ANOINTING OF THE SICK

The Catechism of the Catholic Church (#1514-1515) teaches that this sacrament is not only for those at the point of death, but for anyone seriously ill or facing serious surgery. In fact, it is preferred that parishioners entering the hospital for surgery should ask the priest for this sacrament before being admitted. Parishioners should never wait until the last minute to call. We encourage parishioners facing surgery to let the parish priest know of their condition before entering the hospital so that they can be anointed before admission.

Shepherd's Corner

I am the good shepherd, and I know mine and mine know me

In our first reading from the book of Ecclesiastes and in the Gospel parable from Saint Luke, we are asked to look at what we consider the priorities in our life. Which activities receive most of our time and effort? Are they things that center on our workplaces and the accrual of “things”? Or are the things we place importance on centered on our relationship with God and others?

There is no doubt that work is important. After all, we need to work to pay bills and sustain ourselves and our families, but it can be easy to be caught up in the idea that the more we have the more successful we are. Too many people seem to be consumed by competition and ambition in the secular world and lose focus on the gifts that are right in front of them. I remember a manager (and friend) I worked with who put in long hours at the grocery store. He worked every weekend and every holiday, thinking he was making a better life for himself and his family. He worked hard so that, one day, they would finally be able to take their dream vacation. He thought he was doing a good thing. He felt successful in the company we worked for. But as time went by, his connection with his spouse and his children suffered a great deal. Unfortunately, I have seen this happen a few different times with people I know. This type of behavior seems to resonate with a line I once heard Lily Tomlin use in her comedy: “The trouble with the rat race is that even if you win, you're still a rat.”

The world says there is always something “new and improved” right around the corner. But is that always good? Sometimes, always looking for the “new and improved” means we take our eyes off what is right in front of us. Here's something I read from the poet Ralph Waldo Emerson:

*Success:
To laugh often and much;
To win the respect of intelligent people
and the affection of children;
To earn the appreciation of honest critics
and endure the betrayal of false friends;
To appreciate beauty;
To find the best in others;
To leave the world a bit better, whether by a healthy child, a garden patch
or a redeemed social condition;
To know even one life has breathed easier because you have lived;
This is to have succeeded.*

Take time to reflect on what's really important to you. Don't be like the farmer in the gospel who missed out on enjoying those things that were always before him.

Peace and Blessings,
Fr. Mike
