

Sent to Fulfill!

John 1:5-6

*God sent a man, John the Baptist,
to tell about the light so that everyone
might believe because of his testimony.*

God sent a man, John the Baptist to the world. Like John, God also sent you to where you are, in this time and family. Nobody chose to come here to Earth. When I was a middle school girl, one day, when I opened my eyes in bed, a thought came to me. “Where is here? Why am I here at this time, in this place, and in this family? Why am I existing, not not-existing?” It was a fearful thought I could not digest well as a child. I shook my head and tried to forget it.

As John was assigned a specific mission, you were sent here for a mission that you can only fulfill in this world. No one else can.

When the light shines, you realize that your spirit is awakened as the beloved of the Creator God—the true Daddy, who remains constant, faithful, and infinitely loving. This newfound reality and identity will guide you through. In the light, you are transformed from a life centered around the soul, which causes us to focus on our shortcomings and eventually drives us away from the Father’s heart. A life lived by the soul makes us feel unworthy and discouraged, mentally and emotionally exhausted.

Repentance is about restoring your true self, the best version of yourself, the most comfortable and joyful version of yourself. At the same time, repentance always points to future hope and promise, which is never lacking. So, make sure there’s no hint of past judgment. Why? Because it was buried with Jesus.

Repentance is not a difficult task. It involves abiding, cherishing the refreshing presence of God, and trusting in His incredible future blessings. God’s gift is like a fairy tale; too good to be true, yet it is indeed true. In that peaceful place, you will experience the purity of Jesus that you yearn to remain in. Your life will respond with gratitude. The light will guide your heart to fulfill your mission in the world.

Grace and joy,
