Exodus 40:1-33
"Made To Worship"
Clint Pressley

1. According to Exodus 29:46 and the sermon, why did God rescue Israel from Egypt? How does this purpose shape our understanding of salvation and worship today?

2. In the sermon, Pastor Clint said, "You were made to worship the one true God fully through Jesus Christ." What does it look like in your daily life to worship God fully?

3. The structure of the tabernacle was described as logical and intentional. How does the order and purpose of worship elements at church—such as Scripture reading, music, prayer, and the Lord's Supper—help guide your own experience of worship?

4. The message repeated that "worship and obedience go hand in hand." Can you share an example of a time when obeying God deepened your worship, or when true worship empowered your obedience?

5. Exodus 40 describes anointing, consecration, and the call to holiness in worship. What practical steps can we take as individuals or a church to approach worship with reverence and a sense of God's holiness?

6. Sunday worship at Hickory Grove was called "excellent without being performative." What is the difference between genuine, engaging worship and simple entertainment? Why does that distinction matter?

7. The gospel was described as the "finished work of Christ," the truer and greater Moses. How does remembering Christ's finished work, especially through practices like the Lord's Supper, impact your worship and perspective on the week ahead?

8. The pastor noted that worship is about remembering—both God's past faithfulness and redeeming grace. How does remembering God's actions in your own story inspire hope or courage for your future?

9. General revelation was mentioned as evidence that all creation calls us to worship (e.g., beauty in nature, God's creative power). How do you notice and respond to God's presence outside Sunday services?

10. What's one specific change or act of obedience God is prompting you toward as a result of this message? How can your group pray for and encourage each other to act on what you've heard?
