Dear Judge:

Many thanks for your letter of August 3rd. Since your letter was written, I have met Mr. Loewenthal and was impressed by him.

Thank you for writing to me and above all, for your kind expressions. I agree with you that the time has come for a clear exposition of liberal causes in the administration of our National Government.

Very sincerely yours,

Judge Julian W. Mack,
U.S. Circuit,

U. S. CIRCUIT JUDGE
NEW YORK CITY

PERSONAL

My dear Governor:

Felix Frankfurter has just asked me to write to you at once and to give you my estimate of Max Lowenthal. He did not tell me and of course I do not know the reason for his request and it may therefore be that there are other things than what I may say that you would want to know about him. If there is anything further as to which you think I might be able to inform you, naturally I shall be only too happy to do so.

While as a federal judge I have kept absolutely aloof from the slightest active participation in political matters, of course I do not fail to exercise privately what I deem to be the duties and responsibilities of a citizen. As such, I need hardly assure you of my eagerness for a change in the administration in Washington, an eagerness that I do not hesitate to express privately to all with whom I come in contact. That it will come, and that the heavy responsibilities will fall upon you, I have and have had no doubt. May I add my complete confidence that when that time does come, you will be the valiant leader for all thoroughly liberal causes.

My first contact with Lowenthal was in 1912 when, on the recommendation of Dean Pound and Felix, he became my secretary. He had made a most brilliant record at the University of Minnesota, followed by an equally brilliant record at Harvard Law School.

Following the practice of Justice Holmes, I change secretaries, for their own sake, every year. He was with me in Washington during the most important year of the Commerce Court and got an intimate inside view of the whole railroad problem.

Following this he practiced in New York until the war when, as Felix's first assistant, he was again during the entire period in Washington, except when he was with him on the Mooney investigation trip and on a mission to Europe. He came into close contact with the leaders of thought and action, not merely in Washington but elsewhere, and while of course no one that I know has as many different contacts as Felix, Lowenthal's were then and have continued ever since to be very many and important ones, especially with the leaders, official and unofficial, of all progressive and liberal movements.

After the war he resumed his practice of law in New York and was entrusted by me with some of the most important receiverships over which I had charge. His business ability in this respect equalled his legal acumen.

Like practically all of my secretaries, he became a close intimate friend. This intimacy was intensified by the fact that ten years ago he married one of my nieces.

Naturally, I have followed his career since that time with keen interest. He is one of those rare lawyers who always thinks first of the public interest, of the service that he can render, and last and least of the fees that he is to get.

Some five or six years ago, in view of some serious conditions which he found in the practice in the law in New York, especially in the big receiverships, he practically gave up his practice to devote himself to the preparation of what I believe will eventually be a monumental book on the subject of receivers and to public causes.

As you doubtless know, he became Secretary of the Wickersham Committee and served it for two years without compensation; his reasons for resigning therefrom before the work was completed, redounded in my judgment to his very high credit.

I know of very few men with a greater passion for justice, a keener sense of a lawyer's obligation to serve the public, or a more devoted adherence to the best of liberal causes.

His residence in Washington during the two latter periods that I have mentioned have of course greatly increased the contacts that he made during the first period. He is well and most favorably known to the liberal leaders, whether nominally called Republicans or Democrats, in both Houses and to many members of the Press.

As I said before, not knowing the purpose of the information that I am giving you, it may well be that I failed to stress some points as to which you may want further information.

With all good wishes and kindest personal regards,
I am

Very cordially yours,

Hon. Franklin D. Roosevelt,
Governor of State of New York,
Albany, New York.

Dear Judge Mack:-

Thank you much for your nice letter. I did have an excellent talk with Felix x PPF 140 when he got back. I like much to keep in touch with the progress being made in Palestine, and I x PPF 601

January 30, 1935

Dear Mr. President:

Mr. Fertig was in to see me a few days ago and brought a somewhat indefinite message about coming some day to tea so that I might give you some information about Palestine.

