Dear Merl:

Thank you for your July 10 letter regarding the growing number of inactive mid-career professionals. I am sorry, but the demands of my schedule will not permit me to meet with you during the last week of July. However, I am bringing your correspondence to the attention of the appropriate officials at the Department of Labor. You should be hearing directly from them about your concept.

Warm regards.

Dear Mr. Fahrenkopf:

This is with reference to your recent letter to Mr. Baker for a reconsideration of your earlier request for a reception in September at the White House for Republican Eagles.

Although the importance of this reception is fully recognized, and the President would be glad to be able to have the Eagles come here, unfortunately it cannot be arranged because of the already heavily committed schedule he has outlined in September.

Please be assured of our appreciation for your interest in again writing about this event, and know you have our very best wishes.

Dear Mr. Boardman:

Thank you for your letter requesting that the President reconsider his position with regard to Federal funding for Amtrak. You are correct in stating that Amtrak has made considerable progress during the Reagan Administration to decrease its dependence on Federal subsidies.

However, the Administration continues to believe that Federal subsidies to Amtrak are not justified. Since Amtrak was established in 1972, it has cost the Federal Government over $12 billion. In 1986 the estimated average subsidy per Amtrak passenger was $27. This huge Federal expenditure has subsidized mostly middle- to upper-income citizens. For example, Amtrak admits that a sizable portion of Northeast Corridor passengers have incomes of $40,000 a year or more and that one third of these passengers have had post-graduate studies. These people do not need the subsidy that is provided them through Amtrak. In addition, despite Amtrak's virtual monopoly of intercity passenger rail transportation, Amtrak carries less than 0.5 percent of intercity passenger travel.

The President's 1988 Budget proposes to dispose of some or all of Amtrak's assets to one or more private sector companies. If Congress approves this proposal, such transactions would be designed to preserve viable intercity rail passenger service. In our view, this free market approach is preferable to the current process that maintains uneconomical routes.

While the Administration does not agree with your analysis, we recognize your position and thank you for your input.

Sincerely,

Howard H. Baker, Jr.

Dear Ms. Glock:

Thank you for your letter to Senator Baker telling him about your school project. He appreciated hearing from you.

I am sorry to send a disappointing response, but the demands of his schedule prevent him from answering the many requests he receives for his personal opinion. I hope you will understand.

With Senator Baker's best wishes,

Sincerely,

Sue Walkup

Dear Mr. Kirkland:

Sentor Baker has asked me to thank you for your letter and to tell you that he was pleased to sign your book of eulogies.

Mr. Baker is honored that you would consider him to serve as the cover personality for the 1990 edition of the Dixie Gun Works catalog. Although he is unable to accept your kind offer, he appreciates your thinking of him and sends his best wishes.

Sincerely,

Sue Walkup

Dear Ms. Stagg:

Thank you for your July 9 letter to Senator Baker.

All of the positions in the Senator's office are filled at this time. I am, however, bringing your nephew's resume to the attention of the Office of Presidential Personnel. Please be assured that his qualifications will receive every consideration.

I am sorry to send a disappointing response to your request for endorsement. In accordance with White House policy, the Chief of Staff cannot advise, assist or in any other way engage in the endorsement or promotion of a private or commercial project. I am sure you will understand Senator Baker's desire to refrain from any action that could be construed as such.

Senator Baker appreciates your kind words and sends his warm regards to you.

Sincerely,

Sue Walkup

Dear Mr. Green:

On behalf of Senator Baker, I want to thank you for your material which was forwarded to the Senator by Congressman Don Sundquist. Senator Baker found your idea intriguing and he will circulate your recommendation among the appropriate members of the White House staff for their review and comment.

With Senator Baker's warm regards,

Sincerely,

Sue Walkup
