Rachel B. Hale, MA is an Instructor at the University of Arkansas for Medical Sciences (UAMS) and a current PhD student in the UAMS Health Promotion and Prevention Program. She teaches the Climate Change and Public Health course in the College of Public Health and serves as the facilitator for the Interprofessional Exposure Bridge, “Climate Change, Public Health and Environmental Justice in the US.”

Her academic interests include understanding the impact climate change and health has and will continue to have within the US, especially on historically excluded and vulnerable communities in southern states. Her work aims to learn from frontline communities on how they are already addressing these issues, the language they use to communicate the changing climate, and how health promotion and prevention research can build upon these assets to improve community health outcomes through collaboration.

Darlene Owens, M.Ed., CRC, I am the wife of Sammie Owens of 33 years, the mother of Drayton Owens and Ashley Owens (RIL 11/22/11) and grandmother of two beautiful granddaughters Arielle and Ava. My extended children are Stephanie, Courtney, and Miriam. My extended grandchildren are Taylor, Tatiyana, Trey, Jasmine, LaCourtney and Morgan; last by not least, great granddaughter, Kallie.

I am a member of St. John Missionary Baptist Church and currently serving in the Grief Ministry and the Moms Ministry. I've been a member of this church for well over 30 years and have participated in several ministries through the years.

Professionally, I received my master's in vocational rehabilitation counseling and my CRC certification. Currently, I work for state of Arkansas in the compacity of Rehab Area Manager with Arkansas Rehabilitation Services serving the Little Rock area. I work with individuals with disabilities (ages 16 and up) who are ready return to work or want to learn vocational skills through training programs to be able to become employed and live independent lives.

On occasion, I am afforded the opportunity to encourage others to keep going and trust God through their grief by sharing my testimony. My purpose is to give God the glory regardless of what I go through because I firmly believe God deserves my praise and He deserves all the Glory. To God be the glory!!!
