convince diverse people of his motives. ..so perhaps there's something appropriate to the campaign. (FYI, Ed Rollins has acknowledged my interest in the campaign, conveyed to him by Neal Peden of RNC.)

Thanks for reading...please give my regards to President "Dutch".

Dear Mr. President:

A tragedy of the magnitude of the destroyed Korean passenger plane should immediately lead to a remedy for the prevention of a repeat.

If, by international law, all intercontinental aircraft were required to be equipped with a color-coded computerized language translator, never again would 269 persons be shot down with an excuse of inability to communicate.

Current world opinion would pressure the Soviets to seriously consider adoption.

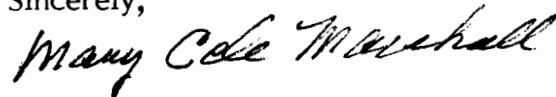

Such a computer system should be able to be easily and inexpensively developed and incorporated into all flights. The color code could be yellow for "you are entering private (enemy) territory"; red for, "You have one minute to begin departing or we shoot"; blue could be symbolic of, "I didn't know - Sorry, I'll leave"; orange could be, "We are in trouble and plane needs escort out or down"...etc.

Theoretically there could be two color boards - sending and receiving, to insure records are kept. There also should be code symbolizing understanding and agreement.

Thank you for your time.

SUBJECT: Follow-up In Two Areas

I would like you to follow-up and see how we can continue the Education themes. Unfortunately, after our original blitz, the numbers have turned sour again.

Also, no one seems to have a plan for keeping the heat on the reparations issue for the KAL victims. We need to make this a number one priority. I'm afraid State and NSC seem to understand the PR value on continuing to push on this.

Dear Mr. Deaver:

The National Guard Association of California (NGAC) has selected President Reagan as its Man of the Year for 1983. The award is presented annually to a Californian who has performed outstanding service to his nation. We of the Association would be deeply honored if President Reagan would accept this award personally (as Mr. Meese so graciously did in 1982) at NGAC's Annual Dinner/Ball to be held at the Disneyland Hotel in Anaheim, California on April 28, 1984. The Dinner will feature a "Welcome Home, Mr. President" theme and promises to be the largest National Guard Gala ever presented by the National Guard Association of California.

Our Salute to the President will be one of genuine love and respect for a man we have long admired as both Governor and President. The audience, locale and timing of the Dinner/Ball are ideal:

The audience will be comprised not of strangers, but of friends -- Guardsmen from throughout the State of California who have served the President loyally and faithfully for over fifteen years. The audience will also include many individuals now serving in government positions in Washington, D.C. Confirmations, for example, have already been received from MG Thomas K. Turnage, Director, Selective Service; LTG "Mickey" Walker, Chief, National Guard Bureau; MG Herb Temple, Director, Army National Guard; Dr. Edward Philbin, Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense (Reserve Affairs); and Dennis Kenneally, Deputy Assistant Secretary of the Air Force (Reserve Affairs). Invitations will also be extended to others at the White House, Senator Pete Wilson and Governor George Deukmejian.

The locale will be entirely familiar to the President: The Disneyland Hotel, owned by President Reagan's close friend, Mr. Jack Wrather, located a little more than 100 air miles from President Reagan's ranch.

The timing, too, is ideal: A week following Easter Sunday and six weeks prior to the California Primary. If, however, the April 28, 1984 date is not
