

About aTinyTribe

About aTinyTribe

aTinyTribe is a small independent software company founded by two Olympic hopefuls, Kyle Tress and Chris Nurre. The company was founded in 2010 with the release of Gridlocked: Traffic Control on the iPhone App Store.

Upon the release of the iPad in April 2010, aTinyTribe launched their most successful product to date, Moodboard Pro, featured in App Stores worldwide as a 'What's Hot' app.

About Kyle Tress

Kyle is an athlete on the United States World Cup skeleton team and a 2014 Winter Olympic hopeful. He is 30 years old and currently lives at the Olympic Training Center in Lake Placid NY while preparing for the 2014 Winter Olympic Games in Sochi, Russia. He has been working with the web and software for 15 years, and is the cofounder of aTinyTribe.

About Chris Nurre

Chris is a graduate of the Rochester Institute of Technology with a degree in Software Engineering. Chris began the sport of skeleton in 2002, and competed internationally for 7 years before retiring. He lives in Cleveland, Ohio and is the cofounder of aTinyTribe.

For more information, please visit <http://www.atinytribe.com> or contact us at 323-638-7377.