This month has been an exciting time for the foreclosure mediation team at RSI. We have been focusing on how to expand the reach of our programs in Kane, Lake and Winnebago counties. Shawn Davis, Director of Foreclosure Mediation, explains how mapping data helps us to improve our services.

The information provided by the heat maps is powerful because it allows us to recognize the pattern that homeowners in areas with the greatest number of foreclosure filings are also located the farthest away from program services. The final map plots the percentage of homeowners working with the mediation program. The map has proven to be especially useful to our programs in identifying areas where we need to increase the percentage of homeowners who work with the mediation program.

In many states, mandatory mediation of custody disputes is par for the course. In Oregon, the Legislature is considering making mediations mandatory in all domestic court cases, if the domestic violence and family restraining order cases and non-marital child custody cases can control the course of the litigation. A recent study of 129 court-related civil mediations in Denmark and Norway found that the majority of mediated agreements were indeed creative. Unlike other research, which has found that the majority of mediated agreements are mediators, the researchers included cases with only one creative solution.
