Dear Mr. Damien:

On behalf of all the Americans who were in Versailles, may I thank you for the hospitality of your city in hosting the Economic Summit meetings. I know that the citizens of your city were inconvenienced by our presence, but their cooperation and good humor made the visit all the more enjoyable. Next year when the meeting is in the United States, I am sure there will be an American mayor writing to you seeking advice.

Thank you in particular for the bronze medallion of Versailles. It will be a reminder of the splendor of the Palace as well as the thoughtfulness of the citizens of Versailles.

Sincerely,

Your Holiness:

Although I felt as if we knew one another already from our extensive correspondence, it was a great pleasure to meet with you during my visit to Europe. I was happy that we had the chance to discuss the many issues which we face both spiritually and politically.

Thank you for the ivory statue of the Madonna and the photograph. Nancy and I will display them with respect and fond memories of our time spent in the Vatican.

The news of the end of fighting on the Falkland Islands is welcome to all of us. Now we must fashion the basis for a lasting peace there. In Lebanon we are continuing to work for an end to hostilities, and I pray that we will succeed. I look forward to continuing our consultations in the common quest for peace.

Dear Francois:

Thank you for the hospitality that Nancy and I enjoyed on our visit to France, and also for the hard work that you did to host the summit meeting at Versailles. The success that both the visit and the summit meeting enjoyed was a tribute to the efforts of you and your countrymen. Thank you in particular for the beautiful book on Versailles as well as the silver medalion. Nancy and I will always remember the magnificent palace whose history matches its beauty.

With the many important issues facing the West and the continuing crises in the South Atlantic, the Middle East and elsewhere, it is even more important that we continue to consult and coordinate our policies. The common values of our countries and the many interests we share in different areas of the world make it imperative that we work together.

I look forward to the economic summit in the United States next year, and to many communications with you before then on the challenges which confront both our countries.

Warm regards,

Ron

Dear Helmut:

Writing this letter brings back warm memories of my visit to your country. I would like to thank you for the kindness and hospitality extended to Nancy and me during our stay. I know that the NATO summit was organized on relatively short notice, and both I and all the members of the American party were extremely impressed by the efficiency and friendliness of our hosts in Bonn. I think the summit meeting itself, and my visit to the Federal Republic on a bilateral basis were successes, which is a tribute to the hard work of you, your Government and your countrymen.

We thank you for the magnificent letter opener and for the beautiful porcelain dish. We were thrilled, too, to receive the pair of bald eagles. I was reminded when I saw the large emblem on the wall of the Bundestag chamber that our countries shared a common national symbol. The eagle stands for freedom, and I can think of no more fitting gift for our strong young democracies to give and receive.

It is my feeling that the twin summits at Versailles and Bonn signalled to the world that the Western democracies are united on their basic goals and meeting their problems head on. I am confident that we will solve those problems through continuing individual efforts and consultations.

Finally, Nancy and I both hope that you have recovered from the flu. It was heroic of you to keep the strenuous schedule of a host when I am sure your doctor was ordering you to bed. You probably also disregarded his orders in coming to New York and delivering your fine address to the United Nations.

Once again, many thanks to you and Loki for your hospitality.

Warmest regards,

Ron

Dear Margaret:

We have been and will continue to be in constant communication on the many issues and crises in the world which our countries face together. However, in the press of all this business, I would like to take a moment to thank you for the hospitality which you, your Government and your countrymen extended to Nancy and me during our visit. The visit to Great Britain was the high point of the trip for us, and I know that you and your colleagues put a great deal of work into making it possible.

Thank you for the most enjoyable lunch at 10 Downing Street, and for the opportunity to address Parliament which preceded it. Of the official functions on my schedule, they were among the most enjoyable and least burdensome, because I was among friends. Thank you also for the elegant carriage clock which you gave me and the music box which you gave Nancy. They were very thoughtful gifts and we shall treasure them.

The news of your victory in the South Atlantic is most welcome. I look forward to working with you on a lasting solution to the situation there, and to cooperation on the many other tough challenges facing the West.

With best regards to Denis whom we also very much enjoyed seeing again,

Warmest wishes,

Your Majesty and Your Royal Highness:

Writing this letter brings memories flooding back. Let me simply say that our stay with you in Windsor was the single most pleasant part of a long and arduous trip. Thank you very much for the thoughtfulness, warmth and kindness with which you received Nancy and me.

In particular, thank you for the rare set of Dr. Wall Worcester dessert dishes. We will display these magnificent examples of the British porcelain art with great pride. The silver-framed photographs and the Tudor atlas from the Royal Library at Windsor will also take a place among our most treasured mementos.

The news of your victory in the South Atlantic was received with happiness and relief here. We are glad that you have upheld the principle that armed aggression cannot be allowed to succeed, and in addition, that young men of the United Kingdom and Argentina will no longer be under fire.

Thank you in particular for the exquisite leather suitcase, and the lovely watch you presented to Nancy. They are wonderful examples of the fine craftsmanship you have in Italy of which you must be truly proud.

While Western governments, by nature, must suffer the slings and arrows of professional critics, I have no doubt that the Versailles Summit will be recorded as a major event with many positive benefits for the world at large. The fact that we have common goals and share common values, and that we can freely discuss among ourselves problems and alternative solutions, suggests to me that there is much less "alliance disarray" than one reads or hears about.

Dear Mr. Deaver:

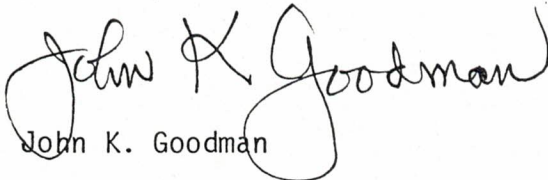

Mr. Larry Lawrence has informed me of the possible use of the Hotel del Coronado for an International Conference in the Spring of 1983.

