MATTHEW 9:35-10:10

Jesus walked down the dusty roads to the towns and villages. Everywhere Jesus went, Jesus saw people who needed His help. Jesus cared about the people and taught them about God. Jesus made sick people well.

Jesus knew that people everywhere needed to hear about God. Jesus told His disciples that there was much work to do, but not enough people to help.

Jesus talked to His twelve disciples. (Their names were Simon Peter, Andrew, James, John, Philip, Bartholomew, Thomas, Matthew, another James, Thaddeus, another Simon, and Judas.)

Jesus gave instructions to the disciples: Go to different towns and teach people about God. Tell the people about Me. Make sick people well.

Jesus told His disciples not to take money or extra clothes with them. The people who lived in the towns would take care of the men. The people would give the disciples food, a place to sleep, and anything else they needed.

Jesus told His disciples, "Pray that God will send many workers to teach the people about Me."

Count the Workers

Jesus told His 12 disciples that people everywhere needed to hear about God. There was much work to do, but few people to do it.

Count the disciples below and trace the letters to discover who they were to tell people about.

Pray for workers to tell about

JESUS.
