NOTICE FOR REGULATION ADOPTION
March 2014

Regulations promulgated by the administrative branch continue to add costs to the operation of small businesses in Alaska. All too often, those involved in writing regulations fail to realize the cost their actions have on private individuals and businesses that are not reimbursed by government.

If we want Alaska to be welcoming to small business, it is important the state begin to recognize the costs it mandates on those small businesses. Until we require those costs be officially recognized, it is difficult to reduce regulatory costs for small businesses.
