// Bible References: Rom 12:1-2; Matt 19:3-9; Gen 2:24-25; 1 Cor 6:12-18

// Community Question: What's something you've learned in life the hard way that actually helped you grow?

// Discussion Questions

1. Jim shared that sexual sin isn't worse in terms of God's forgiveness, but it carries unique consequences because it impacts our bodies, identity, and relationships (1 Cor. 6:12–18). What stood out to you about that distinction, and why do you think God speaks so clearly about sexuality? More broadly, how have your choices (sexual or otherwise) shaped the way you see yourself, others, or even God?
2. Jim used the idea of a treasury inspector, someone who knows what's real so they can spot what's counterfeit. Why is it important to understand God's design for things like sexuality, identity, and relationships (Gen. 2:24–25; Matt. 19:3–9)? Where do you see tension between what culture says and what God says, and how can knowing His truth help you recognize what actually leads to life?
3. Jim shared how some of his most broken and shame-filled moments became part of how God now uses his life. What does that reveal about God's ability to redeem our past? Without sharing more than you're comfortable with, are there parts of your story you've struggled to believe God could use for good, and what might it look like to begin trusting Him with that?
4. Read Romans 12:1–2. Paul talks about not being shaped by the world's way of thinking but being transformed by renewing our minds. Where do you see the world's "operating system" influencing how people think about things like sexuality, identity, or worth? What might it look like, practically, to let God's truth reshape the way you think and live not just in this area, but across your life?

// Challenge: God's design isn't meant to restrict us it's meant to lead us into real freedom. This week, take one honest step toward living in that freedom. That might look like bringing something into the light, renewing your mind with truth, or inviting someone to walk with you instead of going it alone.
