AIÑE CURRAN

“Vinyl Institute of Canada Update”

Presentation Overview

- The political climate in Canada with respect to plastics, and potential impacts to our industry
- Overview of our Environmental Performance Agreement on Tin Stabilizer with Environment and Climate Change Canada, which impacts all manufacturers of rigid window profiles in Canada
- A discussion on one of our advocacy programmes “Tutorials on Vinyl”, which is a custom programme created by the VIC to educate Federal regulators in Canada, and which includes talks on vinyl windows from a number of perspectives.
- Communications in the vinyl industry, and why our industry needs to step up our game on this front.

Speaker Background

Aine Curran is the President & CEO of the Vinyl Institute of Canada, and most recently, also held the position of Chair of the Global Vinyl Council until December 2018.

Ms. Curran has also represented global organizations such as The Salvation Army where she developed municipal partnerships in recycling across Canada on behalf of the organization, and which she converted into the first national retail recycling program for the charity with GAP Canada and its subsidiaries. Her experience in understanding grassroots activism to global positioning tactics, along with managing high profile communications crisis management issues such as Arthur Andersen Canada (posthumously Deloitte Canada) through the global Enron crisis, are a few examples of her on-going thrust to move challenging communications issues to opportunities for advocacy in the vinyl industry.