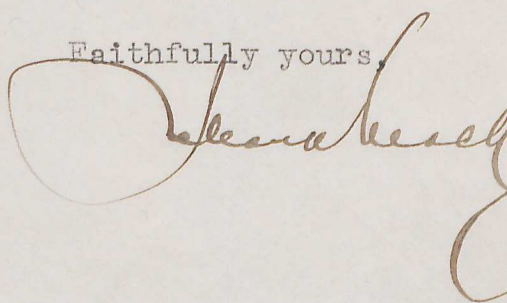

The vagueness, however, of Mr. Fertig's expressions led me to say to him, as one who has only recently come back to the Zionist movement, that you have the very best source of information on the subject in Justice Brandeis, and that I felt sure that our mutual friend, Felix Frankfurter, must have fully acquainted you with his visit to Palestine last spring. I trust too that he may have imparted to you some of that tremendous enthusiasm for the land and its people which he had imbibed at the source.

Of course, it is always a privilege to be able to talk with you, and if you can spare the time and believe that I can be at all helpful, I should be ready to come to Washington at any time convenient to you, subject only to judicial engagements.

Because I want this letter to reach you personally, I am venturing to ask Miss Perkins to give it to you. x 15

Mrs. Mack joins me in heartiest good wishes for the birthday.

Felix Frankfurter has been spending some time with me and I was much interested to learn that aside from being one of our best jurists, you are also a connoisseur of wines. I am hoping that as soon as things quiet down you will come to Washington to see me. I have some "wine taster" stories that I think will amuse you.

Dear Mr. President:

Having known George S. Messersmith when he was our Consul General in Berlin, and my only child and grandchild having lived in Vienna for some years, I was among those who were particularly happy when you selected him as our Minister to Austria.

I spent nearly three months in Vienna this past summer and learned to know him much more intimately than theretofore.

Knowing how highly you value him I believe that the enclosed confidential letters will deeply interest you. In answer to my cabled request he cabled permission for me to send them to you.

May I add my heartiest congratulations on your splendid Atlanta speech.

LEGATION OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

Personal and Confidential

Vienna, November 13, 1935

My dear Judge Mack:

I understand that a meeting is to be held in New York during the early part of December by one of the leading athletic organizations of the country to again discuss the question as to whether the groups affiliated with it will participate in the Olympic Games in Berlin. I am not sure of the exact names of this organization, but you will easily be able to determine its name, and I consider it extremely important that in spite of the attitude of our American Olympic Committee, American athletic organizations should not permit themselves to be misled. A good deal will depend on the action taken by this group, which I understand is meeting in New York in early December, and this is my excuse for writing you at this time.

I have felt all during the last two years that it would be catastrophic for the Americans to participate in the Olympic Games in Berlin next summer. Nothing that has happened in these two years has changed my views, but on the other hand everything that has happened has only shown that we should not participate. Now, in view of what has happened in Germany and is happening, the American Olympic Committee can take the attitude that it does, no one, I think, can properly explain. One thing is certain, and that is that at least several of the important members of the committee are deliberately misrepresenting to their colleagues on the committee and to American sporting organizations what they know to be the situation in Germany. It is one of the most direct betrayals of American sport, of American youth and of American prestige that I have known Americans to be implicated in. Something must be done about it, and it must be done soon. I have been working on this for the last two years but obviously it is difficult for me in a government position to do anything directly, and it is not a matter in which our Government or the Department of State can take any direct action.

With us the games are a non-political matter and therefore not a matter for government action, but in Germany these games have become a political matter of primary importance, and it is useless for Mr. Brundage to say, as I understand, he did in Chicago some time ago, that "the sportsmen of America will not tolerate the use of athletics as a means of transporting Old World hatreds to this country". That all sounds very well, but I think American sportsmen would also be interested that they not be used as a political instrument by Nazi Germany in fastening the hold of Nazi ideology on Germany and on Europe. Sport may be non-political at home with us, but it is decidedly a political matter in Germany, and sport, like religion, the theater and all else, is to be used as an instrument of the Party.

I have written a letter to our friend Geist in Berlin, of which I send you a copy for your personal and confidential information. It contains data which might be interesting to you and some of your friends who can do something in this matter. I would appreciate it, however, that you would keep this letter for your personal and confidential information, but I can see no reason why you should not use the information which there is in it, except, of course, certain parts which are obviously confidential, in such ways as you may think advisable. I must personally, of course, be kept out of this, but if there is any way in which I can furnish you or others information which is helpful, I only consider it a matter of elementary duty to our young people at home.

