National Cathedral Prayer Service
September 14, 2001
Draft #6

We are here in the middle hour of our grief. So many have suffered so great a loss, and today we express the Nation's sorrow. We come before God to pray for the missing and the dead, and for those who love them.

Just three days removed from these events, Americans do not yet have the distance of history. But our responsibility to history is already clear: to answer these attacks, and rid the world of this evil. War has been waged against us by stealth and deceit and murder. This Nation is peaceful, but fierce when stirred to anger.

This conflict was begun on the timing and terms of others; it will end in a way and at an hour of our choosing.

Our purpose as a nation is firm. Yet our wounds as a people are recent and unhealed, and lead us to prayer. In many of our prayers this week there is a searching, and an honesty.

In these acts and many others,
Americans showed a deep commitment to one another, and an abiding love for our country. Today we feel what Franklin Roosevelt called the “warm courage of national unity.” This is a unity of every faith, and every background. It has joined together political parties and both houses of Congress.

America is a nation full of good fortune, with so much to be grateful for, but not spared from suffering. In every generation, the world has produced enemies of human freedom. They have attacked America, because we are freedom's home and defender – and this commitment of our fathers is now the calling of our time.