Should the Hotel del Coronado be selected for this purpose, my sister, Mrs. Eugene Strauss, and I would very much like the President and Mrs. Reagan, and their staff to be our guests in our two bungalows. These bungalows are located directly on the beach and immediately adjacent to the north-west corner of the hotel's property. I am sure the President is familiar with these bungalows because of his many trips to Coronado in the past.

I would be particularly happy to extend this hospitality to a fellow Ranchero and collector of Olaf Wieghorst paintings.

At your convenience, I would very much appreciate hearing from you regarding the President's decision.

Dear Jerry:

Upon receiving your letter dealing with legislation on economic assistance to Warsaw Pact countries, I have had the opportunity to discuss the situation with several of my colleagues and feel that I will not be able to co-sponsor such a bill.

Notwithstanding the aid to Poland, approved by the President, only minimal Export-Import Bank assistance is provided to Poland, Hungary and Romania. No other Pact countries receive United States economic assistance.

With this in mind, three points are prevelant:

1. Because such assistance is minimal, the United States has little leverage to gain in arms control negotiations by withholding it.
2. In view of the reaction of our European allies to the recent pipeline decision, it is unlikely they would comply with another form of cut-off, particularly in trade related credits.
3. In the case of Poland, withholding assistance would inhibit the President's ability to manage foreign policy and limit flexibility in relations with Eastern Europe.

I hope that I have stated my reasons clearly, if you have any questions please don't hesitate to contact me.

Dear Ron:

Everybody loves Bob Hope.

The attached letter says in effect that a dinner will be held by The Bob Hope International Heart Research Institute either in New York or Washington if you will present Bob Hope with some kind of honorary humanitarian award. The Institute does not wish to hold the affair without this embellishment.

You will recall about a year ago you were kind enough to make an introductory TV tape for Bob endorsing this project. Frankly, I think Bob gets roped into too many causes -- always meaning to do the kind and generous thing. In my opinion, there are already plenty of cardiac centers in the United States today.

I have no desire to influence you one way or the other. However, I would think that some time during your administration you would want to honor Bob (just as other Presidents have done), and this might be the vehicle in which to do it.

Dear Justin:

You are a candid person as am I, so let me get right to the point.

I think you gained much respect for the integrity of this project when you met with Dr. Kakkar in London. Also, I believe Dr. Swan gave you important feedback when he said that we know so little about platelet activity that this great nation should be able to afford a dozen research centers like the one we are developing.

It now appears that the best way for us to renew our thrust for national attention is to hold a major dinner in NYC. You have already indicated to Jim Lyddy that you would have no problem helping to recruit a first rate committee for such an event. We have learned from Bob Hope's office that his exposure in NY is fairly extensive in the next several months. Therefore, a regular fundraising dinner to honor Bob has very little appeal. However, this appeal becomes enhanced dramatically if President Reagan were to agree to present a major humanitarian award to Bob Hope in behalf of the current Administration. Since most presidents have acknowledged him (e.g. Medal of Freedom from President Johnson, People to People Award from President Eisenhower, and the Congressional Gold Medal from President Kennedy), we know that President Reagan will want to be doing something along these lines. Now that Bob is excited about and increasingly involved in the Institute's success, we hope that President Reagan would agree to make a presentation to Bob Hope at our NYC dinner. Some other charity is no doubt planning the same thing, so we would like to strike as quickly as possible.

In brief, if we do not have a tentative commitment from President Reagan, we essentially have no dinner of the magnitude planned. Since we would like to hold the dinner within the first two weeks in December, we will need a response from the President no later than September 10th. Would you be willing to ask the President for two dates in the first two weeks in December on which he could attend a major dinner in NY?

I need not tell you, Justin, what an affirmative response would mean to our efforts. We would try to raise $1,000,000 in subscriptions for tables as well as using the occasion to trigger several large contributions.

Thank you for all you have done for us. I hope you are willing to carry the ball on this one.

Sincerely,

signed a nuclear arms limitation agreement which provides for significant and verifiable reductions in nuclear weapons.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

That (a) notwithstanding any other provision of law, no economic assistance may be provided by an United States Government agency with respect to any country which is a member of the Warsaw Pact until the Soviet Union has signed a nuclear arms limitation agreement.

(b) As used in this Act--

(1) the term "nuclear arms limitation agreement" means an agreement between the United States and the Soviet Union which provides for significant and verifiable reductions in nuclear weapons, which is negotiated after the enactment of this Act, and which is signed by the United States;

(2) the term "economic assistance" includes loans, loan guarantees, investment guarantees, credits, insurance, and any other form of economic assistance, but does not include assistance provided for disaster relief; and

(3) the term "United States Government agency" includes the Export-Import Bank, the Commodity Credit Corporation, the Agency for International Development and the Overseas Private Investment Corporation.

SEC. 2. (a) It is the sense of the Congress--

(1) that private commercial interests in the United States should refrain from making loans or credit advances with respect to Warsaw Pact countries until the Soviet Union has signed a nuclear arms limitation agreement; and

(2) that in the event that such loans or advance are made with respect to Warsaw Pact countries and defaults ensue, the United States Government will not assist in obtaining relief for those who made the loans or advances.

(b) It is further the sense of the Congress that the President should seek agreements with our allies to halt the flow of financial credits, loan guarantees, and other forms of economic assistance to the Warsaw Pact countries until the Soviet Union has signed a nuclear arms limitation agreement.
