

NYFA Curatorial Services

The New York Foundation for the Arts' Curatorial Services offer organizations, corporations, and individuals the opportunity to integrate contemporary art into their offices, headquarters, or homes. Companies and individuals will have total control throughout the acquisition process. NYFA's curatorial services allow collectors the unique opportunity to either commission an artist to create a site specific installation or purchase a previously completed work that coincides with the collector's aesthetic.

Over the past forty years, NYFA has established lasting relationships with thousands of visual, literary, and performing artists working in all disciplines and styles. NYFA's in house curator will help potential collectors forge similar, and equally positive, relationships with current or former Fellows. Whether large or small, permanent or temporary, for a courtyard or office, NYFA's curators will work with you and your organization to ensure you receive the absolute best work for your space and needs.

For information contact David C. Terry, Director of Programs/Curator, at dterry@nyfa.org.

The New York Foundation for the Arts (NYFA) presented four public installations by the Devorah Sperber, 2005 Sculpture NYFA Artist Fellow. Created specifically for the lobby of One Penn Plaza, this New York artist has made a series of artworks inspired by the architecture, history and popularity of the original Pennsylvania Station, which was once located on this block. These sculptures present iconic imagery associated with the old Penn Station, but also allude to the current Penn Station that rumbles underground below, while simultaneously looking forward to the new Moynihan Station planned for the future.

2007 - Present.
