Dear Customer,

As your local natural gas distribution company, we are sending you this informational notice as required by federal law and to help ensure your safety.

If you are receiving this letter, it is because we have identified your address as having buried natural gas piping beyond the end of our facilities. Atlanta Gas Light typically owns, operates and maintains all of the natural gas piping out in the street and on your property including the meter that measures the usage at your premises. Any piping beyond the meter whether inside or outside of the premises, is typically the responsibility of the customer or property owner.

Common examples of buried natural gas piping beyond the meter include:

1. When the gas line for your premises enters the dirt before entering the building
2. Separate gas lines that run underground from the meter to other buildings
3. Separate gas lines that run underground to outside appliances like natural gas grills, pool heaters, and gas lights.

We are notifying you not because of any identified safety issue at your premises, but merely to make you aware that buried natural gas piping, if not maintained properly, could be subject to potential corrosion and leakage hazards. Proper maintenance of buried natural gas piping includes periodic inspection and repair (if needed) by a qualified plumber, heating contractor or other specialist.

If you are the owner of this property, it is important that you are aware of the potential for corrosion and leakage on this customer owned buried piping and can take proper action. If you are leasing or renting this property and receive this letter, please forward it on to the property owner.

Your safety is important to us. If you have any questions or concerns please email us at aglcustomer@aglresources.com or contact our Customer Care Center at: 1-800-427-5463

Finally, if you use this customer owned buried piping to transport natural gas to others (i.e.: rental properties or apartments) under federal regulations you may be considered an operator of a small natural gas system (a master meter operator) and be subject to the same legal safety requirements as a natural gas distribution company such as Atlanta Gas Light. If you distribute natural gas to other parties in this manner, please contact the Georgia Public Service Commission (GPSC) at 1-800-282-5813 for guidance. The GPSC is the regulating authority for natural gas safety in Georgia.

Thank you for your business.
