CONSCIOUS CONVERSATIONS OF CARE

STEP 27

IT'S IN YOUR HAND

What is in your hand that makes you manifest the gifts that God has given you to advance His kingdom?

Exodus 4:2

Exodus 4:2 states, "The Lord said to him, 'What is that in your hand?' He said, 'A staff.'" This verse occurs during a pivotal moment in the story of Moses. When God calls Moses to lead the Israelites out of Egypt, Moses is hesitant and full of doubt about his abilities. In response, God asks him a simple yet profound question: "What is that in your hand?"

The Symbolism of the Staff

The staff that Moses holds is a symbol of his identity as a shepherd, a humble instrument used in his daily life. Yet, through God's power, it becomes a tool for performing miracles. This transformation signifies that God can use ordinary objects and people to achieve extraordinary purposes. The staff, once merely a shepherd's tool, becomes a powerful symbol of divine intervention and leadership.

Trust and Empowerment

By asking Moses to look at what he already possesses, God underscores the idea that we often have within us or around us the resources necessary to fulfill our calling. This moment encourages us to trust in the tools and talents we already hold, as they can be empowered by faith to accomplish great things. It emphasizes the importance of recognizing and appreciating our existing capabilities, even when we feel inadequate.

A Call to Action

Exodus 4:2 is a call to action, inviting us to acknowledge and utilize our current resources. It speaks to the potential for growth and transformation when we trust in a higher purpose. The question posed by God to Moses encourages self-reflection, urging us to consider how we might leverage what we have in service to others and to fulfill our own unique missions.

Lessons for Today

This verse teaches us that no matter how insignificant we might view the tools or talents at our disposal, they can become mighty when used in alignment with a greater vision. It invites us to open our eyes to the potential in our hands and to approach our lives with faith, creativity, and confidence. As we reflect on this passage, we are reminded to look beyond our limitations and to see the possibilities that lie in our everyday gifts.

The Gifts in Our Hands

Each of us possesses unique abilities and resources that allow us to create and contribute to the world in meaningful ways. The idea of "what is in your hand" encourages us to explore and utilize these gifts to their fullest potential. Here are some ways to understand and harness what you hold, as inspired by scripture:

1. Talents and Skills

1 Peter 4:10 reminds us, "As each has received a gift, use it to serve one another, as good stewards of God's varied grace."

We all have innate talents and skills that can be developed and refined. Whether you are an artist, a scientist, a teacher, or a craftsperson, your skills are tools that can be used to innovate, solve problems, and inspire others. By honing these abilities, you can bring forth creations that reflect your unique perspective and contribute to the world.

2. Resources and Opportunities

Ecclesiastes 11:6: “In the morning sow your seed, and at evening withhold not your hand, for you do not know which will prosper, this or that, or whether both alike will be good.”

The resources available to you, whether they are material, financial, or social, play a crucial role in what you can create. Recognizing and leveraging the opportunities that come your way is essential. This could mean using technology to connect with others, investing in your education, or collaborating with like-minded individuals to bring a project to life. Reflect on

3. Time and Energy

Ephesians 5:15 “Look carefully then how you walk, not as unwise but as wise, making the best use of the time, because the days are evil.”

Time is a valuable resource that each of us can utilize to pursue our passions and fulfill our purposes. Prioritizing how you spend your time and conserving your energy are key to maximizing your creative output. By focusing on activities that align with your goals and values, you can ensure that your efforts are both productive and rewarding.-16 advises,

4. Passion and Purpose

Colossians 3:23 “Whatever you do, work heartily, as for the Lord and not for men.”

Your passion fuels your creativity and drives you to pursue your dreams. When you align your creations with your values and purpose, you produce work that is not only satisfying to you but also impactful to others. Reflecting on what truly motivates you can help you direct your energies towards endeavors that resonate with your core beliefs.

5. Faith and Inspiration

Hebrews 11:1 “Now faith is the assurance of things hoped for, the conviction of things not seen.”

Faith can be a powerful motivator, providing you with the strength and inspiration to overcome challenges and continue creating. Whether it is faith in a higher power, in humanity, or in yourself, it can serve as a guiding light, encouraging you to persevere and innovate even in the face of adversity.

By recognizing and utilizing these gifts, you can create the things that God—or the universe—has uniquely equipped you to contribute. What is in your hand is not just a question of resources, but an invitation to explore the depths of your potential and bring your visions to life.
