Owing to the stress of National affairs, we have refrained from writing you until the present time; we should be so much pleased to add your autograph to those of former Presidents of the United States which we have upon letters, manuscripts, and various documents in the State Museum at Washington's Headquarters, Newburgh, N. Y. that we are venturing to write you now. May we not have the privilege and also the pleasure of placing a letter from you, or if not that, your autograph among those of the former Presidents of our Country?

Very respectfully yours,

L. F. Stuart

Curator of the State Museum.

While I am not fully conversant with all the details of the plan, it does seem to me that the proposed method of illumination will undoubtedly add to the attractiveness of this historic building and I want to take this opportunity to wish you every success in carrying it through.

Dear President Roosevelt,