If anyone had any doubt at home about the situation in Germany, he need only read the article entitled "The Jews in Germany" in the London TIMES of November 8 and the editorial in that paper of the same date, entitled "Persecution without Profit". The London TIMES is not in the habit of publishing articles of this kind without adequate supporting data, and these articles should be particularly helpful in bringing this situation in Germany to the attention of athletic associations at home.

Judge Mahoney is to be congratulated for the stand which he has taken, and if you have not seen these articles in the London TIMES of November 8, you will find them of interest.

I think the time has come for plain speaking, and if the American Committee persists in keeping the attitude which it has so far maintained, why then I think there is only one thing to do, and that is to show up General Sherrill and Mr. Brundage without mercy. It is indeed a scandal that a man like General Sherrill should use a distinguished name and background for the purpose of giving strength to Nazi assurances which he knows are not sincere and to cover up a situation in Germany which he knows exists. He is willing to do all this purely for purposes of personal vanity, and if this is what Olympics mean, why then it is time that we hold our games at home and let Olympics go.

There is so much that could be written on this subject that I must not go on. The copy of the letter which I wrote to Geist which I am sending you herewith may contain certain information which you can use with advantage among some of your friends. I need not tell you, however, that I would appreciate your keeping the source of the information confidential, and I think, of course, it would be better not to use the references to Benes, Beranger and Leger made in the letter.

I am having a busy time and I wish I could write you about the general situation. I must leave this, however, to another time.

I feel that this Olympic matter is of primary importance, and I think the time has come when something must be done about it. It is a question which affects every decent American, and I think our newspapers and periodicals and our public men should take it up and see that the Olympic Committee is not able to put over this iniquity and this betrayal. Our abstention from the Games is one great contribution we can make, and we should not fail to do this.

With very good wishes to you and Mrs. Mack, in which Mrs. Messersmith joins me.

Cordially and faithfully yours,

G. S. Messersmith

Dear Mr. President:

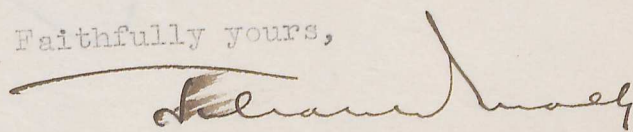

That was a great and heartening message that you gave on Sunday night not only to those at the banquet table, but also, through its broadcasting, to the whole country. I know that the Jews who heard it, and I am entirely hopeful that all others too, were deeply appreciative of the fine and warm sentiments expressed by you.

That message will be spread throughout Europe and the Near East and will bring a large measure of comfort to all of the peoples who are undergoing persecution in so many lands.

Its importance, however, is not confined to this; it evidences in the best possible way that America under your leadership stands true to the finest of her traditions and ideals.

Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. President:

In 1927 Judge Julian W. Mack was elected Overseer of Harvard College with more than a majority of the votes cast, and more votes than any of the Overseers elected. He was nominated independently and since that time he has not been nominated by any Nominating Committee.

Some of us here feel strongly that his membership on the Board as a great liberal is important. I am enclosing a nomination paper which I hope you will sign, and perhaps get some of your Harvard friends to do likewise, and return to me.

Faithfully yours,

Wm. P. Everts

Dear Mr. President:

It was extremely thoughtful and kind of you to send me those greetings and I need hardly say how deeply not only I but Mrs. Mack and my daughter, who came over from Europe to be with me at this time, appreciate them.

I am glad to say that the progress is continuing, and while I shall have to miss the February, as I did the January meeting of the Board of Overseers, I am extremely hopeful both to be back at work and to attend the April and the later meeting.

I was told about your message of doubt as to the efficacy of your signature to my nomination as an Overseer, but I myself not only had no doubt, but was greatly gratified that you headed the list.

I don't know whether Ben Cohen, who sees me often, has told you that I was one of the Federal Judges, all too few I fear, who ~~was~~ with you on the Supreme Court measure; but I must admit a deep sense of gratification that without it the fine ends that you had in view have now been accomplished, - at least that is the way it looks.

With all good wishes and deep appreciation,
I am, as ever,

Dear Julian:-

Thank you much for writing me about Patterson. From all I hear, he is splendidly qualified.

I will go a bit slow in taking action on the new Judgeships because I want to give them plenty of consideration and this will be easier after Congress goes home.

I am delighted to hear that you are really better, and I hope to see you one of these days soon.

