DRAFT STATEMENT ON H.R. 1 INTRODUCTION

STATEMENT OF THE PRESIDENT

Earlier this year, I announced that education reform would be the cornerstone of my agenda. My education plan increases accountability for student performance. It focuses federal dollars on what really works. And, it empowers parents and teachers, as well as state and local officials, to take the lead on innovative solutions to improve results.

Today, the House of Representatives unveiled a new education bill. It is an important step in my effort to improve our nation's schools.

I commend Chairman John Boehner for taking the lead on introducing an education bill that closely reflects my Administration's education priorities. His legislation calls for annual state assessments of reading and math skills for all students in grades three through eight to ensure that our schools are producing results. It increases resources and accountability for improving student performance. It consolidates federal programs to give greater flexibility and more effective support to state and local officials. And, significantly, it gives meaningful options to parents whose children are trapped in failing schools.

By setting aside H.R. 1 for the education reform bill, the House has joined me in making this critical issue its top priority.

I look forward to working with Democrats and Republicans in the House and Senate to ensure that we act quickly on education reform.

DRAFT STATEMENT ON H.R. 1 INTRODUCTION

STATEMENT OF THE PRESIDENT

Earlier this year, I announced that education reform would be the cornerstone of my agenda. My education plan increases accountability for student performance. It focuses federal dollars on what really works. And, it empowers parents and teachers, as well as state and local officials, to take the lead on innovative solutions to improve results.

Today, the House of Representatives unveiled a new education bill. It is an important step in my effort to improve our nation's schools.

I commend Chairman John Boehner for taking the lead on introducing an education bill that closely reflects my Administration's education priorities. His legislation calls for annual state assessments of reading and math skills for all students in grades three through eight to ensure that our schools are producing results. It increases resources and accountability for improving student performance. It consolidates federal programs to give greater flexibility and more effective support to state and local officials. And, significantly, it gives meaningful options to parents whose children are trapped in failing schools.

By setting aside H.R. 1 for the education reform bill, the House has joined me in making this critical issue its top priority.

I look forward to working with Democrats and Republicans in the House and Senate to ensure that we act quickly on education reform.

MEMORANDUM TO HARRIET MIERS

FROM MARGARET LA MONTAGNE

SUBJECT: STATEMENT ON INTRODUCTION OF HR 1

You will find attached a draft statement to be released on Thursday to coincide with the introduction of H.R. 1 – the House education reform bill. The statement commends the House of Representatives for moving forward on the President's education plan.

We would like to have the statement approved for release by the press office on Thursday.

Please don't hesitate to contact me with any questions.

DRAFT STATEMENT ON H.R. 1 INTRODUCTION

STATEMENT OF THE PRESIDENT

my top priority

Earlier this year, I announced that education reform would be the cornerstone of my agenda. My education plan increases accountability for student performance. It focuses federal dollars on what really works. And, it empowers parents and teachers, as well as state and local officials, to take the lead on innovative solutions to improve results.
