

God is My Truth

Myriads will perish in sin. Many do not accept the veracity of the holy Word. However, Christ is the complete and utmost truth. I have great faith in this because God is a necessary foundation, the Word is true, and the mere concept of morality. Christ is the true foundation of everything for everything in my life.

To begin, the Lord is the foundation that is needed for all things to exist. Genesis 1:1, "In the beginning, God created the heavens and the earth." The universe requires an adequate cause. I truly believe there is nothing, no philosophy, no luck that could have spawned His great creation out of thin air. The only reasonable explanation to me as to why everything around me and containing me exists is that a higher power created it. Many people would like to state that if everything needs a begetter, then God needs one as well. However, all things do not need to be made, only created things, in this case, the universe. God is above the universe, so therefore he does not need to be fabricated. This argument is opinionated compared to the last two, but I also think that for a world that is so wonderful and intricate, the great Lord needs to be involved. Look no further than the plants that inhabit Earth to see this. I truly do not believe that evolution could have created the functions and the beauty of the flowers we see every day. God is the necessary deity needed for such a great world.

Secondly, the Bible is correct. I wholeheartedly believe in the Bible and a verse that has been on my mind is Psalms 33:4, which says, "For the word of the LORD is right, And all His work is done in truth." I strongly trust that there has been sufficient research that proves the validity of the Word. My faith is bolstered by the extensive research that affirms the Bible's validity, revealing connections between ancient artifacts and the stories that have shaped my understanding of the world. An example of this that sparked a deeper connection in me, which I greatly believe is the Dead Sea Scrolls in the 20th century, which contained texts from the Hebrew Bible and shed light on the religious historical context of the time in which they were written. Additionally, many wise and experienced scholars have attested to the geographical and historical accuracy of the events and locations mentioned in the Bible, further supporting its validity. Two great archaeologists, William F. Albright, and Nelson Glueck have stated that the Bible is the most trustworthy historical document. I also feel like I have experienced the truth in my life, as my belief in the word is not purely intellectual. The holy Word states that nothing is impossible through God. I feel this in my personal life because the Bible reassures me through this, and it gives me the strength to push through difficult times. The Bible is one hundred percent true.

Lastly, the concept of morality solidifies my belief that God is the ultimate truth. The moral code outlined in the Bible provides a guide for living a just and righteous life. The principles of love, compassion, forgiveness, and integrity are deeply rooted in the teachings of Christ. Even mere infants know ethics. They know compassion, empathy, and what is just. It is a product of God's loving writing on our hearts. "who show the work of the law written in their hearts, their conscience also bearing witness, and between themselves their thoughts accusing or else excusing them" (Romans 2:15). Without the Heavenly Father, there is no true concept of what is right and wrong. Many people would like to say they already know what is just and unfair without the Bible, however, it is just a product of the Lord's greatness and power. Our values are His greatest gift.

In conclusion, the truth of God spreads into every facet of existence. As I have explored, the universe stands as a testament to His divine creation, the Bible proves itself as a beacon of absolute truth, and the moral compass ingrained in humanity reveals His everlasting presence.

My faith rests firmly in the belief that without God, the fabric of life would devolve into absolute chaos and confusion. Each flower that blooms and every beat of someone's heart echoes the magnificence of the Creator. Thus, I stand unwavering in my belief: God is my truth, the foundation that grounds my life, guiding me through the storms of doubt and into the light of hope and purpose. Embracing this truth, I am filled with peace, knowing that in Him, I have found everything I seek.

Word count: 805

Andres Baksh

7th Grade