Dear Julian:

I heartily share the views you express in your letter to me of October 5. Whatever the fears of some timid persons may be, I feel it is peculiarly important - just because of the waves of persecution and discrimination which are mounting in other parts of the world - that we in this country make it clear that citizens of the United States are elected or selected for positions of responsibility solely because of their qualifications, experience, and character, and without regard to their religious faith.

By so doing the United States can hold aloft as a beacon the faith of the American people in the right to freedom of worship and in human liberty at a moment when the assertion of our faith in these principles will unquestionably act as an encouragement to peoples in every other part of the world.

I am glad you wrote me as you did. Let me tell you again I fully share your own convictions on this subject.

My dear Mr. President:

Newspaper clippings to the effect that a number of rich Jews are frightened at the prospect of the appointment and election of Jews to high office, utterly regardless of their eminent qualification therefor, impel me to write to you to express my complete dissent from that position.

It is quite possible that each such appointment or election will bring forth an outcry from anti-Semites and from others who are willing to utilize any means, however despicable, to create opposition to the appointing power, especially to you.

And, of course, there are timid Jews particularly among the wealthier, who fear for their own safety and their possessions whenever an anti-Semitic outburst comes, no matter how completely irresponsible the authors of it may be.

My own life time activity in Jewish affairs, local, national and international, has been such that I think that I know the mind and spirit not merely of the masses of the Jewish people but also of their real leaders. Naturally no one wants to create or intensify that spirit of anti-Semitism, just now so rampant in European countries. But self-respecting American Jews would not for this reason neglect their duties or abdicate their rights and privileges as American citizens.

I feel very sure that your own knowledge of and confidence in so many Jews really make any statement from me on this subject unnecessary, but as an old time friend, supporter and admirer since the days of our association on the Harvard Board of Overseers, I felt that I ought not to refrain from saying to you directly how humiliated I feel that there are some of my fellow Jews who not only have this fear but who do not hesitate to endeavor to instil it into our non-Jewish fellowmen.

While I have not discussed this matter directly with Stephen Wise and have not told him that I am writing to you, I know that he feels as deeply on this subject as I do. Indeed, if he were writing to you, he would as usual express himself in even much stronger language.

With kindest personal regards,

Faithfully yours,

Dear Mr. President:

I do not think that even my very intimate friendship with Felix Frankfurter which began just a quarter of a century ago impairs the impartiality which I hope I have acquired after over thirty-five years of judicial service. I therefore venture to say with considerable confidence, that no better selection could have been made for the Supreme Court. Very distinguished as were the appointments of Holmes, Brandeis, and Cardozo, none of them I believe surpassed Felix in character or in thorough legal ability, and I believe that no one of them had such a profound knowledge of the history and of the decisions of the Supreme Court at the time of their respective appointments as Felix possesses.

I congratulate you most heartily, and I congratulate still more our beloved country to which he is destined I think to render most distinguished service.

I am,

With cordial and affectionate greetings,

Wrote Miss LeHand enclosing a letter for the President. Tells the President that he believes the one man pre-eminently qualified for the vacancy about to be created through Judge Manton's resignation, is District Judge Robert Patterson. Says that while his own illness has prevented him from keeping in full touch with Judge Patterson's activities, he has kept in touch with the various important matters which he turned over to him a year ago when he had to relinquish charge of them and Judge Patterson's work has justified Mr Mack's prediction that in putting the matters in his hands he placed them in charge of the man most fitted of all his colleagues to take charge of them. Although he is a Republican Judge Mack feels that he will continue his wonderful record if the President sees fit to appoint him as Circuit Judge. -- On Feb. fourth the President wrote Judge Mack "You are right. Tells the President that he believes the one man pre-eminently qualified for the vacancy about to be created through Judge Manton's resignation, is District Judge Robert Patterson. Says that while his own illness has prevented him from keeping in full touch with Judge Patterson's activities, he has kept in touch with the various important matters which he turned over to him a year ago when he had to relinquish charge of them and Judge Patterson's work has justified Mr Mack's prediction that in putting the matters in his hands he placed them in charge of the man most fitted of all his colleagues to take charge of them. Although he is a Republican Judge Mack feels that he will continue his wonderful record if the President sees fit to appoint him as Circuit Judge. - On Feb. fourth the President wrote Judge Mack "You are right. Enough said. Take care of yourself."
