THE WHITE HOUSE
Office of the Press Secretary

For Immediate Release

March 20, 2001

REMARKS BY THE PRESIDENT
TO CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE EMPLOYEES

CIA Headquarters
Langley, Virginia

4:25 P.M. EST

THE PRESIDENT: Thank you, all. I learned that move from my mother. (Laughter.)

Thank you very much, George. I appreciate your kind introduction. I also want to thank you for agreeing to continue to serve as the Director of the Central Intelligence Agency. (Applause.) You've done really good work here. The people that work here appreciate it; and I appreciate it, as well.

I also wanted to visit early in my administration to tell you all how much I value your work. The CIA and all the members of our intelligence community make a vital contribution to our nation's security. I know this firsthand -- I'm your customer. (Laughter.) I see your product every morning at 8:00 a.m. sharp, and it's always first-rate.

I appreciate the work that goes into the briefing. I realize that the information inside it contains -- represents the work of thousands of dedicated and daring men and women at home and abroad. It is truly an honor to be among you and to be in this building.

I've flown into an airport once called, George Bush. (Laughter.) But I've never been in a center like this. (Laughter.) Seeing that sign on the way in, as you can imagine, made me feel really proud.

But I was also struck by the contrast between today's world and the world as it looked 25 years ago, when my dad was the DCI. To say that a lot has changed is an understatement. Back then, America faced an over-arching threat and everything we did, from strategy to resource allocation, was oriented to defending against that threat.

Today, that single threat has been replaced by new and different threats, sometimes hard to define and defend against; threats such as terrorism, information warfare, the spread of weapons of mass destruction and the means to deliver them. Back then, freedom was in peril. Today, freedom is taking root in more and more lands around the world.

In retrospect, the world of 1976 looks staid and static compared to the revolutions of change that characterize our times. But what hasn't changed, what isn't different is the fact that sound intelligence is still critically important to America's national security. The challenges are new, but we still need your work to help us meet them. The opportunities are new, but we need your help to take advantage of them.

But perhaps most of all, in a world where change, itself, seems to be the only constant, we need your help to anticipate change and to shape it in a way that favors freedom. Yours is a mission of service and sacrifice in a world of great uncertainty and risk. America's commitments and responsibility span the world and every time zone. Every day you help us meet those responsibilities with your quiet excellence.

And nothing speaks louder to your legacy of service and sacrifice than the 77 stars on the wall behind me. The American people aren't told much about your labors. In fact, you might be the only federal agency where not making the newspapers or network news qualifies as good news. (Laughter.) This is by necessity. But you need to know your President knows about your fine contributions to our nation's security.

And you also need to know that Americans are proud of you and the vital work that each of you does for your country. The operations officers, the analysts, the scientists, the technical experts, the intelligence officers who work for other agencies - each of you is important to the cause of freedom. And for that I say, God bless you and God bless America. (Applause.)

THE WHITE HOUSE
Office of the Press Secretary

For Immediate Release

September 26, 2001

REMARKS BY THE PRESIDENT
TO EMPLOYEES OF THE CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY

CIA Headquarters
Langley, Virginia

1:23 P.M. EDT

THE PRESIDENT: Thank you all very much. Well, George, thank you very much, and thanks for inviting me back. (Laughter.) There is no question that I am in the hall of patriots, and I've come to say a couple of things to you.

First, thanks for your hard work. You know, George and I have been spending a lot of quality time together. (Laughter.) There's a reason. I've got a lot of confidence in him and I've got a lot of confidence in the CIA. (Applause.) And so should America.

It's important for America to realize that there are men and women who are spending hours on the task of making sure our country remains free; men and women of the CIA who are sleeping on the floor, eating cold pizza -- (laughter) -- calling their kids on the phone, saying, well, I won't be able to tuck you in tonight -- because they love America. And I'm here to thank everybody who loves America in this building. And I want to thank you for what you're doing.

We are on a mission to make sure that freedom is enduring. We're on a mission to say to the rest of the world, come with us -- come with us, stand by our side to defeat the evil-doers who would like to rid the world of freedom as we know it. There is no better institute to be working with than the Central Intelligence Agency, which serves as our ears and our eyes all around the world.

This is a war that is unlike any other war that our nation is used to. It's a war of a series of battles that sometimes we'll see the fruits of our labors, and sometimes we won't. It's a war that's going to require cooperation with our friends. It is a war that requires the best of intelligence. You see, the enemy is sometimes hard to find; they like to hide. They think they can hide -- but we know better.

This is a war that not only says to those who believe they can disrupt American lives -- or, for that matter, any society that believes in freedom, lives -- it's also a war that declares a new declaration, that says if you harbor a terrorist you're just as guilty as the terrorist; if you provide safe haven to a terrorist, you're just as guilty as the terrorist; if you fund a terrorist, you're just as guilty as a terrorist.

And in order to make sure that we're able to conduct a winning victory, we've got to have the best intelligence we can possibly have. And my report to the nation is, we've got the best intelligence we can possibly have thanks to the men and women of the CIA. (Applause.)

The cooperation with Capitol Hill is unique and, I hope, lasting. I can't tell you how much I appreciate the work of Senator Daschle and Senator Lott, Speaker Hastert and Leader Gephardt. There's deep concern amongst Republicans and Democrats on Capitol Hill to do what's right for America -- is to come together to provide the necessary support for an effective war.

And that includes making sure that the CIA is well-funded, well-staffed, has got the latest in technology. I believe we can work together to make sure that that's the case. After all, as America is learning, the CIA is on the front line of making sure our victory will be secure.

I intend to continue to work with Congress to make sure that our law enforcement officials at home have got the tools necessary -- obviously, within the confines of our Constitution -- to make sure the homeland is secure; to make sure America can live as peacefully as possible; to make sure that we run down every threat, take serious every incident. And we've got to make sure, as well, that those who work for the nation overseas have got the best available technologies and the best tools and the best funding possible.

There is a good spirit in Capitol Hill because Americans want to win. They want to win the first war of the 21st century. And win we must -- we have no choice, we can't relent. Now, there's going to be a time, hopefully in the near future, where people say, gosh, my life is almost normal; September 11th is a sad memory, but it's a memory.

But those of us on the front lines of this war must never forget September 11th. And that includes the men and women of the CIA. We must never forget that this is a long struggle, that there are evil people in the world who hate America. And we won't relent. The folks who conducted to act on our country on September 11th made a big mistake. They underestimated America. They underestimated our resolve, our determination, our love for freedom. They underestimated the fact that we love a neighbor in need. They underestimated the compassion of our country. I think they underestimated the will and determination of the Commander-in-Chief, too. (Applause.)

So, anyway, I was sitting around having coffee with George and Michael -- (laughter) -- I said, I think I'd like to come out to thank people once again; I'd like to come out to the CIA, the center of great Americans, to thank you for your work.

I know how hard you're working. And I hope all the Americans who are listening to this TV broadcast understand how hard you're working, too. You're giving your best shot, long hours, all your brain power, to win a war that we're going to win. And I can't thank you enough on behalf of the American people.

Keep doing it. America relies upon your intelligence and your judgment. America relies upon our capacity to work together as a nation to do what the American people expect. They expect a 100 percent effort, a full-time, no-stop effort on not only securing our homeland, but to bringing to justice terrorists, no matter where they live, no matter where they hide. And that's exactly what we're going to do.

Thank you very much. May God bless your work, and may God bless America. (Applause.) Go back to work.
